BIRDS.

Louis Driscoll in the New York Times, "Darlings," God said to the birds, "Go now and sing. For men are weary of winter. Go and bring Promise to empty branches." He set them free, Winged to carry His praise, Joyously.

They built in meadow and tree, In barn and croft, They carried the words of love Afar, aloft. They were colored like flowers, Every wing Was pointed and balanced and strong, A marvelous thing.

"Darlings," God said to the birds, "Go now to another place. Men cease to wonder at just At any grace, Leave for a while and then, After barren days, One robin shall make their hearts Awake to praise."

So all the singing birds Lifted their wings to go; They found a path in the blue High way they know. Only the chickadee stayed To sing in the snow.

LORD OF THE FAR HORIZONS.

Lord of the far horizons, Give us the eyes to see Over the verge of sundown, The beauty that is to be, Give us the skill to fashion The task of thy command Eager to follow the pattern We may not understand.

Masters of ancient wisdom And the lore lost long ago, Inspire our foolish reason With faith to seek and know, When the skein of truth is tangled And the load of sense is blind, Foster the fire to lighten Our unillumined mind.

Lord of the lilac ranges That life on the flawless blue, Give us the heart of rapture The earlier ages knew, The spirit glad and ungrudging, And light as the mountain air, To walk with the Sons of Morning Through the glory of Earth the fair, Bliss Carman in "Far Horizons" his latest book.

Necessary Household Linens.

"Please name the fewest articles of household linen I can get along with," writes a bride-to-be who is soon to start her housekeeping. She adds: "Of course I want everything conventional and nice, but no extravagance. There are too many necessary things to buy!"

I believe that the following list comprises both economy and adequate equipment. It embraces cotton and woolen articles as well as linens. Bedroom: Two pairs of sheets for each bed. Two pairs of pillow slips for each bed. One mattress pad for each bed. Two spreads for each bed. One cotton, wool, or down quilt for each bed. From one to two pairs blankets for each bed (one pair is sufficient if it is a good quality of wool. Bureau scarf, dressing table scarf, and bedside table dolly are of course necessary, and it is ideal to have a shoe-bag (that is, a strip of material with many compartments) to hang on the inside of the clothes closet door.

Bathroom: Four hand towels for each person. Four bath towels for each person. Two face cloths for each person. Two bath mats. Two small "guest" towels on which your dinner guest may dry her hands.

Dining Room: One large dinner cloth for "special occasions" such as holiday dinners or more formal guest dinners. One small cloth for fine quality. Four small cloths for every-day use, of cheaper quality (many women use the ecru or natural-color linen for every-day, as it does not soil as quickly as white. Shops sell these with scalloped edges, and napkins to match). You will also need 12 napkins to match your large cloth, about six napkins to match each smaller cloth, and two sets of doilies for breakfast or luncheon. (Some housekeepers, however, prefer to use the square Japanese table covers for breakfasts or the blue-and-white Jap. crepe runners.) Twelve breakfast napkins, at least, are essential, and from six to 12 napkins to match each luncheon set. Many women manage with only one silence cloth, but it is more convenient to have two. Gray or ecru art-crash buffet and side-table runners may be made by hand, decorated at the corners with a small fllet block in gray or ecru linen thread, and a between-meal runner for the dining table of the same material.

Kitchen: The sanitary paper hand-towel saves laundry in the kitchen, but two roller hand towels may also be used. As to dish towels, you will need at least four "glass" towels and four "crash" towels.

All inquiries addressed to Miss Kirkman, in care of the "Efficient Housekeeping" department, will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question. Be sure to use YOUR full name, street number, and the name of your city and province. —The Editor.

Engagement Announced. Mr. and Mrs. Allen Pero, Tweed, announce the engagement of their daughter, Gertrude M., to Mr. William Kinair, of Chicago. The marriage will take place early in February.

Experience is just the business of exchanging a fresh appetite for cynicism. Things even up. Where the winter isn't too hard, the roads are too soft.

The Editor Hears

That a recent speaker in Kingston said that there was no real home without a fireside. That was perhaps going a little too far, because many people have very comfortable homes that lack an open fire. However, there is no doubt that a fireplace is a great comfort and a centre for the family to gather around in winter evenings. It gives the house-keeper more work, it is true, but isn't it worth the trouble?

That eggs took a tumble on Saturday morning and could be bought on the market for fifty cents a dozen. This is a low price for good eggs in January.

That Jack Miner has devised a scheme for trapping crows and killing them humanely. The crow is an enemy to other birds and while the great friend of the Canadian birds does not want to exterminate the crows, he says that unless their numbers are kept down they will exterminate the small birds who so greatly benefit the country and keep the pests of the garden, orchard and farm in check.

That the large audience that listened to the splendid programme given by the Kingston Sea Cadets and those who were interested enough in their work to assist them with music, was much impressed at the improvement in the boys and the increase in their numbers since the entertainment they gave last year. The Navy League is doing something worth while for the boys of Kingston and deserves the whole-hearted support of the community.

That once more we must ask our contributors to sign the items of news sent in to the Editor of the Woman's Page.
