The Editor Hears

That the last few days demonstrated fully to the artists and lovers of art who have labored to give the people of Toronto an art gallery that the result of their labors is an unqualified success.

devoted to the various collections given or loaned for the week of the inaugural exhibition. His Honor, the Lieutenant-Governor declared the building open, and the Mendelssohn choir gave some splendid music. But it was not only the ceremony of opening that drew Toronto's thousands to the gallery. On Sunday afternoon the writer, arriving on a packed car with some Toronto newspaper women, was surprised to find the car stopping in the middle of the block and the conductor calling out "Art Gallery." Everyone in the car was apparently getting off here, and long lines of motors were parked along the grounds.

In the great rooms a wonderful treat awaited the people who eagerly sought to view the pictures. The new West Gallery by Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Fudge in memory of their son, Richard Barry Fudge, in the East Rotunda is a splendid collection, including a Gainsborough and a Sir Joshua Reynolds, presented to the gallery by Mr. and Mrs. Herbert C. Cox. In the south corridor overlooking the great court, later to be used for sculpture, is a picture of the late Sir Edmund Walker, the first president of the Art Gallery of Toronto. In the throne that passed in orderly fashion through the rooms were men, women and children of every class. Canadians in the making from "The Ward," who still spoke in the language of the land of their birth, business men who had snatched an hour of their only holiday to steep themselves in the beauty of the great works of art, girls from shops and offices and college, fathers and mothers with their children, hundreds of young men from offices and from the many Toronto colleges, all there, as one could see by their comments, their earnest faces and their appreciation of the best in art, for the sole purpose of enjoying this gallery that was their own.

The wonderful eyes of "The Standard Bearer," a Rembrandt, lent by Sir Joseph Duveen, drew the people with magnetic power, and when they came closer they saw the marvellous painting of the fish and of the gold embroidery. But while the old masters' great work held the people, the Canadian artists have pictures as compelling in their own way. The late Daniel Fowler, R.C.A., who for many years lived on Amberley Island, where, coming from England with his young family, he built a lovely home in a secluded spot beside the waters of the lake where he could paint to his hearts content, has painted pictures that are unquestionably among the best of the Canadian artists exhibits. "Sea Duck," loaned by C. W. Irwin, is a marvellous piece of work and ten more pictures by the same brush were much admired. Paul Peel, R.C.A., has some beautiful pictures, among them "Mother's Holy" with exquisite flesh tones. At the end of one of the rooms is a great picture, where a little crowd always gathered, "The Walker in the Snow" by W. Blair Bruce. As one looks at the cold blue of the winter night, the deeper blue of the shadows of the curled drifts, the crouching terrified figure of the lost traveller, who coming up on his own foot prints, realises he is lost and sees the transparent figure of the dread walker whose ghostly moccasined feet make so mark on the untrodden snow and whom no man can see add live, the warm lighted room fades away and a chill tells one that the artists wonderful realism has told the story without the verse that recalls the legend. A picture, that was early sought, was "The Canadian Soldier" by Augustus John, sketched in the Canadian Aras sector in 1917, with Gordon McGregor, of Owen Sound, as the model chosen as a typical Canadian soldier, the picture is reminiscent of the Great War and Canada's part in it. It has been loaned from the National Gallery at Ottawa for the occasion. "The Group of Seven" is represented by "The Jack Pine," "The Island," and others by the late Tom Thomson and some others by this well known exponent of this school of Canadian art.

ATHENS. For some years, the local branch has devoted its energies toward beautifying our town hall grounds, and has featured the maintenance of window-boxes which add their quota of cheer throughout the summer days.

At the January meeting on the 30th ult., arrangements were made for the starting of "slips," that well-rooted plants might be in readiness when required. A plan to hold a public school speaking contest in Brockville district was approved of, as was also a scheme to conduct a chorus contest throughout the district, some time during the year.

It was decided to apply to the Department for an instructor in millinery, the class to be conducted, preferably in March, and for a government speaker during the early summer. The remaining indebtedness on the piano, donated to the local high school, is now to be paid in full.

Following the business routine, a helpful programme was provided. Miss Livingston, B.A., of the high school staff, gave many good points upon the subject of "neighborliness." She dealt first with the hospitality of the ancients, and their belief that they might be entertaining angels un-

THREE CANADIAN WOMEN REGAIN THEIR HEALTH

By Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Every Suffering Woman Should Be Interested in Reading Their Letters

Sussex, King's Co., N.B.—"I have taken your medicine and find that it does just what you say it will do. I am the mother of four boys and they are all healthy. When I was carrying my first baby I was suffering from bearing-down feelings and could hardly get around to do my work. I would have to lie quiet for a good deal of the time. There was not a great deal to do, so I managed for six or seven months by lying down several times a day. I saw in one of your little books what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done for women in my condition, so I said to my husband, 'I am going to try this medicine.' He got me a bottle and it gave me great relief. I got so I was able to stand on my feet and go around at my work. Now, I have my own work to do, as I am a widow. I always recommend the Vegetable Compound to my friends and tell them just what it has done for me. I have recommended it to my neighbor and she says she is feeling some better since taking it."—Mrs. PROSPER ANDERSON, R. R. 2, Sussex, King's County, New Brunswick.

Selkirk, Manitoba.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for a run-down condition. I was sick and not able to do my work. I would feel as though I was going to fall, and I had terrible pains in my back and head, also in my left leg. Knowing how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had helped my mother I got the medicine and am still taking it. The result is that I am in good health now and able to do my own work. When I was going to High School I took the Blood Medicine and always take Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills for a laxative. I recommend these medicines to my friends, and if women write to me I will give them all the information I can."—Mrs. H. G. SHANNON, Selkirk, Manitoba.

The Advice of Friends. "I was irregular and had severe pains in my left side during my periods. Through the advice of friends I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and now have more regular periods and am without pain at those times."—Mrs. F. E. DARLING, Shabo, Saskatchewan.
