DISMISSED ACTION AGAINST THE FAIR

Thomas Smith Lost His Action
For Damages Of $10,- 000.

The action against the Kingston Industrial Agricultural Society, brought by Thomas Smith for damages as a result of an accident in 1924 during the rehearsal of the pageant when he was shot by the discharge from one of the canons at the fair grounds, rendering his left eye sightless and without life, was dismissed on Saturday morning by His Lordship Mr. Justice Grant.

Mr. Herrington, on the resumption of the case Saturday morning, was asked by the presiding judge if he had the evidence he had been waiting for, which was supposed to show that the Kingston Industrial Agricultural Society was an incorporated body, but the evidence produced by Mr. Herrington, a certificate from the Provincial Secretary, was not evidence enough to show this. The document said: "Kingston Industrial Exhibition."

Mr. Herrington asked if he had any further evidence to offer, called Harry Saunders, who worked with Thomas Smith. He declared that there was no reason why he and Smith could not even have gone home if they had felt like it between the time they put the piano into the judge's stand and the time the accident occurred. Their time was their own then, Saunders said there were no warnings given. He did not see anyone approach Smith. Saunders knew there were guns on the grounds at 6.30 o'clock, and they were in the same position. He did not remember speaking to Smith about the guns.

R. J. Bushell, secretary and treasurer and manager of the Kingston Industrial Exhibition, was called and in his evidence said that Colonel Leslie had full authority in connection with the staging of the pageant.

Mr. Herrington contended that there had been negligence in bringing the guns to the fair grounds and failing to give proper warning.

Justice Grant, in summing up the case, stated that in spite of every support given to the plaintiff he could not see where they could succeed. The Kingston Industrial Exhibition was not a corporate body to start with, he said. He pointed out that the certificate referred to in the Kingston Industrial Exhibition and not the Kingston Industrial Agricultural Society. His Lordship did not place much value on the certificate presented by Mr. Herrington as evidence. The onus was on the plaintiff to prove the case. He found that the plaintiff had been warned, especially when he passed along the westerly end of the track. He knew the guns were there and, if he did not, it was because he refused to heed warnings. It was significant that the space in front of the grand-stand was open, and no one was there except the plaintiff.

"If I find the plaintiff was warned and should not have been there and apart from that the plaintiff had no business there," said his Lordship. "The plaintiff had finished his work, and his services were not required until after the pageant was over. He had gone to the school fair tent on his own and was returning on his own mission."

His Lordship concluded that if these were the only grounds he might be disposed to give it more consideration, but other grounds and weaknesses of the case as presented, showed that the plaintiff had no right to be where he was. Action was dismissed with costs, if demanded by the defendant.

A Case Settled.
The action of John Trusdell, plaintiff, and the Corporation of the County of Frontenac, and the Kingston Suburban Roads Commission was settled out of court by counsel, with the consent of the judge. The amount of settlement was not announced. The plaintiff's claim was for $12,555, for loss and damages by fire of the plaintiff's buildings and contents, due to the negligence of the defendants' servants.

The city and county government of Denver, Col., is combined.
