BIGGEST GOLD RUSH SINCE YUKON DAYS

Expected to Red Lake, G. C. Bateman, B.Sc., Queen's Graduate, Says.

"During the past fall gold discoveries were reported at Red Lake in the district of Patricia, about 150 miles from the railroad. So great has been the rush of prospectors that it is claimed by some this district will be the scene of the biggest stampede since the Yukon," said G. C. Bateman, B.Sc., secretary of the Ontario Mining Association, at the Empire Club luncheon in Toronto yesterday. He spoke on "Mining as a Permanent Industry." Mr. Bateman is a graduate of Queen's University, Kingston, and a son of Mr. George A. Bateman, Kingston.

"Undeterred by the rigors of the winter and the hardships of the long trail, hundreds of men are going in, or preparing to go in, and indications point to the fact that next summer may see their number increased to thousands," Mr. Bateman continued. "The snow motors sent in have not as yet been a great success, and, as a consequence, dog teams are being used and dogs have reached fabulous prices.

"The country has been practically swept clear of good dogs as far west as Winnipeg. Prices of $100 to $200 have been paid for a single dog, and $500 for a four-dog team is by no means an extravagant price. The country is hungry for a new gold camp, and the Red Lake excitement will be the means of opening up hundreds of square miles of country that otherwise might have lain dormant for years.

"Prominent discoveries have been made in Central Manitoba, near the Ontario boundary, and the importance of the Quebec field need not be stressed.

Field for Conquest.
"Between these two is a stretch 1,000 miles wide. In it there is a great mineral industry, and there are also thousands upon thousands of square miles of promising country which should provide a field for the activities of the engineer and the prospector for generations to come.

"To explore this great country we need capital. Mining capital is at once the most venturesome and at the same time the most timid of all investment money. It is willing to take great risks, but must have commensurate returns. The percentage of profitable mines to the total number worked is very small, so that the returns from the profitable mine must be sufficient to carry the burden. Unless the returns are sufficient for this, capital will not venture. We believe we have the mineral areas. We must have stability—stability in laws; stability in operating and stability in taxation. Given these factors, we can look forward with every confidence to the future.

Vast Unexplored Areas.
"Practically all developments to date have been between the C.P.R. on the south and the C.N.R. on the north. In this section there are still large areas practically unexplored, in which new discoveries will undoubtedly be made. To the north of the C.N.R. there is a vast stretch of country practically unknown and unexplored, in which there are many thousands of square miles that have never been visited by a white man.

"This true that the average life of a miner is short, but mining is as old, if not older, than agriculture, and next to agriculture is the most permanent of the world's industries. I believe it is true that the oldest company in existence in the world to-day is a mining company. The Swedish Corporation started in 1193 and has been producing copper, pyrites, gold and silver without interruption ever since, a period of 733 years.

New Ontario's Romance.
"From the earliest dawn of history down to our own times, we can follow a trail of conquest and settlement arising from the desire for the precious metals. We find this in Australia, in Africa, in the western States, Alaska, and last, but by no means least, in Northern Ontario; but in these places only nature was conquered and this conquest led to the settlement of the land, to the establishment of big industries, and to a new supply of that yellow metal upon which the trade and commerce of the world is founded.

"This is what has taken place in Northern Ontario, which only a little over twenty years ago was practically an unknown wilderness. To-day it is the centre of a large and growing industry, which during the past year, as also in 1924, was probably the greatest single factor in maintaining the prosperity of this province. The value of the metallic production last year, all of which came from Northern mines, was about $60,000,000, an increase of $10,000,000 over the preceding year. Including the money spent by non-producing as well as producing companies, approximately $45,000,000 was paid out for wages, supplies and services, without taking into consideration the dividends paid, which also eventually find their way into the channels of trade.

Increased Production.
"Our production camps of Sudbury, Cobalt, South Lorrain, Gowganda, Kirkland and Porcupine all lie within a circle having a radius of only 75 miles. This represents an area of 175,000 square miles, and it has produced metals having a value of over $750,000,000, and we are assured that several times this great sum will be produced in the future.

"Our gold production comes from Kirkland Lake and Porcupine. Kirkland is a rapidly growing camp. It is somewhat dangerous to play the role of prophet, but I believe that in two years production will be at the rate of nine to ten millions a year, or almost 100 per cent. greater than in 1925. In Porcupine the producing area is being extended. Again essaying the role of prophet, I believe that in two years production in this camp will be at the rate of $4 to $5 millions a year, an increase of 40 per cent. over 1925 figures."

DATES ARE FIXED.

ONTARIO POTATOES ECLIPSED.

British Columbia and the Maritimes winning U.S. Reputation. Demand for Canadian potatoes in the United States draws attention to the fact that British Columbia is establishing a reputation as a grower of superior tubers. The Maritime provinces, too, with the smallest crop on record, got last year nearly double the sum received in 1924. Like British Columbia, they classed and packed their product properly and had no difficulty in getting the prices they demanded.

"The Ontario farmer does not attempt to market potatoes co-operatively," admitted a local dealer, "with the result that shipments are not dependable for quality and do not bring the best price."

British Columbia boasts that it is capable of producing more potatoes to the acre than any other province in Canada or any state of the Union. A total of 17,781 acres were planted to potatoes in British Columbia in 1925, as compared with 16,339 acres in 1924. The average price in 1925 was $1.23 per bushel, and in 1924 it was $1.75, returning $3,260,000.

The Prince's Body Guard

The Scout. There could be no more striking demonstration of the firm hold which Scouting has taken among boys of every race, country, color and creed throughout the wide world than the recent tour of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales.

On that journey he visited ten colonies, dominions or foreign countries. He went to places as old as the prehistoric ruins of Zimbabwe, as new as Johannesburg, as medieval as the walled city of Kano, as modern as Buenos Aires. He passed through the whole range of climates. He was greeted by men in all sorts of costumes from a loin-cloth to a tail coat. There was constant variety in the conditions that he met, except in one respect—wherever he went, north, south, east or west, we always found the Boy Scouts.

And whether they were black or brown, or white; whether they lived in dense forests or on the high veldt; in crowded cities or remote villages, there was never any mistaking the fact that they belonged, by ideal, allegiance and practice, to one great corps, the world organization of Scouts.

Some of the Scouts we met were in places so remote that the none of them had ever seen another Scout, except the members of his own patrol. But however far from inspection or competition they might be, they were always smart and keen and proud of themselves. I must have seen many thousands of the Scouts during the Prince's tour, and 95 per cent. of them stood out among the other boys of their country like a guardsman stands out among the loafers.

There are very few things in the world more international and familiar than the Scout's uniform, and wherever we saw that well known dress it invariably stood for discipline and usefulness.

In Sierra Leone, when little black boys and girls were being knocked

EVANGELISTIC SERVICES.

Discourse by Evangelist Chapman in Alfred Street Church. "But leaving the subject of the sanctuary and its cleansing, let us trace briefly the 2,300 days. This period, it may be observed, forms the connecting link between the shadow and the substance, between the typical sanctuary on earth, and the true sanctuary in heaven," said Evangelist Chapman in his lecture last night at the New Church on Alfred street, taking for his text the 5th and 9th chapters of Daniel.

"Daniel was told that the beginning of this 2,300-day period would be when the commandment was given by Artaxerxes to restore and build Jerusalem, which was 457 B.C. Subtracting 457 B.C. from 2,300 gives us 1,843 full years or 1844. The judgment took place in 1844, nearly a hundred years ago."
