Women Dispose Of this new hygienic pad as easily as tissue -no laundry

COUNTLESS women have discarded old-time "sanitary" pads for a new and better way. A way that offers far greater protection. A way, too, that banishes the old-time problem of disposal. Eight in 10 better-class women now use "KOTEX." Discards as easily as a piece of tissue. No laundry. No embarrassment. Five times as absorbent as ordinary cotton pads. Deodorizes, thus ending ALL danger of offending. Obtainable at all drug and department stores simply by saying "KOTEX." You ask for it without hesitancy. Package of 12 costs only a few cents. Proves old ways a needless risk. In fairness to yourself, try it. KOTEX No laundry—discard like tissue

That "One Increasing Purpose," by A. S. M. Hutchinson, is a book that has called forth widely different expressions of opinion from the reading public. Many people have read it with a pre-conceived idea that they would not like it. They had not cared for the author's novels, "If Winter Comes" and "This Freedom," and therefore were prepared to dislike Mr. Hutchinson's new book. But this novel has in it something that the earlier books seemed to lack, and that is purpose. The first novel of A. S. M. Hutchinson to be widely read and discussed was "If Winter Comes." Written just after the war it was intended to show a phase of life in England at that time. To many of us it seemed an unpleasant book. The English was not particularly good and the characters, although cleverly and strongly drawn, seemed to be struggling with restlessness and unhappiness. In Mr. Hutchinson's next novel "This Freedom," the disastrous results of the determination of the characters to be free from all restraints made the theme of a still more unpleasant book. But in "One Increasing Purpose" the author has seen a light that dispels the dark clouds of pessimism that shadowed his former books, and in a story, not by any means a literary gem and much too long, gradually unfolds his belief in St. Paul's words, "I live, yet not I, but Christ liveth in me," and that the incarnation means not only that God became man but that God is in everyman whom He has made in His own image. And that the Kingdom of Heaven to which the little children belong will come again upon earth when men allow the divine in them to guide them. The family whose members were always doing "Kingdom of Heaven kindnesses" and whose home was an abode of peace and cheerfulness, epitomizes the world as it would be if each man and woman recognized the divine in each other and bound by that sacred bond, "in honor preferred one another." Some of us who have followed Mr. Hutchinson's writings will feel that from having only a vague discontent with modern life, he has awakened to the hope expressed by Tennyson:

"That through all the ages one increasing purpose runs, And the thoughts of men are widen'd with the process of the suns."

It is the old, old gospel of peace on earth to men of good will, the message the angels sang as they announced the stupendous fact that the child was born who was to bear the name "Emmanuel, God with us." There are many criticisms to be made as to the way in which Mr. Hutchinson has developed his idea, but it is here undoubtedly, and we may hope for a more concrete expression of it in the future.

LANTERN SLIDES OF JAPAN. Shown to St. George's Mother's Club on Thursday Evening.

The members of the Mothers' Club of St. George's Cathedral enjoyed a rare treat on Thursday evening, when Mrs. H. F. Woodworth, of Kobe, Japan, showed them her beautiful colored slides of the Flower Kingdom. Some of the pictures shown gave the reason for the name used in compliment to the exquisite flowers of Japan, for great acales bushes, chrysanthemum, Canadians could only dream of, and lotus blossoms blooming among their green leaves, were shown in their natural colors painted by Japanese artists and therefore absolutely correct. The scenery of mountain and lake, Fuji San the sacred mountain of Japan, the modern buildings of Tokio, some of them since destroyed by the earthquake of 1923 and afterwards rebuilt, were shown and also the old, old temples and castles of Japan with their curved roofs, strange architecture and beautifully kept grounds where the stone lanterns characteristic of Japan were seen.

Rev. W. E. Kidd managed the lantern, and afterwards moved a very hearty vote of thanks to Mrs. Woodworth for her kindness in showing the slides and her delightful talk on the country where her husband is Dean of Literature in the college at Kobe.

for 1925 since the last meeting. In a discussion that arose on this point, it was decided to notify the affiliated societies that the constitution set forth in a special clause that the societies that had not paid their fees had no vote at the annual meeting. Nomination papers had been sent back to the secretary from some societies, but not from all for the officers to be installed at the annual meeting of the Kingston Local Council to be held on Feb. 18th. The Lend-a-Hand Circle of the King's Daughters had sent in $5 for the Travellers' Aid and the Charity Circle had sent $10. The matter of the Juvenile Court was brought up and plans were made to press the question with the city council.

air." A teaspoonful of sugar improves nearly all canned vegetables.

Casserole of Vegetables. One cup cooked peas, 1 cup diced cooked beets, 1 cup diced cooked carrots, 1 small head cauliflower, 4 tablespoons butter, 1 tablespoon flour, salt and pepper, 2 tablespoons grated cheese, boiling water. Melt butter, add peas, beets and carrots and shake over a low fire until vegetables are well coated with butter. Sift flour and salt over vegetables and stir carefully with a fork. Put the cauliflower which has stood for an hour head down in cold salted water, in the centre of a buttered casserole. Surround with vegetables and add about 1 cup of boiling water. Season with salt and pepper and cook in a hot oven for 20 minutes. Remove cover, sprinkle with grated cheese and return to oven long enough to melt cheese. Other combinations of vegetables can be used in practically the same way. Beans, corn, tomatoes and a large spanish onion, make a delicious casserole.

Bulbs. The pots of narcissus bulbs recently so popular for indoors growing should be kept in the dark for the first few days, until the roots are well started. Water should be changed weekly and the jar should be filled up daily.

Pesant Jugs. Pesant jugs with quaint designs and bright colors are much in demand for milk pitchers and hot water jugs on the tea table.

Under Water. When peeling onions, hold them under cold water, to prevent the eyes from watering.

Brown Sugar. Brown sugar mixed with the flour in which baked ham is dredged adds a rich flavor.
