

SPORTING NOTES AND COMMENT

Now that the battle is all over it may be truthfully said that there were not so very many local fans who thought Kingston would win the round last night.

For the first time of the season the fans were so wildly enthused over the locals' victory that they rushed out on the ice to congratulate the players.

The Parkdale team impressed the local fans as a collection of real good sports and, above all, good losers. The Toronto boys were the first to congratulate the Kingston team and, forgetting that they were squeezed out of great honors by the locals, wished them every success in their quest for the title.

Humphreys, the Parkdale net-guardian, made a great hit with his display of sportsmanship after the little row with Patterson. After coming on the ice in the last period the blond youth skated up to Patterson and shook hands with the local player.

With the score on the round 6-1 against Kingston, there was at least one local fan that had faith in the boys. He is a very well-known local sportsman and was at that time willing to wager that Kingston would win the round.

The Jock Hart Arena held the biggest crowd last night since it has been built. Every aisle was jammed full of fans and some even resorted to hanging on to the rafters so that they could see all of the play.

The general theory was that if Kingston was able to score the first goal that there might be a chance on the round, but no hopes were held out if the Toronto boys notched the first counter.

The refereeing of Steve Vair last night was all that could be wished for. He handled the game as good as it could possibly be done and the fans were pleased with his work.

The fair sex was very much in the limelight last night. Wild shrieks and yells of delight from the lady fans were heard many times. Styles and politics are not the only things the ladies are interested in.

And now for Owen Sound. Two years ago Kingston juniors met Owen Sound in the junior O.H.A. semi-finals and were defeated, but the locals should be able to return the compliment in full.

Howard Reid is certainly a neat hockey player and he outshowered Miller at centre last night. Reid scored four of the goals and passed to Hartley for another one.

Goal-tenders may come and go, but the Kingston fans have yet to see a junior net guardian that can stand up better than Taucher. "Bill" is certainly a live wire in front of the hump and any time a player scores against him he certainly deserves his goal.

CURLING

J. B. Cooke's rink defeated R. J. McLellan's by a score of 14 to 8 in the only curling game played at the Kingston Club on Friday night.

Points competition. In the points' competition at the curling rink, on Wednesday night, the following scores were made:

FIRST GAME MAY BE PLAYED HERE Tuesday at Kingston and Friday at Owen Sound Are Likely Dates.

With Kingston and Owen Sound winners of the semi-finals, arrangements were started on Saturday morning for the final playoffs between the two teams.

On Saturday morning the talk of the big game last night and the wonderful victory of the Kingston team was the topic of conversation.

The Toronto players were loud in their praise and congratulation to the Kingston players and Coach Harry Watson stated that he saw no reason why Kingston should not win the O.H.A. championship.

Official attendance. The official attendance at the Kingston-Parkdale game at the Arena last night was 2,777.

Perhaps. I do not want to know so much. Not grow so very wise. I'd rather keep on marvelling.

I do not always want to see. The therefore and the why, I'd call it all pure magic.

I do not want to play the sage. He cultured, calm and cool. I'd really much prefer to be a gay, glad, blithesome fool!

And later on, when I have shown. That fools are pleasant things. Perhaps I'll know so much, my dear. I'll grow a pair of wings!

Things That Endure. Honor and truth and manhood— These are the things that stand.

George and toil and service. Old, yet forever new— These are the rock that abides the shock.

Pad and folly, the whims of an hour. May bicker and rant and shrill; But the living granite of truth will tower.

Labor and love and virtue— Time does not dim their glow; Though the smart may say, in a languid way,

But a lie, whatever the guise it wears, Is a lie, as it was of yore. And a truth that has lasted a million years Is good for a million more!

—Ted Olson in Forbes.

AMUSEMENTS

Over the Hill Returns by Popular Demand. A theatrical event of much more than ordinary interest and importance is the resumed production of the William Fox presentation "Over the Hill," which will open at Capitol Theatre Monday for three days.

The theme of "Over the Hill" is mother love, and the story is based upon the work of Will Carleton, the poet. The action is drawn from an incident which occurred during the boyhood of Carleton, who lived on a farm and knew intimately the characters that have been made immortal upon the screen.

Carlton's early life impressed him so vividly that he never forgot it, and when he had grown to man's estate he made it the theme of two of his best loved poems.

The poems in question eventually found their way to the motion picture screen of to-day, because of the appreciation and foresight of Mr. Fox. Like many another great theatrical production, it appeared to just happen along—until the people woke up to its greatness.

Harry Millarde, a director of note, has contributed one of the most artistic and efficient examples of stage direction ever beheld upon the screen.

The central figure in the story, that of a little, self-sacrificing mother, has been made one of the most delightful character studies of the present day by Mary Carr, whose finished interpretation of the leading part is a constant joy.

The picture, in its many sidedness, has an irresistible appeal for every member of the family. It has heart interest, swiftness and action, delightful humor, and a sweet and wholesome story so simply told and so human that it has taken its place among the classics of the film.

Which opens at the Capitol, Monday for three days.

"BATH TUB" PARTY. Now Before Federal Grand Jury in New York.

New York, Feb. 27.—Earl Carroll's "bath tub" party is now before the federal grand jury. The theatrical producer appeared before the jury yesterday to explain what happened at the party attended by Countess Cathcart and others, at which a nude chorus girl is said to have bathed in wine.

Carroll's appearance raised the question as to whether under the law he is immune from charges of violation of the Volstead Act as to the bath tub's contents. The girl, in published reports, named as Joyce Hawley, through a lawyer, who is suing Carroll for a thousand dollars, says she thought it was a private party, but now believes she is the victim of a publicity stunt.

Countess Cathcart also says she is a victim of publicity and never intended entering the movies.

The police investigation has closed with the announcement that no evidence was found to support the action.

ON LEGAL PROFESSION

Judge Lavell Gave Interesting Address at the Y.M.C.A. The legal profession as a life profession, was the subject of a very interesting talk by Judge H. A. Lavell, before a large group of boys in the Y.M.C.A. on Friday night.

The talk was given in connection with a vocational training class, which is being conducted by the general secretary, Mr. Harlow. Judge Lavell pointed out the advantages of the legal profession, as well as some of the drawbacks.

It was the duty of the lawyers to interpret the law. The speaker also outlined the course necessary for a young man to go through before he could become a lawyer.

The profession of law was not always well paid, but the speaker urged the boys to think of the service that they would render to the community.

A vote of thanks was tendered Judge Lavell on motion of Reginald Hanna, seconded by Russel Upton.
