How weird St. Mary's cathedral bell sounded when it gave the fire alarm in the middle of the night?
The Sunday morning on which old St. Andrew's church was burned?
When we used to buy a raw oyster cocktail in Eddie Beaupre's hotel at the corner of Princess and Clergy streets?
When Montreal street on the way to the outer station used to be infested with toughs who would way-lay you at night, particularly if you happened to be walking with a girl?
When free beer was dispensed at a Princess street hotel around election time?
When they stood during prayer and sat during psalm and hymn singing in the Presbyterian churches?
The workmen's meetings that were held by M. S. Burnette and the late Abriam Hopkins thirty years ago?
When Jack Sherlock led Cooke's Irish Presbyterian church choir without an organ?
The church history controversies that used to be fought out in the local newspapers between the late Rev. Samuel Houston and Major Mayne of the Royal Military College?
When Bob Harvey played the organ in the First Congregational church?
The night the firebugs set fire to the old Salvation Army barracks on Queen street and the Brock street Methodist church?

When Dr. John H. Bell was principal of the old Gordon street school?

How Howard Nicholson was doled out as captain of the old steamer Hero when it ran excursions to the Thousand Islands?

The two days' celebration held by the city on the 30th of June and the first of July, 1887, in honor of Queen Victoria's jubilee?

When Timothy Doelen used to throw silver dollars to the players who made home runs in the old Mills field on Johnson street in the late eighties?

The stone military wall that used to be in front of the city Hall (where the C.P.R. station is now) and the old chap who used to sell fish at the Clarence street end of this wall?

Jimmy Watts, the carter, and his old horse, "gid ep George?"

When we used to play lacrosse on the old drill shed commons? There were Billie, Dave and Miley Marshall, Sam and Billie Hamilton, Norval Smith, Alfred Dean, E. O. Sitter, Jack Elliott and others I can't just recall at the moment.

When we used to play baseball at the Barrie street end of the cricket field and get chased off about every other time by the cricketers?

The Orange celebration in the days gone by when the boys used to come in from Odessa, Glenburnie, Sydenham, Bath, etc., their bands comprising chiefly of one fife and one drum?

When we used to go fishing at the "old black barge" Barriefield, and in the fall go picking hickory nuts in the grove just back of the old black barge.

The crowd at the station the night the remains of the late Sir John A. MacDonald arrived?

MAKING BACK YARDS ATTRACTIVE PLACES

Prof. Tomlinson of Guelph Gave an Interesting Address in Convocation Hall.

Prof. Tomlinson, of the department of horticulture, Guelph Agricultural College, gave a very interesting and instructive address on "Landscape Gardening," and "How to Lay Out the Back Yard," in Convocation Hall Friday evening. The lecture was under the auspices of the Ontario government and Prof. John Macgillivray, president of the local Horticultural Society, introduced the speaker.

Prof. Tomlinson, with the use of lantern slides, showed how the back yard could be made much more attractive and cleaner, with the use of shrubs and flowers. Numerous slides were shown, that portrayed the vast improvement in a yard after a few flowers had been put to good use. The speaker stated that many people like vegetables growing in their yard, and that this could be done very easily and still have flowers growing that would give the yard a much better appearance. Flowers and plants should be arranged as the people would think they would look best, but numerous mistakes are made in the arranging of them.

The speaker stated that a common fault was the use of too many shrubs around the base of a building, therefore obstructing the view of the foundation of the building. The speaker said this should not be done, especially in this city, where the foundations of buildings are usually made out of limestone, which has a very nice appearance. A yard can also be improved by the removal of rubbish and wood that is bound to collect.

The speaker stated that the front lawn should be given special attention. The appearance of the front lawn counts a good deal on the placing of his plants and shrubs. With the slides, Prof. Tomlinson showed how vast improvements could be made. A great many people have the habit of growing too many shrubs on their lawns, and the speaker showed that they present a much better appearance by not having them bunched together.

Prof. Tomlinson also showed how many trees were robbed of their beautiful appearance. They should be well looked after, and in many cases their growth is stunted by sidewalks that are laid too close to the roots of the trees.

The speaker showed some very interesting slides of different flowers, and explained their conditions to the audience, and gave information on the time to plant them.

Those who were fortunate enough to hear Prof. Tomlinson, were given some highly instructive information, which can be used to good advantage in the arrangement of the back yard and the appearance of the front lawn.
