This evening for the first time in Kingston a progressive dinner will be given. This means that a party of people will gather at someone's house for the first course and go on to the next house for the second course...

FOR GIRLS WHO WORK Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a Great Friend—it Stops Pain and Restores Health

Toronto, Ontario.—"I work in a factory and I would be glad to get away from my work every time I was sick. The dragging-down pains and cramps were very bad, but my back was terrible. It hurt so that I couldn't lie down with it. I heard some of the girls talking about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and they told me to try it. I have taken about a dozen bottles of it and it has done me a lot of good. I never have any more pains or sore backs now, and have not been off from work a day since I have taken it. I recommend the Vegetable Compound when I have the opportunity."—Miss ROLLO, 21 Howe Avenue, Toronto, Ontario.

"The Advice of a Friend" Hanover, Ontario.—"I was terribly pained and a few odd times I almost fainted. I used to do housework until a few months ago and sometimes I had to leave my work and go to bed. I am now a member in the knitting-mill. I suffered five or six years from painful periods before I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound by the advice of a friend. I got relief almost immediately, and I tell my friends what a good medicine it is. You may use this testimonial if you like, if it will help others."—Miss J. PEARSON, Victoria Street, Hanover, Ontario.

Famous Old Recipe for Cough Syrup Easily and cheaply made at home, but it is best made all for quick results.

Thousands of housewives have found that they can save two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, by using this well-known old recipe for making cough syrup at home. It is simple and cheap, but it has no equal for prompt results. It takes right hold of a cough and gives immediate relief, usually stopping an ordinary cough in 24 hours or less.

Get 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex from any drugist, pour it into a 16-oz. bottle and add plain granulated sugar syrup to make 16 ounces. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, keeps perfectly, and lasts a family a long time.

It's truly astonishing how quickly it acts, penetrating through every air passage of the throat and lungs—loosens and raises the phlegm, soothes and heals the membrane, and gradually but surely the annoying throat ticks and crouped cough disappear entirely. Nothing better for bronchitis, spasmodic croup, hoarseness or bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the world over for its healing effect on the membrane.

Avoid disappointment by asking your drugist for "2 1/2 ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly returned. The Finex Co., Toronto, Ont.

Mrs. Sanford Calvin, "Rutland House," gave a young people's party on Friday evening for her nephew, Mr. Stuart Callaghan, Toronto, of "The Originals," who is spending a week in town. The large rooms gave plenty of space for dancing and, as well as the music provided for the occasion, the guests had music from a New York orchestra from the radio, to which they danced for an hour. The guests included Miss Dorothy Callaghan, Miss Pat Aylen, Miss Evelyn Daly, Miss Helen Ireland, Miss Peggy Miller, Miss Margaret Callaghan, Miss Constance Grant, Miss Elsie Williamson, Miss Jean Murray and Miss Kathleen Murray; Messrs. Charles Parker, Ted Kidd, Dick Travers, W. Wilgar, W. and J. Rigney, George O'Brien, Grant Minnes, W. Moores, N. McLeod and Jack Campbell.

Mrs. U. M. Wilson, Picton, was at home on Tuesday afternoon to a number of friends. Mrs. Wilson received in the drawing room, and tea was served in the dining room and library. The house was cheery with spring flowers and tall vases of long stemmed roses. The hostess was assisted by the following ladies: Mrs. F. L. Hooper, Mrs. Cowie, Mrs. J. G. Daly, Mrs. A. E. Paul, Mrs. W. T. MacKenzie, Mrs. Houston, Miss Jean Harshaw, Miss Alice Preston and Miss Marjorie Dolier.

Mrs. Henry Bowers, "Retreat Farm," gave a jolly party on Thursday evening for her nephew, Stuart Watson. The party of about thirty-five drove out from Kingston and were welcomed at the comfortable old farm house by the hostess. Dancing and games were enjoyed by the guests with a bountiful supper which the sharp air made doubly welcome. The older people present were Mr. and Mrs. B. R. Watson, Mrs. M. S. Richmond, Miss Lockhart, Mr. George Stewart and Capt. Irvine.

The Barrieffield Home and School Club gave a jolly sleigh drive for the school children on Friday evening. After driving around the city for an hour, the children were brought back to the hall and hot coffee and refreshments were served. Miss Alleen Gallivan thanked the members of the Home and School Club for the pleasant outing.

The Whig will be glad to have the names of visitors in town and accounts of various social events for publication in the social column. Such communications should be signed and the address of the sender given. Write or telephone to the Editor of the Woman's Page, Telephone No. 2612.

TO BUSINESS GIRLS Background More Important Than Typing. By Cynthia Grey.

Not long ago a girl whom I know started me by telling me that she had obtained a position with the firm of Blank & Blank, accountants. Blank & Blank are the Mecca for every girl with business aspirations in our town. There is something about this make-up and circassian walnut establishment with its tapestried walls and galleries full of jade and copper and brass that spells elegance to the girl just out of business school.

But Marjorie, who announced her job to me, had never been to business school. She had graduated from high school a year or so ago and had stayed home, reading and studying music and writing poetry in odd moments.

Marjorie laughed as she told me how she got her job. Her eye had caught a unique ad. in the "Female Help Wanted" column. The ad read: "Do you like Tchakovsky, and have you read 'Constant Nymph'? We have a job for you."

Many Applied. She found a waiting throng of girls. Most of them didn't know whether Tchakovsky was a sea food or a new dance step, but the ad had appealed.

The employer corralled them in an office and gave them blanks to fill out with "my favorite author, my favorite composer, my favorite book, etc."

