The Housekeeper's Clothes Expenditure

At this period of the summer the average woman has bought, or made, all the wash dresses she intends to use this season. So she may now settle back for a moment and ask herself the question: "Have I spent my clothes money wisely?"

The Editor Hears

That to-day the oldest city in Ontario opens its doors to its sons and daughters from near and far and gives them its welcome with both hands. Flags are flying from many of the public buildings and from many a private home.

Of Great Literary Excellence

Atherton Mercer, in Contemporary Review: Whatever religious beliefs men may hold, whatever theories regarding the inspiration of the Bible, there are few scholars who do not admit that from the point of view of literary excellence—in beauty of imagery, in poetic diction and lofty conception, the Bible is unsurpassed by any literature in the possession of the English race.

other season, just ahead, for which we must purchase clothes: and we can deny ourselves something in this fall season which will balance our unnecessary summer expenditure. The woman who has an automobile, especially, can practise this economy; one can hop into a car with an old dress on, perhaps covered with a sweater, and drive up before grocer or butcher—but if one must walk to market, mercilessly exposed to the critical eye of every passerby, the old dress and the sweater cannot be worn.

Only the woman who has gotten through a season making the old things do a little longer, and putting into the bank that $10 or $15 which she would otherwise have spent on new clothes, will understand me when I say that there is a real thrill in refusing to let false pride, public opinion, or fashion, dominate us! The years are rolling on for all of us, and the woman who does not have to save for her old age is the exception. Perhaps our neighbor who is now "the fashion plate of the community" will not in 20 years' time, be able to afford what we thrifty women can then afford. So let us look ahead and ask ourselves whether it is better to have our little triumph now—or later on?

All inquiries addressed to Miss Kirkman, in care of the "Efficient Housekeeping" department, will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question. Be sure to use YOUR full name, street number, and the name of your city and state.

THIS IS Old Home Week in Kingston

AND TO OLD KINGSTONIANS, THAT MEANS SOMETHING

In coming back to visit your old town, you will relive days and recount occasions which "sought of tug at the heart strings." You will recall familiar spots and industrial centers which have grown and done credit to your home town.

Among such institutions, you will find that the WEBER PIANO COMPANY still turns out a piano which has lost none of its prestige, being among the first rank of Canadian made instruments.

You will also learn that this great company retails its pianos solely through us in Kingston, and it will no doubt occur to you that you could do nothing better than to have one of them shipped to your home town.
