A WARM CHAMPION OF THE NEW BEER

"I Can Get Drunk on It Every Day in the Week," Man Says.

The new beer, known to some as 4.4 and to others as 4 by 4, had a warm champion in the police court on Thursday morning, when a thirty-one year old man, who was gathered in by the police early in the morning, was arraigned on a charge of being "intoxicated in a public place."

"But you must have had something stronger," said the acting magistrate, "you could not get intoxicated on beer alone."

"Yes, I can," explained the accused. "I can get drunk every day in the week on this new beer, if I can get enough of it. It was shown in the Toronto police court, that a man could get drunk on the new beer."

"I will remand the case for a day in order to give you time to talk it over," remarked the C.J.

A citizen was before the court, for allowing his dog to run at large. Another citizen was on hand to tell the court how the dog had attacked him on the street. He showed the acting magistrate a hole in his trousers, and also a wound on his leg. He blamed the dog for all the damage.

The owner of the dog stated that the canine would not attack any person.

The owner of the dog was ordered to send it to the country or have it disposed of. He was also ordered to make good the damage to the man's trousers.

"It is against the by-law to keep a vicious dog," remarked the court.

American View of What is Being Done to Kingston Harbor.

The following despatch from Ogdensburg, N.Y., under date of August 25th, appears in the Syracuse Post Standard:

"The Canadian government is spending millions of dollars in improving the Kingston harbor in an effort to make that city the deep water terminal for the commerce of the Great Lakes, believing this port will do nothing to antagonize that city in its enterprise. It will be only a few months more before the Welland canal is completed and the Great Lakes freighters can lock through."

"It is because of this that the Kingston harbor improvements are being hastened, to be in readiness for reception of the large lake freighters."

"The question is up to business and marine interests whether Ogdensburg shall become the deep water terminal for commerce of the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence river and a much larger city."

The Late Miss Amy A. Davis, of Adolphustown.

Napanee Express. In the Adolphustown community there still live a few of the third generation of U.E. Loyalist descendants, but Miss Amy A. Davis, who passed away on Sunday last, August 16th, was one of the older of the fourth generation. She was a girl of seven when the Hay Bay Methodist church was abandoned and the new, white frame church succeeding it was opened within sight of her home in the second concession. Outside that home her chief activities for the next quarter of a century were centred about that church and the schoolhouse on the opposite side of the road.

Amy was the fourth child of Archibald C. Davis and Amy Ann Huffnall, there being nine in all. Archibald's grandfather, Henry Davis, homesteaded lot 16 in the second concession of Adolphustown, on which Amy was born and spent her whole life. Her mother was a daughter of Jacob Huffnall, of South Fredericksburg, whose Dutch U. E. Loyalist father, Andrew, homesteaded about a mile to the East of the Davis homestead. Thus the British and Dutch families intermarried in those early days in this country and produced a hardy race of people. The Huffnall family name has entirely disappeared, but the descendants under other names are scattered far and wide over the whole continent.

In Centennial year 1884, Amy saw the present brick U. E. L. Memorial Church erected on the site of the white church, and from that time to the present, she has been closely identified with every form and movement of the Christian life of her beloved neighbors, and many intimate friends.

In the home of a large family of brothers and a sister, she always faithfully performed her part, freely giving her time and energies for the welfare of others, her only reward being the satisfaction of knowing that her many intimate friends, old and young, were enjoying the benefits of her unselfish devotion.

Outside a couple of visits with a brother in Manitoba, her whole life was spent quietly in her rural home.

Want Mayor Angrove For Fourth Term

While Mayor Thomas Angrove has made no announcement, as it is too early yet, his wide circle of friends are asking him to stand for a fourth year as chief magistrate of the city. It is reported that both Ald. Larturney and Ald. Nash are likely candidates for the mayor's chair.

One friend of Mayor Angrove stated that His Worship is sure of two more terms, and even went so far as to predict that he would outdo the record of "Tommy" Church, of Toronto.

Firemen Were Called. The firemen were given a run shortly before 1 o'clock Thursday afternoon, to the home of Mrs. Hamm, Lower Brock street, to extinguish a fire which had started in a pile of rags. No serious damage was reported.

Canada's Story Day by Day

August 27th.

The conquest of Canada terminating with the capture of Quebec in 1759 had been going on for several years previous, and one of the most important episodes was the capture of Fort Frontenac where Kingston now stands, on this day in 1758. Bradstreet was the man selected to make the seizure of this vital stronghold and with three thousand men he left the site of Oswego on August 22nd. He landed in the vicinity of Fort Frontenac three days later. On the night of the 26th he made camp two hundred yards from the fort and next morning, without a struggle, and without the loss of a single man on either side, Fort Frontenac was surrendered to the British commander. A hundred and ten prisoners were handed over, and nine vessels, the whole of the French force on Lake Ontario, were seized. The crews of the vessels, however, escaped. Next to the loss of Louisburg, this was the heaviest loss the French had experienced, as it cut in two the territory of New France.

Small fish and tadpoles often are caught up out of shallow water by eddies of air and carried a distance of several miles before they are dropped. Washington, D.C., had a good all of a dwarfed camel, believed to be 1,800,000 years old.
