MAXSON FRANKLIN JONES

Show me one good reason why you should whimper, whine or cry. And I'll show you twenty more. Why, with laughter, you should roar.

Success.
Customer: "Will these shoes wear me long?"
Brisk Salesman: "Wear long? Why man, nobody has ever yet come back for the second pair."
—John Flanagan.

Rolling Their Own.
By Myrene Melton.
The boys, when needing cigarettes, in crowds or when alone, take papers and tobacco sack and calmly roll their own.

The girls, since garters are passe, as we have all been shown, pull down the hose below the knee and deftly roll their own.

These boys and girls all woo and wed. And when they're older grown, within a carriage, down the street, they proudly roll their own.

Not As Advertised.
"Don't you ever long for the free life of the forests and the mountains?"
"I used to, but when I tried it last summer, I found it wasn't so free after all. I had to pay a guide $10 a day and expenses to lead me around."

Pertinent Question.
"I value my husband."
"What at?"
—Mrs. John Baer.

An Essay On Humor.
Humor is something funny. Wit is humor that few people understand. Philosophy is humor that nobody understands.

Life taken lightly is humorous; taken seriously it is murder.

If I sell this paragraph, it is humor. If I don't, it is philosophy.
—Frank Owen.

Whose Hoot.
Scotchman: "Hoot, mon."
Irishman: "Hoot yourself, be jabbers, I'm no owl!"

First Request.
"Now suppose," said the official who was examining the chap who wanted to be a life guard, "that a girl went over her head and couldn't swim. After rescuing and reviving her what would you do?"
"Get her a vanity case," replied the applicant.
—Virginia Miller.

The Bunch and Judy.
The Eternal Quest.
Judy, fair as heather rose, never lacks for handsome beaux; though they shun the other dames they take her to baseball games. When the other women say, "Baseball! How d'you get that way?"
She smiles shrewdly, "Well, you see, diamonds always interest me."

A Holy Show.
Judy, handsome, graceful, lean, on the links is quite a queen; men compete to be her caddy. Old men want to be her "daddy." Last week, she cried, flushed with fun,
"Folks, I made a hole in one!" Then, though some folks thought it shocking, she showed one hole in her stocking!

Good Practice.
Furniss: "So you really believe those cross word puzzles have enlarged your vocabulary?"
Prentiss: "I'll say they have. Just wait until you hear me bring a few pet names on the umpire, the first time he pulls a raw decision."

TO CALL HALT IN GIVING FIRE AID

Must Protect Kingston.
Ald. Milne raised the question as to the action taken by fire departments in other cities.

Fire Chief Armstrong stated that both Toronto and Hamilton charged for outside service. In Toronto, a city fireman had been injured on a call from outside the city. The municipality concerned had refused to pay the damages, and afterwards the department had refused to answer outside calls.

The matter was discussed from various angles, and it was the opinion of the committee that if the fire department did respond to a call for help from outside the city, there should be a nominal fee of $500. Then again it was felt that the city could not afford to risk a big fire breaking out in Kingston while some of the firefighters were away with some of their apparatus, and it was finally decided that no calls from outside the city be responded to unless definite arrangements were made by the places concerned, with the city. The various municipalities in the Kingston district will be notified of this effect and if the recommendation of the committee passes the council, the outside municipalities will have to open negotiations with the city for protection.

It is of interest to note that at the present time the fire and light committee has some freighting apparatus to dispose of, and some of the nearby places have been notified, but as yet no application has been received for freighting appliances.

Fire Chief Armstrong brought to the attention of the committee the need for a water hydrant at the corner of William and Barrie street, and stated that action should be taken to secure a hydrant at this corner before the proposed paving was undertaken at this corner. On motion of Ald. Peters, the committee will ask that a hydrant be placed at this corner.

Ald. O'Connor, the chairman, presided at the meeting, and also present were Aids. Milne, Peters, Reid and Chown.

What Does May 1st Mean to You?
Hundreds of city-dwellers have been waiting anxiously for the opening of the speckled-trout season—and now their dream of a happy outing is about to be realized.

In a hundred crystal streams—many of them but a short distance away—the speckled trout are snapping at the unwary insects spring has brought. The first of May opens the season—now is the time to overhaul your tackle and get ready to enjoy that best of all outings—a fishing-trip in the woods.

Forget dull care—leave life's every-day routine for a few days—go after the gamey "big fellows" that are lying under the reeds and in the ripples waiting for the tempting flies or succulent angle worms.

The famous trout regions are readily accessible—Canadian National Railways will take you to them by shortest routes and in utmost comfort. Do you wonder where the fishing is at its best? Ask a Canadian National ticket agent—he will help you plan your trip, whether it be to some delightful woodland resort in the Rideau region, Kawartha Lakes, Haliburton Highlands, Algonquin Park, the Georgian Bay region, or a quiet country spot nearer.

Ready on October 1st.

W. MHO, painting and gasing; Elliott Bros., plumbing and heating, and James Harris, electrical work.

William Newlands & Sons, architects, stated on Tuesday that the building will be ready for use the first of October.

Fees are adults $2 for the season and children $1, with the stipulation that children are to make use of the court only during the day.

THIEF BROKE INTO HARROWSMITH STATION

But Only Secured a Few Coppers—Cut Glass From a Window.

On Sunday after midnight some unknown person entered the railway station at Harrowsmith, by taking the glass out of one of the windows. Shortly after one o'clock Monday morning the station agent was awakened from his slumbers by a farmer who was returning home by motor. When the driver of the car was crossing the railway tracks in front of the station he noticed some large pieces of glass on the platform and thought that there was something wrong.

When the station agent made an investigation it was found that the glass had been taken out of one of the windows and the thief had entered the building that way. Upon going over the records at the station it was discovered that the cash drawer had been tampered with but only a few coppers taken.

Provincial Police Officer MacLachlan, Kingston, has been investigating the case but has been unable to get any trace of the thieves. It is thought that the robbery must have taken place about one o'clock, as the train crew on the night train which passed through Harrowsmith at 12.30 said that everything was in good order at that time.
