"ORIGINALS" GOOD IN "THUMBS UP" Good Music, Clever Dancing and Comedy Crowded Into a Fine Programme.

In entirely new caste, The Originals, who fought their way to favor with theatre-goers shortly after the war, appeared at the Grand Theatre on Friday night in the opening of a two-days engagement, "Thumbs Up."

It would be impossible to describe each number fully in the space allotted but suffice to say, there was not one draggy number in the whole performance and the audience showed its appreciation of the efforts of the Originals by whose impersonation the chic modern girl, left nothing to be desired in his role and his top-dancing and his apparent feminine grace caused no slight wonder.

Two very amusing sketches were put on by the company that were the cause of much merriment. "Oh Be Yourself," depicted what people really do and say at a tea or some social affair, and then in the second part, depicting the same but this time unfolding what people really would like to say at such affairs. It was a very amusing scene and provoked great laughter.

"The Princess Must Marry" was also a very funny scene and despite the "stagnation" of the court there was plenty of humor crowded into the little sketch.

Gene Pearson proved himself as big a favorite as before and his singing and clever impersonation drew the admiration of the audience. The company will present "Thumbs Up" for the last time tonight at the Grand.
