URGED TO REMAIN IN RELIGIOUS YOUTH

Rev. R. Bruce Taylor Deplores Tendency to "Grow Old in Religion."

A New York despatch says: "There is nothing which moves on like religion," said the Rev. R. Bruce Taylor, principal of Queen's University, Kingston, Ont., in his sermon Sunday in the chapel of the Union Theological Seminary. He declared that "every generation must tackle its own problem" in regard to Christianity.

"It is not a document we are concerned with," he said. "It is a man, Christ. Do you wonder that any church which holds on to a fixed creed today finds itself in difficulty? Why be afraid of new things? Anything which can be discovered is bound to add to the glory of God."

The tendency of people to "grow old in religion," he said, was responsible for much of the pessimism toward Christianity, and he urged his hearers to remain in religious youth, "when anything may happen." Age brings resistance to change, susceptibility to a fixed, documentary religion and a longing for the "good old times," which were no better, he said, than to-day.

"In the world-of-to-day, scourged by war, people have shown themselves to be no more selfish than before," he concluded. "We are growing more alive, quicker and more sympathetic. We are not bound by any fixity; but we must see to it that we do not grow old. The world changes and religion with it. Bringing new and perhaps better views of Christianity, it is a living Lord who steps forth to-day to meet an anxious and restless world."

Funeral of Mrs. Sarah Godwin. The funeral of the late Mrs. Sarah Godwin, widow of the late William H. Godwin, took place from the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Robert J. Allen, 354 Brock street, on Tuesday afternoon, at Cataract cemetery, where the remains were placed in the vault to await burial. The funeral was attended by many friends. Many floral tributes were placed on the casket, a silent tribute to the high place held in the hearts of her friends by the late Mrs. Godwin.

The funeral services were conducted by Rev. W. T. G. Brown of Sydenham Street United Church, assisted by Rev. J. D. Boyd, an old friend of deceased. The pall-bearers were Mayor T. B. Angrove, Dr. S. A. Akyroyd, Robert Michie, J. W. Smith, T. R. Carnovsky and John Elliott.

Word has been received at Ottawa that two Osageo Township brothers died on the same day. James Gillis, 52, died at Detroit, while John Gillis, 47, died at Vernon, Ont.
