

THE BIOGRAPHY OF 1925

KING EDWARD VII.

BY SIR SIDNEY LEE

In this new biography, Sir Sidney Lee has portrayed not only the genial prince of good fellows, endeared to the world at large as the Prince of Wales and King Edward, but also the tactful and experienced promoter of international friendship.

It was at the request of King George V. that this biography was undertaken, and that it is based on documents in the royal archives to which King George gave the author access.

Diary of a Typewriter.

Jan. 7. Well, I've left the factory and am sure anxious to get busy. A business man came and took me away today.

Jan. 8. So this is what they call a stenographer! I don't mind being hammered, but I wish she wouldn't park her chewing gum on me during the lunch hour.

Jan. 15. A week of this, and it's terrible! I never will be able to spell decently after this girl gets through with me.

Feb. 10. A new "steno" today. I wonder how she'll treat me.

Feb. 11. Heavens! She has an eye for color. The sweet thing has tied a pink bow around each one of my keys!

Feb. 28. MY SHIFT KEY IS STUCK AND I CAN'T WRITE ANYTHING BUT CAPITALS!

She felt Better After the First Box

New Brunswick Lady is Now Enthusiastic About Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Madame A. Godin suffered with her kidneys and urinary trouble. St. Jeanne D'arc, N.B., May 25.—(Special)—"Pardon me for not writing to you before about your Dodd's Kidney Pills, but when one enjoys good health one is always busy."

"Some time ago I was suffering with my kidneys and weakness of the bladder. I read in your Almanac that Dodd's Kidney Pills were good for this trouble and decided to try them."

"I had not a great deal of confidence in pills because I had tried so many other kinds without good results. To my surprise after I had taken the first box, I began to feel better. I continued taking them and am now completely relieved of my trouble. I advise all those who suffer with their kidneys to use them. It gives me pleasure to tell all my friends to use them."

This statement, which speaks for itself, is sent to us by Madame A. Godin, well-known in this place.

March 5. Well, they've whipped me into shape again, but I'm not what I used to be. Hear they are going to sell me. Oh, well.

March 19. They've sold me to a doctor. My life ought to be easy, now.

March 20. Ye gods! He's using me to write his prescriptions!

March 28. Well, I'm sold again. I wonder who will be foolish enough to buy me now.

March 30. Am being rebuilt. Thought I'd need something like this.

April 29. Well, at last someone has bought me. A post!

May 2. Oh, dear! I think I'll like this.

May 3. F'heaven's sake! Mush in the Moonlight! Star Drippings! To Celestia! I'll go mad if this thing keeps on.

May 15. I'm going mad—I'm going—!!! plink!

Relations and Relativity. Marshall (when wife's relatives have gone): "By George, I thought they'd never go. I tried to hide my yawns behind this magazine."

Mrs. Marshall: "Hide your yawns behind a magazine! Bah! You should have opened up a newspaper."

Indispensable. Arthur (primly): "I hope you don't park with boys on dark roads?"

Dorothy (hopefully): "Not unless I'm driven to it." —W. A. Tanner.

Efficiency. "What sort of a filing system have you in your office?"

"It's a wonder. Once you get anything filed away in it, it takes three filing clerks four hours to find it." —E. G. Miller.

LATE RAYMOND PARKER

Of Hay Bay Passes Away, Aged Eighteen Years.

Hay Bay, May 26.—The residents of Hay Bay and neighborhood were shocked to hear of the death of Raymond Parker on Friday last.

Raymond, who was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Parker, had on February last undergone an operation at Kingston for a disease which had settled in his leg.

Following this, the doctors found it necessary to amputate his leg above the knee in an attempt to stop the disease from going further. Raymond had returned home and appeared to have improved considerably. He engaged in his former occupation as fisherman and was taken ill rather suddenly last week, his relapse terminating in his death.

The remains were interred in what is known as "Parker's cemetery" on the Hay Bay shore on Monday afternoon amid scenes of sorrow and sympathy for the deceased's family. Deceased was nineteen years of age. Deceased was eighteen years of age.

RED CROSS DRIVE.

To be Held in Kingston on May 28th, 29th and 30th.

Arrangements are now in progress for the Red Cross drive which has been an annual feature since the war, and one that Kingston has supported with considerable liberality. It will be held at the end of May, on the 28th, 29th and 30th. As usual collectors will set up their tables in certain banks and other prominent places where they will catch the attention of those interested, and the press will also draw attention to their presence and the need for subscriptions.

The Red Cross Society came into its own during the war, when through it so much was done for the comfort of the soldiers. With the end of the war it was re-constituted in order to meet the special needs of the civilians. The Red Cross maintains small hospitals and nursing centres in Northern Ontario and in the more unsettled portions of other provinces, where the need for such institutions is great but the population too scanty to afford them. The work done in these places is as much educative as curative.

The society directs the Junior Red Cross, which teaches health principles to school children here in Kingston as well as in other cities and in the rural centres. This work is bound to make the growing generation healthier. Equipment is constantly kept in store by the society with which to deal with epidemics when they break out. Beds, blankets and other necessities can be sent out in car load lots to any point of danger, and medical staffs can be mobilized in a few hours. Health education for adults is carried on through the columns of a most interesting publication which is sent free to all who subscribe one dollar or more to the funds of the society. This work deserves the heartiest support of all the citizens of Canada, and it is most earnestly to be hoped that Kingston will not come short in its quota.

The Late George B. Noble. Wellington was shocked on Monday when word was received that George Noble, who went to Toronto last week for his health, had passed away.

He left home on Wednesday accompanied by Mrs. Noble, stopped for a few days with friends in Cobourg and reached Toronto on Saturday. Early Monday morning he passed away. His wife and three children are left. Mr. Noble was born at Melville and spent the greater part of his life in Prince Edward county. He was an adherent of the Christian Science faith, in politics a Conservative and a member of the Masonic Order.

Appreciated Faithful Service. For many years John A. Watt has been employed as book-keeper with Boyd Caldwell & Co., in Lanark and later in Perth when the Caldwell firm went to that town and he remained with the firm up until a few months ago when the business was purchased by Tayside Textiles Ltd. To show his appreciation of Mr. Caldwell's long and faithful service, Mr. Caldwell, president of the firm of Caldwell & Co., recently presented Mr. Watt with a beautiful gold watch and chain. Mr. Watt continues with Tayside Textiles Ltd. in the position he previously held with the Caldwell firm.

Mrs. Phyllis Mason Wallbridge, died Thursday at 144 Bridge street, Belleville.

HEART WAS WEAK NERVES ALL GONE

Mrs. J. H. Hallenbeck, 117 1/2 Weland Avenue, St. Catharines, Ont., writes:—"I was in a gas explosion; it left me with a weak heart, and my nerves were all gone. I suffered everything; couldn't sleep, or endure any excitement, and when left alone I felt as if I could scream. I took daisy pills, often falling and bruising myself. My mother read about your Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and bought me a box, but having taken so many different kinds of medicine it just seemed that I did not have any confidence in any of them. I took one box of H. & N. Pills, and felt so much better I continued with them until I had used five boxes, and after I had taken them I did not need any more. I cannot praise, or recommend Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills too highly after all they have done for me."

No. 110—Outdoor Games.

A.D. 1195.—Bowls was a popular game, the "jack" being a pyramid of stone. The bowls were, for many years, rounded stones. Quarter staff provided amusement for the more pugnacious, as did football on the "catch-as-catch-can" principle. Sword dancing, a relic of the Saxons, with bagpipe accompaniment, was a feature at festivals.
