FIRST STEAMER ON NORTH PACIFIC COAST

R. A. Caughey, Albert Street, to Present Queen's Museum With Its Picture.

During the summer the Whig published an article describing a paper knife, made of teak wood, the hardest wood known, from a fragment of the steamer Beaver, the first steamer on the North-Pacific Coast. It is an interesting coincidence that as a result of the article, it was learned that R. A. Caughey, of the penitentiary staff, who resides at 350 Albert street, has not only a picture and a description of the boat but, some thirty-five years, when he lived in Vancouver, was on the wreck of the boat as it lay in the narrows which connect Puget Sound with Vancouver Harbor. It was then in fair shape, stranded on the rocks under a precipitous edge of Stanley Park, but it has since been pounded to pieces. Mr. Caughey intends to make Queen's museum a present of the framed photograph.

The description, which accompanies the photograph, applies to the vessel some half century after it came out from England in 1835. It reads as follows:

"Fifty-five years have passed and a generation of men have come and gone since the Hudson's Bay Company's steamer Beaver floated down the river Thames, the British Channel, and went out into the open trackless sea, rounded Cape Horn, clove the placid waters of the Pacific Ocean, and anchored at length, after a passage of 163 days, at Astoria, then one of the chief towns on the Pacific Coast. Built and equipped at a period when the problem of oceanic navigation was about to be solved, is it any wonder that the little steamer which was destined to traverse two oceans—one of them scarcely known outside books of travel—was the object of deep and engrossing interest from the time that her keel was first laid, until the morning that she passed out of sight amidst the encouraging cheers of thousands on either shore, and the answering salvos of her own guns, on a long voyage to an unknown sea? Titled men and women watched the progress of construction. A duchess broke the traditional bottle of champagne over her bow, and bestowed the name she has ever since proudly worn. The engines and boilers, built by Bolton and Watt (the latter a son of the great Watt), were placed in their positions on board, but it was not considered safe to work them on the passage, so she was rigged as a brig and came out under sail. A bark accompanied her as a convoy to assist in case of accident; but the Beaver set all canvas, ran out of sight of her protector, and reached the Columbia River 22 days ahead. Capt. Horne was the name of the first commander of the Beaver; he brought her out, and one can well imagine the feeling of pride with which he bestrode the deck of his brave little ship, which carried six guns—nine pounders. Soon after reaching Astoria the Beaver got up steam and greatly astonished the residents by her performances. She steamed up to Nisqually, then one of the Hudson's Bay Company's chief stations on the Pacific Coast. Here Capt. McNeill took command of the Beaver, and Capt. Horne, retiring to one of the Company's posts on the Columbia River, perished in 1837 in Death's Rapids by the upsetting of a boat. From that period until the steamer passed into the hands of the Imperial Hydrographers, the history of the Beaver was that of most of the Company's trading vessels. She ran north and south, east and west, collecting furs and carrying goods to and from the stations for many years. Amongst the best known of her officers during the period were Capt. Dodds, Brochie, Scarborough, Sangster, Rudlin and others, all of whom have passed away long since. It is believed that not a single person who came out in the Beaver in 1835 is now alive, and nearly all the Company's officers, with a few exceptions, who received her on her arrival at the Columbia River, are gone too."

NAPANEE

Napanee, Oct. 5.—Rev. John A. Doyle, superintendent of Missions, Manitoba, preached in Grace church Sunday morning and in Trinity church at evening service. Dr. Reita Gifford-Kilborn, Chengtu, China, was the speaker at Trinity church in the morning and at Grace church in the evening.

Harvest Festival services were held yesterday at the Church of St. Mary Magdalene. The church was beautifully decorated. The special preacher, morning and evening, was Rev. J. Lyons, M.A., rector of Picton. The anthem, "I Will Praise thee, O Lord" was well rendered. At evensong, the beautiful anthem "Ye Shall Dwell in the Land" (Stainer) was splendidly rendered; the solo parts taken by J. Geale Daly and Miss G. Robinson were particularly good. Amongst those from a distance who attended the Hall-Dibb wedding last week were: Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Dobb and Miss Peggy Dobb, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Hall and Miss Loretta Hall, Brockville; Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Miller, and Master Duane Miller, Brockville; Dr. H. Featherston, Ottawa; Mr. J. H. Lackie, Albany, N.Y.; Mr. Gordon Miller, Guelph.

Mrs. William A. Daly, Robinson street, is spending a few weeks with friends at Montreal.

Mrs. W. H. Millsap, East street, has returned home from a visit to Galt.

Miss Robinson, V.N., of Montreal, and a graduate of Toronto University, has taken the place of Miss Barclay this week.

Miss Mildred Brown, who has been spending a few days in town, has returned to St. Anne de Bellevue.

GANANOQUE

Gananoque, Oct. 5.—M. J. Lee, collector of customs, is in New York enjoying his vacation with his brother, Dr. Royal Lee.

Bruce Hall and Edwin Higgins, Ottawa, spent the week-end in town.

Mr. Baxter of the fair, and previously with the Dominion Store, left yesterday for his home in Brockville. While here Mr. Baxter made many friends who will be sorry to learn that he is leaving town.

Mrs. Mac Abernethy and little son, David, Ottawa, spent the week-end here with friends, and are going on to Kingston today to spend a few days there before returning home.

W. J. Wing and Leonard Littlejohn, who have been enjoying a week's hunting and fishing out north and in Quebec, returned Saturday evening.

Miss Alice Barry, R.N., St. Louis, Mo., who has been the guest of Capt. and Mrs. Murray Barry, Prescott, for the past couple of months, spent the week-end with Mrs. LaQue, en route home.

Congratulations to George Gibson, one of the Argus Co.'s most energetic salesmen, who has just been advised that he stood in third place for the past quarter among 120 salesmen of both the United States and Canada.

J. E. Jerome, Cornwall, attending Queen's, spent the week here with Frank LaQue.

That Gananoque will be well represented at the Varsity-Queen's game next Saturday in Kingston is evidenced by the fact that C. S. MacKenzie alone has made reservations for over thirty.

John Street residents are the next on the list to petition the Council for the paving of that street between Stone and Charles. This particular street is used probably more than any other in town by dray-men as a thoroughfare.

ANNIVERSARY DAY AT ST. LUKE'S CHURCH

Special Services Held on Sunday Were Very Largely Attended.

Special services held on Sunday marked the 35th anniversary of St. Luke's Anglican Church. A very large congregation was in attendance at the morning service, and Rev. Canon Austin Smith, the special preacher for the occasion, gave a very able discourse.

The church, which has just been newly decorated, presented a pleasing appearance, and cut flowers were placed on the altar. The choir rendered special music at both the morning and evening services.

The attendance in the evening was so large that the building was filled to capacity when the Bishop of the Diocese accompanied by his chaplain, Canon Jones, attended the service. The Bishop preached an inspiring sermon while Canon Jones read the lesson, and the rector of the parish, Rev. J. dePencier Wright, conducted the service. Special offerings were taken during the day and the response was most generous.
