What the Press Agents Say About Coming Attractions

"THE EVERLASTING WHISPER."

"The Everlasting Whisper," which opened at the Capitol Theatre last night, with Tom Mix as the star, is a picture with all the expected Mix thrills, plus a romantic story of an unusual sort. In many pictures the redoubtable Tom has appeared as the tamer of men and of horses, but in "The Everlasting Whisper" he applies his indomitable qualities to quite another direction. He tames a woman. The woman is played by Alice Calhoun. She is a daughter of society who has strayed into the wild spaces under the delusion that what she longs for is freedom from the bonds of society. She meets Mark King, played by Mix, and, after deceptions of the villain and sundry other dealings, marries him. Then she realizes that all is not glamor about the big men and rough. She rebels, upbraids King and belittles him. He breaks her as he would a recalcitrant colt—and she loves him for it.

"THE IRON HORSE" COMING.

Actual happenings that eclipsed fiction marked the building of the first trans-continental railway. Every inch of ground on the historic "Iron Trail" has been made sacred by events, adventures and experiences which would surpass all legendary love from the time of the Crusaders to the historic Waterloo. Deeds of daring and hair-breadth escapes—innumerable, trials, sufferings and hardships of the early pioneers during the building of the railway, provides the basis for the thrilling situations to be found in the William Fox production of "The Iron Horse," which deals with the construction and completion of the first trans-continental railroad.

George O'Brien, one of the youngest delineators of outdoor characters, enacts the role of "Davy" Brandon. "The Iron Horse" comes to the Capitol Theatre next week.

SUING FOR DAMAGES OVER AUTO COLLISION

Evidence in the Marshall-Kerrison Action Heard Before Justice Grant.

When the Supreme Court session was resumed on Friday morning, before Justice Grant, the case of James Marshall, Helen Marshall, Helen Douglas and Elizabeth Douglas, vs. Stanley Kerrison, Sr., was taken up. The former appeared as plaintiffs in an action for the sum of $2,000 for damages claimed to have been caused by the negligence of the defendant. Ambrose Shea appeared for the plaintiffs, and A. E. Cunningham for the defence.

The following jury was sworn to hear the case, Thomas Christley, Richard Atkinson, Arthur Brouse, William Arnel, W. G. Crozier, R. J. Sargent, Wilfred E. Allen, George Barr, W. M. Campbell, D. Hartman, Thomas Cowdy, William Babcock.

The action arose out of an accident which occurred at the corner of Albert and Brock streets, on June 3rd. The Marshall car was travelling on Albert street, towards Princess street, and the Kerrison car, was going down Brock street. In the collision, it was alleged that the occupants of the Marshall car were injured.

James Marshall was the first witness. He said that his party was going on a picnic that day. In the car besides himself were his wife, his mother and his wife's sister. He was driving up Albert street about ten miles an hour. On approaching the corner of Brock and Albert streets, he observed a car up Brock street coming down towards Albert in the centre of the road.

Mr. Marshall said that he stepped on the gas to escape a collision. The Kerrison car had forced him to the curb and his own car was turned completely over. It had cost about $550 for the car a year previous, and repairs had been put on it. Witness stated in answer to a question that the Kerrison car had skidded thirty-two feet.

Mr. Cunningham in questioning witness, brought out that the Marshall car had figured in an accident on the 19th of September and repairs had to be made as a result of this accident.

Dr. MacCallum gave an account of the injuries that had been suffered by two of the occupants of the Marshall car, Helen Marshall, wife of James Marshall, Helen Douglas and Elizabeth Douglas. It was brought out that Elizabeth Douglas had broken her ankle the Sunday before the accident. Mrs. Marshall had been laid up for about five or six weeks.

Mrs. Helen Marshall, examined by Mr. Shea, stated that the speedometer on the car which her husband was driving showed the car to be travelling between eight and ten miles an hour. Mrs. Marshall did not know very much about the actual accident, having been knocked unconscious when the cars struck. When she woke up, she was lying in the Victoria park. Dr. Gibson had been called to the house and it was there when they returned home. She said her side was painfully injured and it had to be bound with adhesive for some time.

Elizabeth Douglas who was sitting in the rear of the car at the right hand side, said she was laid up for five or six weeks as a result of her accident. She had suffered a broken ankle the Sunday night previous to the accident and had not used a cane or crutches. She was able to walk without assistance.

Mrs. Douglas, who was sitting behind Mr. Marshall on the left side of the car, gave the evidence as to what she had known of the accident. She said the car was going at a slow rate of speed.

Mrs. Montgomery, who resides on Albert street, saw the accident. She stated that the Marshall car was not going any faster than any other cars that had passed along that way.

Sgt. Marshall Armstrong, who was called to the scene of the accident, showed a design which he had made of the scene when he arrived on the scene. He said it was perhaps an hour after the accident that he was there.

Norman Polton, an auto mechanic, who repaired the Marshall car, told of the damage that had been done to the car when he had seen it.

Stanley Kerrison, called by Mr. Cunningham, said he was driving an Overland car down Brock street towards Albert street. He noticed the Marshall car about 100 feet down Albert street. The Marshall car was travelling more than eight or ten miles an hour, which was the speed he was travelling. He stated that he swerved his car to avoid an accident, but the car struck Marshall's car, the front right wheel striking the left rear wheel of the Marshall car. Witness stated that his car was over the intersection when the accident occurred.

