Orange Plants.
A number of orange seeds, planted just a year ago, by a local gardener, have developed into plants about five inches high, which are growing more rapidly as the days go by. The experimenter has tried the same thing before, but he states that the plants have not taken on such growth as they have this year in any previous attempt. He ascribes this to the use of electric lights to replace the sun's rays, which are absent for so many months in the years.

NEW PASS SYSTEM ON LOCAL STREET CARS Will Mean Reduction in Street Railway Fares—Starts January 4th.

Starting on January 4th, the Kingston Street Railway Company will introduce a new weekly pass system to its customers and the new idea will be carried out as long as public patronage warrants it. This new pass system, which will be tried out in Kingston, has been experimented with in many places and has been found very satisfactory.
The idea is this: A person has the privilege of buying every Monday either on the cars or at the office, a week pass which entitles the holder of the ticket or anyone by whom the pass is held, passage on the street cars at any time during that week. The pass can be used any number of times and anyone in the family or in fact anybody can use that pass until the week is out. These passes are to be sold at 75c and it can be therefore seen at a glance that users of the cars are going to get a still greater reduction in their fares.
This system has worked out wonderfully well in Youngstown, Ohio; Fort Wayne, Ind.; Terre Haute, Ind.; St. John, N.B.; Tacoma, Wash.; Peekskill, N.Y.; Springfield, Mo.; and on the Chicago elevated. This system has been started in Cornwall and has been found to work very satisfactorily.
A person using the car four times a day would reap a great saving from this new system. Instead of it costing $1.20 a week for carfare, the cost would be just 75c using the pass system, which would mean a saving of 45c a week. There is every indication that the new system will be eagerly taken up by the people of Kingston.

HARBOR FROZEN OVER.
May Be Safe for Horses Before End of Week.
On Monday morning the harbor was frozen quite solid, but the steamer Wife Islander was able to smash through to within a short distance of the Wolfe Island wharf, from where passengers and freight were taken on. If the cold weather continues, the steamer will soon be forced to lay up for the winter. Between Garden and Wolfe Islands the ice is very thick and the most trouble was experienced on this part of the trip.
The ice is about two inches thick in most places, but near the wharves is capable of supporting a comparatively heavy weight. Opinion is that the ice will remain intact for the winter and that before the end of the week it will be safe for horses.
