NEWS OF THE FARM

Seeding in the West—Old and Young Seed—Fruit Growers Get Together—Plan Your Garden.

Despatches from Alberta report that seeding of alfalfa has started on land in the irrigated sections and quite a lot of cultivation has been carried out during a couple of short spells of good weather. This is rather early, even for Sunny Alberta, but not at all remarkable. Alfalfa, it might be explained, can go in on the last snow, or any snow that is expected to melt in a few hours. Provided there is no frost in the spring, and there seldom is at this time of year in Southern Alberta. The seed will sink down to the proper depth in the soil and germinate in March or April. Even in normal years there is very little mud to hinder the farmer going on the land right after the snow, in this part of the west. Frequent Chinook winds prevent any heavy accumulation of snow. These melt the snow and dry up the land practically in one operation. Sleights are often used one day, and cars, with dust flying, the next. It is these warm winds which allow the farmer to get on the land so quickly.

Royal Fair Judges Prominent. Apparently the Royal Agricultural Fair knew what it was doing when Captain John MacGillivray was chosen a year ago, and R. L. P. Duncan last fall to come out from Scotland and judge the Shorthorn classes at Toronto's big stock show. At the Perth (Scotland) Show and Sale the other day, which is the leading annual Shorthorn auction of the world, both these men figured very prominently. Captain MacGillivray paid the highest price of the sale, $3,750 for the young bull Naemoor Ian, and Mr. Duncan the second highest price $2,310, for Gargantuan Chancellor. These men also consigned several high priced animals.

Old and Young Seed. With the approach of spring, seed comes in for much discussion in bulletins sent out by the agricultural colleges. One such publication received by the writer recently had some information on the age of seed. Some seeds, such as that from certain flowers, pumpkins, marigolds and the like, will not show much vitality after a year, but others such as clover, will grow well after ten years of careful storage. It all depends on the thickness of the coat. A clover seed, for instance has a tough, hard skin, which protects the germ. In fact this very skin may prove a disadvantage for ordinary sowing, as only half or a quarter of the seeds may germinate the first year. Scientists have got around this point by scarifying or scratching the seed so that the bulk will germinate within a few days of planting, and not be dormant for a year or two and then grow up in another crop.

Fruit Growers Get Together. Next week the Ontario fruit growers meetings commence. The course adopted two years ago, consisting of spreading local meetings over the province instead of a central gathering at Toronto, will be followed again. Much of the discussion this year will hinge around markets, with Andrew Fulton, of the Dominion Fruit Branch, giving a talk on the British outlet, and Percy Hodgetts, of the Ontario branch, dealing with the home markets. It is also expected that freight and express charges will come in for considerable criticism and steps taken to adopt a government grade for tender fruits in baskets.

Better Seed Train. On Monday next the better seed train, consisting of three cars, containing seed cleaning machinery, exhibits and a lecture room, will pull into Whitby on its six weeks tour of Eastern Ontario. Full day stops will be made at intervals of about 15 miles along the main line of the Canadian National to Cornwall, then north, and back along the Canadian Pacific. Farmers will be invited by the local agricultural representatives to bring their grain along and have it cleaned, while exhibits and lectures will emphasize the importance of sowing only clean, high quality grain and clover.

Plan Your Garden. This is the proper time to plan both the flower and vegetable garden the experts tell us, the job is a bigger one than it appears. The average plot devoted to flowers is usually overcrowded. This particularly applies to that portion of the back or front yard where the perennials are grown. Herbaceous perennial flowers require at least a foot of room, and 18 inches is usually better. Furthermore, these plants should be divided every third year or the foliage will become too rank and the flowers too few. One should not hesitate to take a spade into the garden the first really warm day in the spring, and space the plants, divide the crowns properly. It may look like slaughter, and the space between each plant may appear enormous, but later results will justify the course you have adopted. This is a good time, too, to make up lists of plants and seeds wanted, as well as another list of surplus stuff on hand. Often a trip to a neighbor's will allow you to balance these accounts to mutual advantage.

Good Farm Sales. At the sales of live stock, farm machinery and other equipment which are always very numerous through rural Ontario at this time of the year, prices are reported much higher than formerly. Good milk cows, sheep and sows are in keen demand and there is more enquiry for medium weight horses. Second hand machinery in many cases is commanding within a few dollars of the brand new price. Land too is receiving more attention. A few years ago it was almost impossible to give a farm away, and practically every holding in Ontario was for sale. Today, as a result of the increase in the values of agricultural produce, farmers are not so anxious to sell out and the price of land is rising. Prosperity is returning to the concession lines.

Queen's Stands For Elevated Type Thrift. Lieutenant-Governor Aikens of Manitoba Writes Letter to Principal Taylor. Principal Dr. R. Bruce Taylor received the following letter from Lieutenant-Governor I. A. M. Aikens, for the Province of Manitoba: "Ever since I heard of Queen's, and that was when I was a student at University College, it has been a source of wonder to me and admiration also, how Queen's University took root and grew; without adversity; and with ever deepening grip on its ground, weathered all kinds of opposing winds and thunder and sleet; and was not stunted thereby; but grew sturdily; bore the finest of fruit and is still doing so. Surely it was nourished by some underground, certainly unobtrusive, stream of honest and noble purpose; steadied by the persistent attachment of its founders and their successors; upheld by the unusually strong loyalty of its graduates; and cultivated by its professors and lecturers, that it might produce the best results; purged that it might bring forth more fruit.
