PAINTING IN CANADA, PRESENT AND FUTURE

A Lecture in Convocation Hall by Prof. Barker Fairley of Toronto.

"Painting in Canada; its present and its future," was the subject of which Professor Barker Fairley, Toronto, was advertised to speak in Convocation Hall Wednesday evening at the first of a series of University lectures given under the auspices of the Art and Lecture committee of Queen's. However, Prof. Fairley, while speaking on the founding of a modern and distinctive Canadian school of art, did not forget the older school of which J. W. Morrice and C. W. Jeffrey were exponents. Contemporary painting in Canada began to take the form of a definite school in 1912 when a group of men gathered about a picture, "The Edge of the Maple Wood," painted by A. Y. Jackson, then living in Montreal. A later picture by Jackson, "Ships at Halifax," shown on the screen, was one of the Canadian pictures shown at Wembley and purchased for the Tate gallery, London, Eng. The work of the "group of seven" was greatly admired by Prof. Fairley, who considers that these Toronto men, who have been known under this name for about five years, are putting the clear, vivid coloring of the north, where much of their painting is done, into their pictures—those pictures with a flat surface, "flat as a carpet, but a magic carpet," said the speaker.

Among the pictures shown on the screen was the well-known one of "The Jack Pine," by Tom Thompson, the original in its vivid coloring, startlingly yet beautiful, to be seen in the gallery at Ottawa, being familiar to many of the audience. The artist, whose boyhood was spent on a farm near Owen Sound, loved the north, painted it as he saw it, and lost his life in Algonquin Park. The trees in the foreground, the dependence on form to get the required depth, sharp cut shadows on the snow, the silhouette of pine trees characteristic of this school, truly give the idea of strength and original treatment of subjects that cannot always be said to attract. Landscapes by Lorne Harris, Macdonald and others and a few war pictures by Varley, an Englishman who lives in Canada, and whose portrait of Hon. Vincent Massey was thrown on the screen were among the works of Canadian artists of the school of decorative art, whose work was shown. And as Varley had some time ago painted a portrait of Dr. James Cappon, the audience were allowed to have a good look at it on the platform at the end of this exceedingly interesting lecture. They were assured by the lecturer that it had historic value as one of the first portraits painted by a man he considered a foremost Canadian portrait painter.

Prof. Fairley was introduced to the large audience by Dr. Cuthbert Gummer, and Principal Taylor spoke a few words of appreciation at the conclusion of the lecture.

HOME-AND SCHOOL CLUB. Of Frontenac School Holds an Interesting Meeting.

A very enthusiastic meeting of the Frontenac Home and School Club was held in the Assembly Hall on Tuesday. The first part of the meeting was taken up with business regarding the coming tea and sale. The conveners of the various tables gave a report as to how the work was progressing. The representatives to the central council were appointed as follows: Mrs. Thomas Ellerton, Mrs. Wright and Miss E. Pound. Following the business meeting Mr. Baldwin gave a talk on the duties of a school trustee, which was full of valuable information. A musical programme was then given consisting of a piano solo by Mrs. Rose, duet by Mr. and Mrs. Henry, comic solo by Mr. Howarth, violin solo by Mr. Strachan, and a vocal solo by Mrs. Frizzell. All were splendidly rendered and received hearty applause. At the close of the programme Mr. Baldwin moved a hearty vote of thanks to the entertainers. Delicious refreshments were then served by the social committee.

A PLAY PRESENTED By Young People of Queen Street United Church.

On Tuesday night a very enjoyable comedy play in two acts, entitled, "Leave It to Polly," was presented in Queen Street United Sunday School hall by members of the Young People's League. It was a boarding school for young girls and Polly, whose part was taken by Miss K. Armstrong, acted as leader of the girls. Those taking part as the other students were Miss Gage Law, Miss Elvira Belch, Mrs. G. N. Williamson; Miss Grace Mayhew and Miss Jessie Bruce. Miss Mildred Lee took the part of a junior teacher and Mrs. H. Law as principal of the school. Miss P. Nesbit acted as Annie, the maid, and Mrs. E. W. Skinner as Miss Bedelia Kitten, a sister of the principal and visitor at the school. Between acts, Miss Mildred Lee entertained the audience in her pleasing way with a recitation.

MR. JAMES HALLIDAY HAD HIS SCALP TORN

In an Automobile Collision—Was Taken to the General Hospital.

Mr. James Halliday, reeve of Portsmouth and Fred Hartrick of Portsmouth were injured on Thursday morning in a motor car accident at the corner of Sydenham and William streets. Mr. Halliday and Mr. Hartrick were driving down William street, when a car driven by Frank Newman, who had Earl Gourdiar and E. J. Warburton in the car with him, came along Sydenham street, going towards William. The two cars came together at the corner, the car in which Mr. Halliday was driving being thrown against the hydrant at the corner and being badly wrecked.

The Halliday car was turned quickly in order to avoid the crash and in the collision Mr. Halliday's scalp was torn across the top of his head and left hanging over one ear. Mr. Hartrick received cuts about the head and a third man, whose name could not be learned, who was in the back seat of the car, was thrown right out of the car but was unhurt.

Mr. Halliday and Mr. Hartrick were rushed to the General Hospital, and Dr. A. R. B. Williamson took charge of Mr. Halliday and the scalp was stitched. He will be in hospital for some days.

Mr. Hartrick suffered minor injuries to the head but he was able to leave the hospital later on in the morning. None of those in the Newman car were hurt.

Mr. Halliday, who has worked hard in the present election campaign, insisted that he be allowed out to vote to-day and Dr. Williamson stated that if nothing serious developed Mr. Halliday would be allowed to be carried out, taken to the polls to cast his vote, and returned to hospital.

Passed Away While READING HIS BIBLE

Sudden Death of Mr. George Howard, a Well-Known Resident of Wellington.

Wellington, Oct. 29.—Mr. George Howard died suddenly while sitting in his home on Maple avenue, Monday morning. Mr. Howard, who had always enjoyed good health, had an accident at Greer's factory on Saturday, Oct. 17th. He was piling cases of canned goods, and lost his balance, falling to the floor. This not only gave him a severe shock, but injured his head and shoulder. He was under the doctor's care, but on Monday morning he got up and ate a hearty breakfast, and then sat down to study his Bible, and it was while reading that he passed away.
