THE V.O.N. TAGGERS COLLECTED $666. The total amount collected by the taggers for the V.O.N. on Wednesday was $666. The city was well "manned" and the ladies were most faithful and energetic. The committee is especially thankful to those who assisted them in the arduous work of tagging. They will be glad to receive further subscriptions from friends of the women and children of the district in which they work.

WEDDINGS. Davy-Allen. Sydenham street United church was the scene of an extremely pretty wedding at high noon on Thursday, August 6th, when Edith Louise, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Allen, Brock street, became the bride of Melgar L. Davy, only son of Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Davy, Wellington street. The bride, who was the picture of girlish loveliness in her gown of ivory brocaded satin with veil and orange blossoms and shower bouquet of sweetheart roses and lilies of the valley, entered the church on the arm of her father to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march rendered by her cousin, Mrs. W. Mack, of Montreal. Rev. J. H. Miller of Kemptville, uncle of the bride, performed the ceremony. The attendants were the bridesmaids, Miss Marion Allen and Miss Emma Brown, Toronto, who wore gowns of French lace over colored crepe slips with tulle trimmed hats to match, and the flower-girl, little Miss Keitha Davy, in maize crepe de chine. The groom was supported by Mr. Edward B. Vanalystine.

During the signing of the register, Miss Ellis Wood of Ottawa, the bride's cousin, sang "Oh, Promise Me." Following the ceremony a dainty buffet luncheon was served at the residence of Mrs. R. W. Allen, the bride's grandmother, on University avenue.

The bride's going away costume was an ensemble suit of rosewood georgette over printed crepe and French hat. The bride's mother wore printed grey georgette with corsage bouquet of opelia roses. The groom's mother was attired in black beaded crepe de chine with corsage of mauve sweet peas. Mrs. R. W. Allen was gowned in black embroidered crepe with hat to match. The groom's gift to the bride was a fox fur scarf, to the bridesmaids and flower girls rings, to the groomsmen, a fountain pen and pencil.

The out-of-town guests were Dr.

That a homecomer from the west tells the following story: "I was looking at picture post cards of Kingston to send home to my friends in Saskatchewan in one of the city shops and tried to make a complete set of pictures of the well-known historic buildings, as well as to get some views of the parks and streets with the trees that seem so wonderful to westerners. I was told by the saleswoman that the next lot of cards would be even less complete, "for," she said, "the publishers tell us that we have altogether too many places of interest for the size of our population." The "Old Boy," laughingly said: "Well that is certainly an uncommon fault."

That the parades have so far been wonderful and to-night's big Mardi Gras will be the climax. As many people as possible will be in fancy dress and many of them will be masqued. The town has given itself over to the spirit of fun, and such harmless fun as most of it is could not disturb the most spiritual citizen.

That every trade and every interest is represented in the crowds that throng the streets to see the parades or to take part in the community dances held in various parts of the city. People who never thought of dancing on the streets find themselves responding to the music and the spirit of gaiety. Cotillions bring out the older generations and some of them try, and very successfully too, to dance the fox trots and waltzes of to-day.

That a small boy, who was dancing up and down with excitement as he watched the big parade on Tuesday night, called out in a shrill tone: "Gee! Ain't you glad you are alive." Whether it was all pure joy or whether he thought he would prefer 20th century costume to one of several generations ago it is hard to tell, but he raised a laugh at any rate from the crowd that was ready for fun of any kind.

That the parades deserve even greater applause that they received from the crowd. Possibly everyone was too absorbed to clap but the men and women who were public spirited enough to take all the pains to get up the parade and to walk miles on a hot night may not have realized that the admiration was there if un-

Sour Milk Cakes. Hot weather brings its problem of using up the milk which has accidentally soured. The following cake recipes, calling for sour milk, will all be found delicious on the home table. Sour Milk Chocolate Cake: Mix together one cup of granulated sugar and four teaspoons of cocoa powder. Add a pinch of salt and then cream into this dry mixture two tablespoons of lard. Now flavor with one teaspoon of vanilla and mix in one cup of sour milk in which is dissolved one teaspoon of baking soda. After mixing well, add two cups of ordinary bread flour and turn the batter into two buttered layer cake pans and bake twenty minutes in a hot oven. Put together with ordinary uncooked chocolate icing. Sour Milk Spice Cake: Cream together one-half cup of butter and one-half cup of granulated sugar. Add the beaten yolks of two eggs, one-half cup of sour milk in which one teaspoon of baking soda has been dissolved. Also add one and one-half cups of bread flour sifted with one-third teaspoon of ground cloves, one teaspoon of ground cinnamon, and one-fourth teaspoon of ground nutmeg. Last, fold in the two stiffly-whipped egg whites and add one-expressed. Give them a good ovation to-night. That no one with a car should let a man or woman with a badge walk while they have room to take them in. Everyone is busy but take long enough to stop and give them a lift. Some kind people do that to their fellow-citizens but there are more of them who cannot be bothered. However, you may feel about the town folk, don't forget the homecomers are our guests.
