interest and it should be our duty and privilege to see that an interest be provided to develop the boys and girls into the kind of men and women Canada needs. These and kindred organizations teach unselfishness and team work and play. They give the girls and boys a love for the great out-of-doors and they do more to close the objectionable places of amusement than all the strictures laid upon them. A negative policy is seldom a successful one. Give the young people work to do in a good cause, provide them with an interest outside themselves and half the regrettable stories that come to our ears would cease to be true.

WEDDINGS.

Robinson-Leverman.

The marriage took place quietly recently in Halifax of Gladys Treby Leverman, of Halifax, and Croft P. Robinson, of Toronto, son of L. P. Robinson, now of Toronto, formerly of Kingston. The bride has been prominent in I.O.D.E. circles and has done wonderful work for the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, both in Halifax and Toronto. The groom, who is a highly valued member of the staff of the Canada Life Assurance Company, served for three years with Queen's Military Hospital in France. Mr. and Mrs. Robinson will reside in Toronto.

New Colors in Britain.

London, Aug. 31.—As a step towards the achievement of British control of British fashions, the leading dyers, manufacturers, makers-up and merchants of the United Kingdom are actively co-operating on eight new shades.

The new colors range from deep gold to cream and from mauve to green. Every one has been given a distinctive name.

Cedarwood is a light brown, tinged with pink. Burnt oak, a darkened autumnal tint. Veronese, a rich red. Orifame, a full gold. Nilesque, a green somewhere between eau-de-Nil and jade.

Aheurette, a derivation of corn-flower blue. Pavlova, a mauve named after the predominating color in the Russian dancer's recent ballets.

The new colors are now being used in silk, cotton, wool, artificial silk and linen; and for scarfs, artificial flowers, belts and bags, as well as garments.

The Editor Hears

That the growth of the women's end of Toronto's big fair is phenomenal. Thirty-three years ago the Women's Art Association was asked to assist in making arrangements for the women's and children's exhibits and not long afterwards Mrs. Willoughby Cummings, then of the staff of the Mail and Empire, and largely interested in women's movements, represented the Council of Women of the small committee formed, and Mrs. Stevens represented the W.T.C.U. on the same committee. This year, many of the speakers are women, and Mrs. J. E. Elliott, a Canadian woman artist who possesses a charming personality, told the story of the beginning of the exhibition of woman's activities that is one of the most interesting features of the C. N. E. The Women's Institutes have a whole wing to themselves and are largely responsible for the success of the undertaking and for the general feeling that even a larger building is necessary for the display of those exhibits of special interest to woman. In other words they have made good.

That a fashion note says women's garments are to be more elaborate this year and consequently more expensive. Embroideries, and decorations of all kinds take time and therefore money but the clever girls will do this work themselves and have the frock made by a dressmaker or else make the garment themselves. Business and professional women have not much time for this kind of work, so the increased expenditure will come more heavily upon them as they are expected to conform in a measure at least to the rules laid down by Dame Fashion.

That the campers are making the most of the last of the summer weather and many week-end parties are being arranged for Labor Day. This being the last out-of-doors holiday it is always looked forward to with zest and great is the disappointment if the weather shows signs that autumn is at hand.

That the Girl Guides, the Boy Scouts, the Sea Cadet Corps and all young people's organizations that provide sane healthy interests for their members should be encouraged. Youth is restless and on the lookout for a new