Questioned by Mr. Shea, Kerrison said he had his father's car with his permission. He told his story of striking the Marshall car and said that it was travelling at a faster rate of speed than eight or ten miles an hour.

The case was adjourned until two o'clock.

The Late Mrs. Kilborn.

The news of the passing of Mrs. Kilborn will be heard with deep regret by those with whom this quiet, gentle woman had come in contact. As the wife of the late Dr. R. K. Kilborn, a doctor with a large practice and medical officer of the Royal Military College, Mrs. Kilborn's sympathy with her husband's patients was well known. A faithful member of St. George's cathedral, she will be much missed in the parish. She is survived by her daughter, Miss Laura Kilborn, her brothers, Dr. H. H. McCrea, Point Jervis, N.Y., and W. A. McCrea, Hawksbury, and her sisters, Mrs. B. S. Weir, Easton's Corners, and Miss Grace McCrea, Kingston.

A WOMAN CONVICT COMMITS SUICIDE

In Portmouth Penitentiary by Hanging—Serving Term for Manslaughter.

That Kosha Kaminsky, aged forty-two, came to her death by her own hand while of unsound mind, at Portmouth penitentiary early Friday morning and that no blame could be attached to anyone, was the verdict brought in by the coroner's jury, which investigated the case. Coroner Dr. R. J. Gardiner presided.

Kosha Kaminsky was sentenced at Edmonton, Alberta, on November 6th, 1924, to ten years in penitentiary for manslaughter. She entered the prison on November 17th, 1924.

It is thought that brooding over the fact that a request for parole was refused on January 8th of this year, after she had served about thirteen months, led the woman to commit the act. The theory that her mind was unbalanced was borne out by a message she left written on the slate in her cell. The message was in Polish and translated reads: "You have robbed me out of my fortune, and my life with refusal. Sodom and Gomorah on you so it may destroy you as I am over you. Send my body to my sister, let it rest there with family." The name of Jack Salk, Edmonton, was also written on the note, this being the name of the husband of the sister mentioned.

The evidence pointed conclusively toward suicide. Edith Robinson, matron of the female ward, told of unlocking the cell at seven o'clock this morning and finding the woman hanging from a rope made of part of her dress, which was fastened to the ventilator in the upper right-hand corner of the cell. The woman had climbed up on a chair placed on her bed and had tied the rope to the ventilator and around her neck and then had jumped-off into space. The matron had sent for the assistant matron and had notified the deputy-warden. Chief Keeper Walsh and Guard Armstrong were sent to the cell, and as the matron had already ascertained that the woman was dead, they cut her down and placed her on the bed. The matron had not noticed anything out of the ordinary about the woman when she had locked her up at 5 o'clock on Thursday night.

Chief Keeper Walsh, Prison Surgeon Anglin, Guard Armstrong, Assistant Matron Vera Fitzell and Warden Ponsford all gave evidence, as well as two inmates, Agnes Colbert and Henrietta Dougherty who occupy the cells on either side of the unfortunate woman. The inmates did not notice that she had been at all downcast on the previous day, and they had not heard any noise during the night, which would lead them to believe that anything out of the ordinary was going on. One of the inmates, who had translated the message, left by the dead woman, swore that it was correct.

The jury were only out a very few minutes when they brought in their verdict.

BURGESS IN FIELD PURELY AS PROTEST

Against the Way Charles MacDonald Had Delegated His Seat.

Shellbrook, Sask., Feb. 5.—D. L. Burgess, independent candidate, opposing Premier Mackenzie King in Prince Albert bye-election, opened his speaking campaign here last night. Agnew, official agent for Mr. Burgess, in a brief talk, stated that the independent campaign was financed by small local contributions.

THE DEBATE TO-NIGHT.

Between the Imperial Team and Queen's University.

C. and W. R. Davies, President of the British Whig Publishing Company. The visiting team is composed of the following members: T. P. McDonald, Edinburgh University; Paul Reid, London University; A. H. W. Nelson, Oxford University; R. Munn, Birmingham University; J. Alexander, Edinboro; E. R. Smith and John Lashbury will make up the opposition for Queen's. Hearing Restored by Radio

Miss Elsie Hayes, 25-year-old girl of Winnipeg, was induced by a friend to listen through a headset to a concert from radio station CNRW of the Canadian National Railways at Winnipeg recently, though she had been totally deaf and dumb since she was three years old. As the broadcast proceeded it became evident she was not only hearing sounds but was able to distinguish between the notes of the different musical instruments.

At the conclusion of the programme she heard her mother ask her if she had heard the music and nodding to her in reply, responded with a sound closely approximating the word "mother". The following morning on her way to work she was able to hear the rumble of street cars and she is now noticing the music of a phonograph when played with a loud needle near her.

Specialists in the treatment of the ear say it is quite possible that radio vibrations may have given her the first sound from the outside world even after 22 years, but that such a condition would only apply where the sense of hearing actually remained without being used during that time.

Paris shopkeepers close their stores as a protest against the proposed new taxes.
