DO YOU REMEMBER? Incidents of Days Long Ago That Old Kingston Boys Will Likely Recall

When the Rev. Andrew Wilson, pastor of Cooke's church, resigned when it was decided to install an organ—a kist o' whistles?

When the first mayoralty election took place in Kingston and Dr. Sullivan defeated Dr. O. Yates? Before that the mayor was chosen by the council.

When Montreal street was put through from Princess to Brock and through the Artillery Park from Queen to Ordnance?

When Kingston's St. Patrick's Society included both Protestants and Catholics, and Sir George A. Kirkpatrick's father was president?

When the Congregational, Brock street Methodist, the Primitive Methodist (where the fire station is) and All Saints' churches were all functioning and doing good work?

When Frontenac Park contained several grave yards and a dead house?

When the constructive work of a ten-year-old lad named Willie Wormwith created astonishment at an exhibit in the old skating rink on King street?

When Ald. James Craig circulated the petition asking that the present esplanade be built on the King street water front?

When Dwight Chown, now superintendent of the Methodist church attended the Johnson street school?

When W. H. Norris was the man behind the scenes during the mystery acts in the Opera House?

When Dick Davis was the only artist in Kingston who could satisfy the military in photography?

When Jack Tweddell used to show his Wellington street school chums through the old jail building back of the post office?

When the Whig was published in the building now occupied by Bert White, Bagot street?

When John Rowlands published the Kingston News?

When ex-Ald. J. P. Gildersleeve had the fence around the cricket field removed so that the boys could play lacrosse?

When Tom Driver could skate rings around any Kingstonian, except Henry Cunningham, in a long race?

When Jim Crawford came in last in a bicycle race at the first grocers' picnic?

When Jimmy Minnes won the mile race at Kingston's first bicycle meet? What a row was kicked up in the council when Ald. Billy Carson insisted on the creation of Victoria Park?

When Leman Guild discovered the resting place in Frontenac Park of a celebrated English poetess' brother?

When Jim Metcalfe was principal of Wellington street school?

When Jim Scott was principal and Tom Alexander assistant of Johnson street school?

When Convocation Hall was opened with the Hon. Edward Blake as chief speaker?

When Brother Arnold was principal of St. Mary's school?

When common schools only existed in Kingston and Father Dollard was the Roman Catholic representative on the board of trustees?

When a little boy named Cornelius Birmingham recited "The Eternal City" at closing exercises in St. Mary's school?

When Henry Hunter was the champion batter in the Queen street school club, T. C. Wilson, principal?

When Con. Driscoll was murdered at Morton's distillery and the office robbed, and Saxe Allen was convicted and hanged in the present jail?

When Chief Horsey acted as chief of the fire department and of police at the same time?

When J. B. Walkem was honored three times on his first rendition of "The Family Pew" in the City Hall?

When Col. Hance, a resident of Cape Vincent, was chief of police in Kingston?

When Charlie Corbett, mounted on his bay thoroughbred, was awarded the blue ribbon at the provincial exhibition?

When the shambles on the market square were burned, and the town clock fell with a terrible crash about 5 a.m.?

When James Hogan, Ordnance street, owned the only hearse that was in the city?

When Jack Crawford made the run from Napanee on his bike in one hour and fifteen minutes?

When a three-foot hurdle was no obstacle to Charley Livingston on horseback?

When William O'Brien, Irish patriot, visited Kingston and spoke in the old roller skating rink, Johnson street? A huge crowd gathered outside and violence was feared. When he appeared after the meeting a voice cried out: "There he is with the plug hat." Then there was a rush from across the street, but as Morrie Hogan deftly substituted his own hat for the plug O'Brien was missing. The only injury was to a New York World reporter, who had stated that he wanted souvenirs to take home with him, and he got them in the shape of a black eye and a cut head. At least he had bandages on his head when I saw him later in the telegraph office.

How proud Jack Birkett was when he succeeded in having an art school established?

When George Briggs, of Channel Grove, under arrest for subbing during the latter part of the American war, escaped from the police station when called out of the pen to go up to court? He ran to the lake shore where a man was waiting for him with a horse and cutter and his skates. George put on his skates and when the police put in an appearance he was a speck heading for The Brothers. It was openly said that money changed hands in connection with the matter.

When E. J. Clarke, of Akron, Ohio, who is coming to Kingston with the Old Boys, exposed Prof. Reynolds, the hypnotist, in the Opera House?

When Jack Pollie was manager of the Park Nine ball team; Jack Fisher and Jeff Lovett were the battery? What a good time the boys had when Johnny Laird returned from Buffalo?

When Tommy Carson's racker could out-pace any horse in Kingston?

When Detective Denny Sullivan, Mike's brother, arrested a notorious New York bandit on Princess street, single handed during exhibition week?

When Paddy Daley, with a stone, killed a partridge while it was on a tree which was removed when the Golden Lion block was built?

When Archie Hanley received daily visits from the newspaper reporters?

When Billy Moore, Herb's father, used to take the boys up to a field where Alfred street now is to shoot partridges?

When Jim Stewart conducted the business of the Kingston and Montreal Forwarding Co., at Portsmouth?

The good stories Dr. Pheasant told after his return from a trip to Ireland?

When Jerry Bastow was envied by the boys because he always had the best top in the crowd?
