Novel Handwork Articles.

The woman who is interested in handwork can always be certain of receiving new suggestions for the exercise of her talents. For most embroidery shops and the fancywork sections of large department stores, are continually putting forth original ideas. Here are some of the new things I have recently seen:

Washable Bunny For Baby: These were made of Turkish toweling and stuffed. A few stitches with black embroidery silk and two ruby beads indicated bunny's whiskers and eyes. The maker may have used a pattern such as all pattern-manufacturers bring out; but the little animal looked as if it had been made from a "free hand" outline on two pieces of the toweling, the two parts then being sewed together.

These sanitary toys ought to sell well in gift shops.

Crepe Cover For Small Hot-Water Bag: We have all seen the crocheted covers, the flannel covers, and the silk-ribbon covers for these tiny bags (which are used either for an infant, or for a grown-up's tooth ache). But the newest thing is the crepe cover, made of two thicknesses of the material. How handy they must be for the busy woman who has stones and pearls. The close bodice and full skirt make the combination that Paris decries at the present time, and the panel sash breaks the line and adds interest.

was read by Mrs. K. Blacklock, president of the W.M.S., expressing esteem and appreciation of the services rendered by Rev. Mr. England, mingled with regrets at their having to leave. This was accompanied by the presentation of a clock by Mrs. William McKendry. A few well-chosen words by Mrs. R. J. Vair amply testified to the kindly feelings between pastor and people. Refreshments were served and the party broke up by singing "Auld Lang Syne."

Elected To Office. The East Hastings Women's Institute has chosen these officers: President, Mrs. James Garbutt; first vice-president, Mrs. Donald Leslie; second vice-president, Mrs. Earl Sayers; secretary-treasurer, Miss Carrie M. Reid.

no time to stop and iron! Yet they can also be dainty—made in pale pink, pale blue, or sprigged design—with a ruffle at top and crocheted draw-strings.

The New "In Sets" for the High Chair Tray: Every mother knows how much time it requires to clean cereal or other gruel from the high chair tray after baby has had his meal, and then to dry the wood of the tray. Realizing that this is so, manufacturers have now put a new article on the market: an enamelware tray which fits into the wooden tray of the chair. But a home-made in-set tray can be made out of oilcloth, which will be equally as useful as the enamelware one. Simply fit white oilcloth into the chair's tray (no seams!) and lap the corners over to give it the right shape. Then cut it level with the top edge of the wooden tray and bind it with tape.

The Nursery Clock: The modern mother puts a clock of some sort in the nursery. For, she feels that it will awaken an early interest in time-telling, encouraging the curious little one to master this milestone of learning. Small clocks make less noise, of course, and "the very latest thing" in nursery clocks is a small nickel time piece set in the centre of a painted animal, its race coming through a circle cut in the thin board of the animal's silhouette. This is a handwork article for the boy who owns a jig-saw.
