"YPRES" WAR EPIC.

At the Capitol Theatre Starting on Monday.

"Ypres" the British war film, which has been creating such a sensation in British film circles and causing so much discussion in Canada, had its premiere showing in Canada at the Regent, Toronto, Feb. 22nd and packed houses have been the rule for the past three weeks. By special arrangements, it is now brought to Kingston for a limited engagement of three days only, which commences on Monday at the Capitol Theatre.

Epic scenes from the great world tragedy, in which the flower of Canadian manhood fought, conquered, lived and died are enacted over again in this superb film drama, "Ypres." Although the war is happily receding into the shadows past, it still has the power to call up poignant memories of sorrow and pride as the tales of heroism and great deeds of sacrifices are reviewed. A produce of British film craft, "Ypres" depicts the high-lights in the three-year death struggle on the Ypres salient, when the British fought in an never-ending welter of mud and blood to block the way to Calais. "Ypres" is not a tale of fiction, with a tinge of color obtained from some mimic battle-front; it is an historical drama, presenting actual incidents, the majority of them, scenes taken during the course of the fighting in Flanders, and pieced in with scenes taken subsequent to the war, and so cleverly interwoven that it is practically impossible to tell where the real scene begins or ends.

The historic struggle for the supremacy of the Ypres salient in which the Germans attempted all devices known to man and science to break the morale and to conquer the lines of the British forces was presented in accurate detail, and many of the soul-stirring incidents in which the British soldier trod the way to glory and death lighted up the gloomy tragedy. The story is traced from the first arrival of the dauntless army of "Contemptibles," their brilliant stand at the first battle of "Ypres" the holocaust of the gas-attack, the gallant stand of the Canadians, and the mining of the Messines ridge, which marked the turning and enabled the British to make their first real advance. Then the tanks appear on the scene and prove more than a match for the troublesome German pill-boxes. The story is presented in simple but graphic form, entirely devoid of heroics and the whole is lighted up with human interest touches. We take great pride in presenting "Ypres" to the theatregoers of Kingston.

SPORT

WELCOME TO HOCKEY BOYS

Up until noon to-day, Mayor Angrove had received no official word as to when the Kingston hockey team would definitely arrive in the city. It was fully expected that they would arrive some time on Monday, but at what definite hour could not be learned.

Mayor Angrove despatched a telegram to Winnipeg to get information, but arrangements for a reception were not to be made until definite word was received from Winnipeg announcing the hour of the arrival of the team here. The boys however, will be given a royal welcome. That is an assured fact.

AGE LIMIT RAISED.

If So, Kingston Would Have Some Junior Team Next Year.

At the session of the Canada Amateur Hockey Association at Montreal on Thursday, Mr. Frank Calder, President of the National Hockey League, was present and a uniform code of rules for amateur and professional hockey was discussed. Mr. Hewitt was appointed a committee of one to confer with Mr. Calder on the rules.

From what transpired at the meeting, it would not be surprising to see the size of the nets made larger. The goal keepers' pads came in for discussion and the widening of the nets was suggested as the remedy for low scoring games.

It is very probable that the age limit for junior players will be twenty-one years instead of twenty years as at present.

"ROSE MARIE."

Coming to the Strand Theatre, April 5th and 6th.

In planning "Rose Marie," which has drawn international acclaim as the musical success of a lifetime, Arthur Hammerstein broke away from the routine of musical comedies and prepared a piece that is different in its general arrangement from start to finish. This show, which comes to the Grand Theatre for two nights, April 5th and 6th, has drawn all its scenes from Canada, with Quebec and its romantic associations particularly in the foreground. The authors have written a consistent play in which the scenes amid music, girls and gawky, take place in Saskatchewan, in the Kootenays and in Quebec. A scenic feature of the production is a massive replica of the grand ballroom of the famous Chateau Frontenac. A stirring male ensemble portrays the picturesque Northwestern Mounted Police of Canada. Fully 100 persons occupy the stage in song and dance. The songs that linger in the memory are "Rose Marie," "Indian Love Call," "Why Shouldn't We?" "Pretty Things" and "Totem Tom Tom." In the first
