DELIVERS LECTURE ON HORTICULTURE

William P. Macoun, of Ottawa, Speaks at the Dairy School.

Wm. P. Macoun, Dominion Horticulturist, gave on Monday night, the first lecture of a series which is to be given by the Kingston Horticultural Society. The lecture, which was illustrated with lantern slides, was held in the Dairy School and was very well attended. The speaker was a man perhaps better qualified than anyone else in Canada to deal with horticulture in general and he succeeded in making his subject very attractive and beneficial to his audience. Prof. J. MacGillivray, the president of the society, presided.

Mr. Macoun did not attempt any set lecture but confined himself to giving many helpful suggestions along popular lines. Among other things he said that in the past there had been a tendency to plant trees in the centre of the garden but it was found that when they grew they shaded the garden to such an extent that practically nothing else would grow. He suggested planting the trees near the fence or near a shed or the house so that the central part of the garden would get plenty of sunlight.

"Grapes should be planted in a part of the garden where they will get plenty of sunlight," said the speaker, "and they should be pruned severely so that there will not be an excess of foliage to keep the sun from the fruit."

Raspberries should be planted at one side or at one end of the garden, the Dominion Horticulturist suggested, so that they might more easily be kept under control. Rhubarb and asparagus should go in the sunny end or side of the garden. The spot where there was the greatest amount of heat was the right place to plant tomatoes. Mr. Macoun advocated training them up on stakes and pinching out some of the side shoots so that the fruit on the main stems would get a better chance.

It was possible, he believed, to very successfully combine the flower garden and the vegetable garden if proper attention was given to planting before either garden was laid-out. To develop the garden at the back of the lot and leave the front mostly in grass with a few shrubs, was a suggestion he made for better gardens.

Among other miscellaneous suggestions given, was one that young apple trees, just from the nursery, should be pruned until there were only from three to six main branches and no two of these forming a crotch. Mr. Macoun advised his hearers to have plenty of courage in the first few years with young trees and not to be afraid to "cut out the surplus" when the tree was comparatively young made a more graceful tree, he said.

It is possible to have rhubarb all winter if in the fall a couple of plants are put in a box with some soil or some moss and put in a dark corner of the cellar. The plants should be kept watered and at a temperature of about fifty degrees.

Mr. Macoun had blank sheets passed through the audience and anyone who wished could write down a question, which he answered. In this way much valuable information regarding specific problems was gained.

OBITUARY

Miss Victoire Gauthier.

The late Miss Victoire Gauthier, who died in Ottawa on Monday morning, suffered a stroke, over a year ago, but her remarkable vitality allowed her to be conscious to the last. She was born at Alexandria eighty-four years ago, and attended the convent of the Grey Nuns on Sussex street when Ottawa was known as By Town. When her brother, who was to become the second archbishop of Kingston and of Ottawa, was ordained in 1867 she accompanied him to his first parish. For more than a half century she remained with him during his pastorate at Gananoque, Trenton, Williamstown and Brockville. Everywhere her many qualities of mind and heart drew a host of friends to her. A woman of great piety and charity her greatest pleasures were to assist at the holy sacrifice of the mass and to aid the poor.

When His Grace the late Archbishop received his appointment to Kingston she supervised the direction of the household duties at the palace here for twelve years. Following his appointment to Ottawa she took up residence, in retirement, at the convent attached to the Basilica. On the kind invitation of His Grace, Archbishop Emard, following her brother's death, she continued to live there that she might be close to his tomb. She remained of the convent until she suffered a paralytic stroke when she moved to the home of her nieces, the Misses McDonald, 38 College avenue.

Left to mourn her loss are one brother, J. N. Gauthier, Alexandria; six nephews, Rev. Father J. H. McDonald, Toledo; Rev. Father Charles Gauthier, Greenfield; Archie C. McDonald, Ottawa; John Gauthier and Hugh Allan Gauthier, Alexandria; and Joseph Gauthier, California; also nine nieces, Rev. Sister Mary of The Precious Blood, Kingston; the Misses Margaret and Florence McDonald, Ottawa; Mrs. Lewis B. Pruner, Mrs. Gordon E. Howard, Ottawa; Mrs. J. M. Roney, of Pembroke; Miss Gabriela Gauthier, California; Miss Mamie Gauthier, Alexandria, and Miss Kathleen Gauthier.

TELLS WOMEN ABOUT ORIENT EXPERIENCES

Address by Rev. C. J. Curtis Before Athens Women's Institute.

Athens, March 29.—From long residence in Eastern lands as a physician, and as secretary to a British government official, Rev. C. J. Curtis, of this place, has been able to become acquainted with conditions in the Orient as no tourist could ever hope to be, so, from his interesting experiences, he gave a most enlightening address at the Women's Institute, on Saturday afternoon last. He said, in part, that one can scarcely realize the advantages of women in Western lands, until we contrast them with women of the Orient, but, temperamentally, people are much alike, the world around. One notices, there, the absence of women from the streets, from places of business, and energy where men only are in evidence. The architecture is different, the windows are small, and barred; the streets are narrow.

In country life, women take more than their share of work. The people live in little villages, and work the land contiguous to the place, selecting their "farm" by drawing lots each year.

Although polygamy is practiced, yet women are not adverse to the custom, as this addition to the family lightens their home duties, and brings a new interest into the ménage. Many of the women are skilled in house-keeping, some are musicians, many are expert needle-women.

The Mohammedan religion, with them, is a serious matter, and their marriage customs are solemnly observed, the "Go-Between" arranging the matches, and bargaining regarding the dowry expected. Great preparations are made for an elaborate "chest" for the prospective bride, and friends from far and near are allowed to inspect the treasures contained therein.

While there are social distinctions, (and what country has not such?) yet there is no caste system prevailing there, and, when once married, a wife is on the same social plane as her husband and his other wives. While they are "different," yet there is much to commend in their customs, and western ideas and manners cannot be thrust upon them without a degree of modification.

The "Institute Carol," a piano duet by the Misses Eleanor Young and Jean Chant, and a piano solo by Miss Genovva Yates added much to the pleasure of the occasion.

FOR Acid Stomach PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia

Instead of soda hereafter take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

Better Than Soda
For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. Besides, it neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges this souring waste from the system without purging. It is far more pleasant to take than soda.

Insist Upon "Phillips"
