On Tuesday afternoon some bright little girls and boys gave an interesting entertainment at the home of Dr. and Mrs. James Miller, Albert street. Not only were toys bought which will give joy to the little ones, but some warm bedding for the coming winter was purchased at the request of the matron.

A "Butterfly" Sweater. The following directions are for knitting a size 36 sweater with the new "butterfly" sleeves:

Buy eight balls of lustrafloss yarn, a pair of number five and one-half knitting needles, and a size four crochet hook. Begin by casting on 70 stitches. *Knit plain ten rows (five ridges), and on the next row insert needle in stitch, wrap twice, knit the stitch repeat between these stars to end of row. Next row purl, dropping wrapped stitches, * repeat between these marks (*); once; then repeat for entire sweater, increasing in the next five plain knit stripes one stitch each side on the first, fifth and ninth rows and two stitches each side on the third and seventh rows till there are 140 stitches.

Now work without increase for eight and one-half inches (about nine stitches make two inches; about ten rows make one inch). There should be 13 rows of dropped stitches from bottom. On next plain knit row, * work to within four stitches of end of needle; turn and work to within four stitches of opposite end, * repeat between these marks (*) till you have eight groups of four stitches not worked, on each needle.

On next row knit 20 stitches, bind off 36 stitches (this should be the fifth plain knit row of stripes). On remaining 20 stitches work two inches, working across four more stitches from short rows every second row. Make other shoulder in this same way.

Cast on 36 stitches for front of neck and continue working four more stitches each side till there are 140 stitches on row. Finish front same as back. Pick up 70 stitches around armhole, knit nine rows plain, bind off on wrong side and work single, crochet around neck.

This is a slip-over sweater which is comfortably loose and graceful about the hips; its sleeves are elbow length and formed like a "kimono sleeve" on dresses, except that they are looser under the arm.

The careful woman never hangs a sweater on a hook or nail, when it is not in use, as that stretches the garment out of shape. Either keep it in a drawer or else hang it through an embroidery hoop which you have wound with a pretty ribbon (and hang the hoop to a nail).

The Editor Hears

That the wise ones say we are going to have a dry warm August so the campers, who have felt we have had more rain than they care for, may look forward to a fine month. The farmers, however, are thinking of the hay that has depreciated in value owing to the constant showers which have made it difficult to cure. But the other crops are splendid and the pastures were rarely as green in the last week of July.

That Lady Haig was greatly delighted with her trip to the coast and commented upon the arrangements made by the Canadian railways for the comfort of the party. She had a splendid view of the famed falls of Niagara, when accompanied only by General McBrien and the pilot, she flew across them and saw this great waterfall from the air.

That the band concerts in Macdonald Park will be one of the great attractions of the big celebration. The visitors will no doubt wander into the old Martello tower, now turned into Kingston's museum, where the relics of the old days will be kept.

That the Kingston shops are putting out their most attractive wares for the "Old Girls" who will no doubt replenish their wardrobe in their home town. The late summer sales always are a lure to the woman who wants to dress well on a small income, and to those, who no matter how large their income may be, dearly love a bargain.

That Lady Diana Manners and her two sisters each receive $100,000 by the will of the late Duke of Rutland, whose estate is valued at about $4,650,000, and the widow also receives $100,000. Most of the remainder of the estate is left to the son, the present Duke.

That Miss Nina Gage, an American woman who has organized nursing work in China, was elected president of the World's Congress of the International Council of Nurses at Helsingfors, Finland. The sixth world's convention of the organization which has been in session there under the presidency of Baroness Mannerheim, ended on Monday. Miss Noyes, another American nurse, was elected first vice-president, and Miss Gunn, of Canada, second vice-president. Miss Grace Martin, formerly of Kingston and now of the staff of the Royal Victoria Hospital, Montreal, is among the nurses gathered at Helsingfors.

Let your sewing machine help with the mending. Don't waste time sewing by hand when it can be done just as well on the machine.

If you want to increase the caloric value of soup serve it with grated cheese as the French and Italians do.
