The Editor Hears

That an autograph quilt for the Battersea Institute, which brought the brand $100, was one of the ventures of this energetic branch. Mrs. George Matheson, Montreal street, Kingston, took the city subscriptions and earned the thanks of the Institute for the tact, time and trouble she gave to this work.

That the service of the United Church of Canada, held in Toronto, marks a step in the life of Canada. This great body of Christians should be a tremendous power for good in our new country, and the weight of their influence should do much to give us a better, purer Canada.

That a number of parties of guests at the June ball will motor to town for the event and leave for their homes as soon as it is over. Several parties are coming from Brockville this way and Gananoque and Nanapanee will also be represented at the big dance.

That a Kingstonian who was in Toronto last week says the "old boys" in the Queen City are preparing to invade Kingston during the first week in August. The extreme heat of Toronto last week made Kingston and her cool breezes seem particularly alluring. Well, no matter how many of them come, we will have a welcome for them.

That the meeting of the Woman's Institute of Frontenac was an impressive event. The fact that so many women are making home and country the object of much study and thought and bringing their woman's wit to the solutions of the many problems before our politicians, is a comforting one. The Institutes have done much and will do more; 35,000 women of the province of Ontario belong to the Federated Women's. When one seriously thinks what that means, the thought is an inspiring one.

WEAR NECKLACE DOWN THE BACK

If you draw a V from shoulder line by waistline, and then scoop out the material inside the V you uncover quite an expanse of back. If this bothers you at all, follow the HOME MADE BREAD Every housekeeper should know how to make good bread. She may not have the time and strength to bake a "batch" each week, but she enjoys baking a few loaves for special occasions such as guest dinners and holiday gatherings.

To make two loaves of yeast bread begin by dissolving one-sixth of a cake of compressed yeast in one-fourth cup of luke-warm water. Put into a mixing bowl two cups of scalded sweet milk (or the same amount of hot water, or half milk and half water), and add at once two table-spoons of butter, two table-spoons of sugar and two teaspoons of salt; let the scalded milk cool to the luke-warm stage, then add the dissolved yeast cake. Also stir in three cups of ordinary bread flour, and beat well—both to distribute the yeast evenly throughout the mixture and to develop the gluten in the flour.

Next, add three more cups of flour. If the mixture becomes too stiff to stir with a spoon, turn it out onto a slightly-floured board to work in the last of these three cups of flour with the hands. Indeed, it may be necessary to work in a very little more flour, from the board's surface, to keep the dough from sticking to the board and hands.

This is the kneading stage. Use a rotary stretching motion; that is, stretch the dough up from the bottom of the ball and move the ball around in one direction, as you do so. It may be necessary to knead it for ten minutes before it reaches a stage where it is "elastic," and will "spring out" again when dented with the knuckles.

Place the kneaded ball into a large, buttered bowl. Cover with a clean piece of board. Stand the bowl in temperature around 80 degrees Fahrenheit—the temperature of a too warm room—and let it remain at the same temperature for ten hours, or overnight.

In the morning turn it out onto the floured board again and cut it in half with a sharp knife. Take up each half with the hands, form it into a loaf, and place it in a greased pan. Brush the top of each loaf with melted butter, cover pan with a clean cloth and let rise in a warm place for one and one-half hours (again 80 degrees F.) Bake 45 minutes in a moderate oven.

If inquiries addressed to Miss Kirkman in care of the "Efficient Housekeeping" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question. Be sure to use YOUR full name, street number, and the name of your city and state.

EMBROIDERY IN BRIGHT COLORS

plan of Carmel Myers and wear one of the new back necklaces of diamonds and pearls—just like the pendant effects that were once worn down the front. It breaks up the dead white of the shoulders and offers some explanation for the cut of the frock. Really, it's a very smart thing to do these days.

McGREER-HAWLEY MARRIAGE

An interesting event in St. Mary Magdalene Church, Nanapanee.

On June 10th, the marriage took place of Miss Jean McGreer, the elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles McGreer, Riverside, to Bertran Hawley, Nanapanee, in the Church of St. Mary Magdalene. The ceremony was performed by the vicar of the parish, Rev. J. H. Coleman, M.A., assisted by the brother of the bride, Rev. A. H. McGreer, M.A., D.D., principal of Bishop's University, Lennoxville, Que.

The bride, given away by her father, looked very pretty in a gown of blonde canton crepe, with a hat of the same shade, and carried a beautiful bouquet of sunburst roses. Her only attendant was her sister, Miss Hilda McGreer, who wore a dainty frock of peach color. Her hat was effectively trimmed with rainbow shades, and she carried a bouquet of mauve sweet peas, lily of the valley and maiden hair fern. Gustave Berndt was groomsmen. Prof. Baird played the wedding music.

After the ceremony a reception was held at "Riverside," which was attended by the bride's immediate family. A pleasant feature of the occasion was the reading of messages of congratulation and good wishes, which included cablegrams from Oxford, England, and Paris. The list of the bride's presents was a varied and most interesting one.

The happy couple left late in the afternoon for Ottawa, amid showers of confetti and good wishes. After a brief honeymoon they will return and make their home in Nanapanee.

EMBROIDERY IN BRIGHT COLORS

The lines to this gown of white georgette crepe are simple enough, but the wide band of wool embroidery in bright colors and the fringed hemline make it very striking and unusual. A scarf of black illusion makes the oriental looking turban, one end of which is wound about the throat and falls over the shoulder.

How Should I Wean My Baby?

This is a serious problem to many mothers. Weaning should always be done gradually, beginning about the seventh month, giving one or two bottle feedings during the day, increasing the number of bottle feedings gradually, until weaning is accomplished. Borden's Eagle Brand Milk is so like mother's milk in taste and ease of digestion that it can be given alternately with breast milk without causing abrupt weaning.

In this paper from time to time you will find an advertisement of Borden's Eagle Brand Milk, a food that has raised more healthy babies than all the prepared infant foods combined. Cut out the advertisement and mail it to The Borden Company Limited, Montreal, and they will send you, free of charge, instructions for feeding your baby, and a Baby Welfare and a Baby Record Book. Or, just write the Company, mentioning this paper, and they will be sent.
