THE PLOT OF BIMBO

Sylvia Vanderveer, an heiress to the Bimbo Oil Fields, has made a promise to her dying father that she will not marry until her aunt Portia, whose specialty is bugs, has married.

Jack Damon, a civil engineer, in love with Sylvia, promises her that they will find a man for Aunt Portia right here on the Island of Bimbo, if Sylvia will marry him, when his Company builds a railroad to meet the railroad the Government is building. Jack plans that Aunt Portia shall marry Lord Algebran, an Englishman, but Algy falls in love with Princess Lillikoza, a native of Bimbo.

General Cadenza, Chief of the Bimbo Governmental Staff, is worried very much by the Princess, Georgianna Tibbs, and Agnes McNally, a skirt drummer, who are in love with Hiram Budd, of Kingston, who is over here with his motion picture camera, to take some pictures. However, they think him to be the Governor sent from Canada with a new machine gun.

The three ladies finally draw straws to see who marries the Governor. Hiram holds the straws and peeks to see that Agnes draws the right one. Hiram is telling the people about his moving picture when a messenger brings in a telegram from General Cadenza stating that the new Governor was delayed in starting from Vancouver.

The people want Hiram Budd for the real Governor, but he and Agnes want to go back to Kingston and take Georgianna to her Clarence, who is still waiting for her. Algy and Princess announce their marriage. Jack reads a telegram stating that the railroads met at San Pedro and that he will get his bonus. Portia unconsciously hands the General a bunch of Scarlet Poppies and the Laws of Bimbo read that when one passes a Scarlet Poppy to one of the opposite sex they are legally married—so Portia and General obey the law. Jack and Sylvia can marry now, so they start for Canada on the Steamship Oratilla.