It seems that Marjorie's artistic bent pleased the High Mogul most and she was hired for the position of private secretary.

"He told me," said Marjorie, "that any girl with $46 for tuition could take dictation and use a typewriter, but that he had to have a secretary whom he was sure had real taste and a reading background which would make him feel perfectly free in having her meet anyone in his absence and wouldn't cramp his style when he dictated letters."

"He said that his last secretary could spell 'received' with the 'c' first, but that he could never quote even the most commonplace quotation without being forced to stop to remind her that quotation marks should be used."

"He lets me take dictation in long hand now and gives me an hour if I need it to pick it out on the machine."

I find Marjorie's tale significant of what is being demanded of the office girl to-day.

Not every employer, of course, is as fond, as can Mr. Blank, a secretary who knows how to spell "Ming dynasty" but who may take an hour for a letter.

But the fact remains that practically all employers call with open arms a girl with a rich background of reading and observation, whereas there are hundreds of thousands of plain business school graduates who can type accurately and take dictation rapidly who are not in such demand.

I think one of the big jobs of the modern office girl is to realize that a business position to-day can use everything that she can bring to it.

The Editor Hears That the Legion of Honor for Suzanne Lenglen is being demanded on all sides, both in the Parisian press and among the public, following her victory over Helen Willis, which comes as the climax of her long reign of tennis supremacy.

That one of the finest reports read from any affiliated society at the annual meeting of the Local Council of Women was that of the Catholic Women's League. This is one of the societies to be recently affiliated and it was the first report heard by the council. The social service end of the work is particularly fine and of benefit to the community at large. The motto of the society "For God and Canada" is similar to that of another affiliated society, the Women's Institute, whose motto is "For God and Country."

That Kingston has now four badminton clubs, the Garrison Club, which has been in existence for many years, Queen's Club, composed of members of Queen's University staff, the Junior Badminton Club whose members are the young folk connected with the members of the Garrison Club who will become members of the senior club later, and the Kingston Club lately organized. The Queen's Club plays in Queen's gymnasium and the other clubs in the armoures.

That Toronto recently gave a birthday party at the Sherbourne Club in honor of the tenth anniversary of the Home and School clubs when a life membership was presented to Mrs. George P. Payne, one of the pioneers, by Dr. A. E. Marty. It is amazing how much has been done in the last ten years by the Home and School clubs and it is indeed fitting that those who organized them should be honored.

That not many British women are included among those famous people of the past; whose centenaries occur during the year 1926, and there are, indeed, only two of any particular note—Mrs. Craik, the novelist, most familiar as the author of "John Halifax, Gentleman," and Lady Jane Wilde, the mother of Oscar Wilde, herself a writer of some eminence both in poetry and prose.

WOMEN'S MISSION SOCIETIES. Mark International Day of Prayer on Friday.

The International Day of Prayer for Missions was marked in Kingston by a devotional service held by all the women's missionary societies in Bethel Church, on Friday afternoon. The Women's Auxiliary of the Anglican church arranged the programme and Mrs. John Veale presided. The scripture reading was taken by Mrs. J. K. Curtis, of Princess street United church. Mrs. P. H. Huyck, represented the Anglicans, Mrs. Brown the Baptists, Mrs. Williams, Bethel congregation, Mrs. H. R. Duff, St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, Mrs. H. F. Woodsworth, Koba, Japan, said the prayer for China and Japan. Mrs. Falle represented the Salvation Army, and the prayer for King, Country and Empire was said by Mrs. G. A. Brown of Chalmers Church. The doxology was sung and the Lord's Prayer and the blessing were said in unison.

HER OWN WAY By a Girl of To-day.

Decision. "Don't worry Mother, Dad, about what I've been saying. She's probably quite as horrified at it as you are with my action but I want to make it very emphatic that when I marry, it will be to a man of my own choosing."

"May I ask then, what you intend to do, young woman?" asked my father. "You know I'll not brook anyone as you have done. You certainly know me well enough to know that I am the head of my own house."

"I certainly do, Dad, but I also know that you cannot own me, even if I am your daughter."

"What do you mean by that? Why, even Charles Becker was more amenable to reason than you have been."

"I don't blame him, however, for not wanting to marry you. His eye is swollen shut and the color of spoiled meat from the effect of your blow last night. I never thought I would be called upon to suffer such humiliation as I did when Charles Becker told me that you had blackened his eye. You young women have usurped every other foible and even vice that might belong to man and it seems now that you're going in for the talents of the prize-fighter."

I laughed. It struck me so funny to think of Dad commiserating with Chuck because his obstreperous daughter had blacked the poor young man's eye. He did not seem to realize why I had struck him. However, he seemed suddenly to come to the conclusion that he was talking too much, for he looked at me fiercely as though to intimidate me and said:

"Now, young woman, I'm ready to hear from you." "Well, in the first place, seeing as how you asked me, I'll tell you as well as the rest of the world. I'll not marry Chuck Becker. Nothing you can do or say can make me."

"Julia, Julia," interrupted my mother, "Don't you know that no other young men in town will marry you if Charles Becker tells the story of last night?"

"Why not? The fact that Church has a black eye and that I walked home in the rain ought to be proof that I am still—in spite of what Dad thinks and what he has just said—a decent young woman."

I turned to my father impulsively. Here was my chance.

"Dad," I said, "you and I will never see things in the same light. You are of the old order. I am of the new, and I will only be a thorn in your flesh if I try to live in this house longer. Let me go away, Dad. I can take care of myself."

Dad shook his head. Next: Fatherly advice. (Copyright, 1926, NEA Service Inc.)
