A large number of guests were present and a very enjoyable time was spent in games and dancing. At eleven o'clock refreshments were served. The wedding cake made by the hostess was delicious. It had three storeys and was decorated on the top storey with twenty-five red candles. Several toasts were proposed. Mr. S. J. Lake proposed the toast to the groom, Mr. J. E. Anglin one toast to the bride. Some very fine things were said about Mr. and Mrs. Convery and their handsome new residence which was recently built, with all modern improvements, hard wood floors both upstairs and down and a pipeless furnace. It is one of the most up to date homes in the township. Mr. Bethuel Clark acted as chairman and moved a hearty vote of thanks to the host and hostess for the very delightful evening they gave them. Before leaving the guests joined in singing "For They are Jolly Good Fellows," and everyone wished them many more happy years in their new home.

The Editor Hears

That Flapper Fanny's latest joke is "They call them bungalows because in them the young wife bangles her first year's cooking and the young husband owes for the house."

That a contributor to Anne Merrill's page in the Mail and Empire suggests that the following pledge should be signed by Canadian women: "I promise on my honor, as a patriot, not to purchase knowingly, any article during the next twelve months, that has not been either Canadian or British-made and of these two giving preference to the Canadian article." She adds: "And ban the alien magazines. If there are few Canadian magazines now, there is a big demand. We have the talent and there will soon be good magazines made in Canada."

That a mission being held at St. Mary's cathedral this week will be largely attended by the Roman Catholic women in Kingston. On Sunday evening the missioner stated the bobbed haired women, especially the mothers.

That a lady of an older school used to say to her daughters "Don't linger in your good-byes to a man who sees you home from a party; only the scullery maids do that." We have no scullery maids in Canada, but we seem to have young men whose idea of entertaining the girl who favors them with her society is to spend anything from half an hour to an hour and a half on the doorstep of her boarding house or if possible in the entrance. We notice it is not the prettiest and most attractive girls who are treated in this manner. They can find men to take them to one of our nicest restaurants for supper after the movies, and when they come home they may chat a few minutes at the door before they say good night.

Other people entering the house do not like to find the door of the vestibule blocked by a loverlike couple. That Mrs. Adelaide M. Plumtre, member of the Toronto Board of Education, speaking at a mother and son banquet, said that so far as she knew, for the first time in Canada pupils in some of the High Schools of Toronto sat in their classrooms one afternoon recently and heard the radio deliver its messages to them. She thought it an epochal event, not only in the history of this country, but in an age when so many remarkable things were being achieved.

YOUR SPRING HAT

In a season where marked individuality asserts itself in every phase of the mode, millinery does not lag behind, but is well in the van of fashion—with a thousand and one original ideas carried out in new materials. The mode is crowned with many crowns; there is the high crown beloved of a celebrated modiste of Paris, the draped crown which covers a multitude of styles—in fact, as many authorities have it, the draped crown is the chief thing this season. There is also the square crown developed in many materials or combinations of two of these; there is the lightweight felt—"handkerchief" felt is the latest—and there are hats of the new crocheted materials, delicate and airy, and not least there is the beautiful new ballfrill, a fine straw which is made by skilful hands under water and blocked into shape with infinite care and artistry.

FAMILY MENUS

Breakfast—Canned apricots, cereal, thin cream, eggs poached in milk, on toast, crisp graham toast, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—Barley and mushroom soup, croutons, whole wheat peanut butter bread, apple and celery salad, molasses cookies, milk, tea.

Dinner—Stew of mutton and vegetables with rice, beet greens with lemon sauces, grape fruit pie, graham bread, milk, coffee. This recipe for whole wheat peanut butter bread is a little out of the ordinary and quite delicious. It's worth keeping in mind for picnic use as well as the school lunch box. A filling is not needed in sandwiches, as the bread has a rich, nutty taste all by itself.

Whole Wheat Peanut Butter Bread Three cups whole wheat flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1 1-2 teaspoons salt, 1-2 cup sugar, 1 cup peanut butter, 1 1-2 cups sour milk, 3-4 teaspoon soda, 1 egg. Mix salt, sugar, flour and baking powder. Work in peanut butter. Add egg well beaten. Dissolve soda in 1/2 teaspoon cold water and stir into sour milk. Add to first mixture and beat until smooth and thoroughly blended. Pour into a greased and floured bread pan. Cover and let stand 20 minutes in a warm place. Bake 50 minutes in a moderately hot oven.

The milk should be "clabbered," that is soured until thick. (Copyright, 1926, NBS Service, Inc.)

A Well Laid Table

The success of a meal whether it is simple or elaborate depends to a large extent upon the appearance of the table and room in general. The dining room should be well aired and dusted before the table is set. Then the table should be laid carefully.

"A well laid table," advises Mary A. Dolve, extension specialist in foods and nutrition, "requires that it be first covered with a silence cloth, which may consist of a thin white blanket, heavy cotton flannel or a regular table pad. The table cloth should be large enough to fall from the edge of the table from 9 to 12 inches.

Cover is the term used to express the space occupied by one person at the table with the necessary silver and china. The cover should be large enough to allow freedom; about two feet from plate centre to plate centre is ideal. The silver is placed so that the ends of the knife and fork are one inch from the edge of the table. The knife is placed at the right with the sharp edge toward the plate; the fork at the left, with tines turned up. The other silverware is placed parallel to these, and placed so that the piece to be used first is the farthest away from the plate and the rest in regular order. Bread and butter or salad plates are placed at the tip of the fork and a tiffle to the left. The napkin is placed at the left of the forks with the folds at the upper and left hand sides or is laid on the "place" plate. Fancy foldings are not in good taste.

HER OWN WAY

By a Girl of To-day. THE INEVITABLE QUESTION. Jim Costello's voice was raspy. I could see that he had felt the cuts which the "presumedly society young men had given him. "I had always thought it was only women and girls that kept up that idea of class. I had always thought that men were more democratic."

I laughed and then I blushed, for I didn't want Jimmie to know why Dad had insisted I should marry Charlie Becker. I hesitated as I tried to decide how much I should tell this clever Irishman and how much I should keep to myself.

"You know, Jimmie, Dad thinks a girl out to marry as soon as she can. He thinks that some man must always be the master of a girl's destiny. Father is the best judge, according to himself, as to what I should do and say and think, until my husband appears on the scene and then he's perfectly willing to turn the management over to him. I don't think it would make any particular difference to Father if the young man had the worst of reputations. He still has that lie implanted in his brain that a girl can marry a man and reform him. I don't want that kind, Jimmie. I want to think. I want to work. I want to
