ODESSA FAMILY HAS A NARROW ESCAPE WHEN HOME BURNED TUESDAY MORNING

R. W. Fars, His Wife and Three Children Used a Rope to Make Their Way From Second Storey to the Ground.

When fire broke out in the general store of R. W. Fars, at the village of Odessa, about 4 o'clock on Tuesday morning, Mr. Fars, his wife, three children and the dog had a very close call.

They live in apartments over the store, and when awakened from their sleep, found the place filled with smoke. Mr. Fars tied a rope to the piano, and throwing it out of the window, he and the members of his family, made their way down to an awning, and then down to the ground. The dog was also rescued.

The damage will amount to about $1,800, and the fire is believed to have started in a stock of matches. A quantity of firecrackers also caught fire, and just as the firecrackers were exploding, a couple of men who happened to be passing at the time, were hammering on the front door, in an endeavor to awaken the members of the family.

The two men who discovered the fire, were on their way from Kingston, conveying a dead body from the parlors of a local undertaker. They noticed the store on fire and ran to give the alarm.

Mr. Fars says that just as he heard the noise at the front door, he was also disturbed by what he believed to be the exploding of firecrackers in his store. He lost no time in getting out of bed and sounding a general alarm, for his wife and three children. Smoke was filling the rooms, and he figured that the best way to escape would be through one of the windows, and so tying a rope to the piano, he threw it out of the window, and in this way the entire family made their escape, also the dog.

The damage will be chiefly through water and smoke. The fire call was sounded, and in a short time many of the villagers were on hand to help fight the blaze. They formed a bucket brigade, securing the water from the small stream which is located about one hundred yards from the store.

The building is a two-storey frame, sheeted with iron. The building and stock are insured. The adjusters were on the scene today.

Mr. Fars purchased the general store from Mr. D. O. Frink about six months ago. The store is on the north side of the street.

PLEA FOR GREATER FOREST PROTECTION

Made to Kiwanis Club by Prof. W. T. MacClement of Queen's University.

Professor W. T. MacClement of Queen's University, the speaker at the meeting of the Kiwanis Club at the regular weekly luncheon held Monday at noon at the Frontenac Hotel, dealt with the forest situation in Canada and made a strong plea for much greater protection for the Canadian forests. The address was one of the most interesting heard at the Kiwanis Club in a long time.

In opening his remarks, the speaker turned to the sentimental side of the forests, describing the tree as the most complex form of vegetable life, just as man was highest form of animal life. He referred to the great age of many trees, some of them still living after four thousand years of life while others with two thousand years behind them were flourishing. Many of them had passed through what is termed history, and it was wonderful that they were still growing and possessed of life. People seemed indifferent to the tree, Professor MacClement said, and seemed to think little about its destruction. Not more than one per cent, he estimated, cared anything about the great destruction of the trees of the Canadian forests.

Where people read of forest fires, they dismissed the news with the thought that the Government had suffered a loss or that the timber interests had lost a great deal of money, but he said that they thought little. Little was thought of the great forest resources that were lost. The people had felt for so long that their forest resources were unlimited and that these losses did not mean much. The speaker stated that quite the contrary was the fact. The forest destruction was very great and the replacements were not to be compared with the losses suffered. Professor MacClement went so far as to say that the country was facing the possibility of a forest famine.

The speaker referred to the great increase in the cost of lumber. He remembered as a boy when white pine sold for $22 but now the price was $150 per thousand. Professor MacClement pointed out the tremendous increase in the price of lumber every few years. Canada had, he said, 575,000,000 acres of forest land and if she was able to preserve this she could sell the forest resources to the world.

Tremendous Loss.
Professor MacClement declared that more than 85 per cent. of the forests of Canada belonged to the people of Canada and the loss to them in the forests alone was estimated at over 10,000 acres every day of the year from fires. The lumber industry until lately had been the greatest in Canada with agriculture ranking second, but agriculture had forged ahead. The making of paper pulp was a great industry, saw-milling next and four-milling next. There are 20,000,000 tons of pulp made per year and Canada was next to the United States, which was the greatest in the world in this industry. United States, of course, despite general belief, had twice the commercial timber area of Canada.

Speaking of the exports of Canada, Professor MacClement declared that the forests of Canada produced one-fourth of the exports of the country. They employed 100,000 men who received $100,000,000 annually. Seventy-five per cent. of the wood demanded by the world was soft wood and this was secured only in Canada, Russia, Norway and Sweden.

Speaking of Ontario, the speaker said, it was known she had the banner crop. Seventy-five per cent. of the area of Ontario would never produce any other crop but trees. These forests fires which destroy these trees left in their wake a veritable desert from which it took perhaps a hundred years before it was good for reforestation work again. The great forest fire of 1825 in New Brunswick had left its scar, which can yet be seen. It was estimated that from 1900 to 1924 over an area of 4,700,000 acres the value of $13,890,000 was lost from fires. Last year was a rather dry season and there were 5,499 fires over an area of 1,917,000 acres with a loss of $6,646,000.

Criminal Carelessness.

Professor MacClement declared that the cause of these fires was due largely to criminal carelessness. He estimated that not more than five or six per cent. of the fires were caused by lightning. At least ninety per cent. he estimated were lost through carelessness by tourists, hunters, prospectors, campers and by railroads which did not apply spark arresters to their engines. The result of these losses meant a direct tax on the people of Canada. These losses must be made up by the Government and since the Government was the people, they were the ones who paid. Labor lost, the merchant lost, the railway lost and the tourist trade was lost, as a result of these terrible forest fires.

The speaker paid a great tribute to the foresters who business it is to check these fires. Even at that, the country was paying less than half a cent an acre for forest protection, something hard to understand. More should be invested in fire protection. The ability of foresters to detect fires, even to the location of a lot, was remarkable, the speaker said. He cited the case of one of the foresters who had followed a camping party and had put out five fires that they had left burning. Professor MacClement advocated prison terms for careless people like these without the option of a fine. Forests should be considered as a crop. In some countries it had been found profitable to plant forests on land which cost as high as $8 an acre. While the insect pests, the speaker concluded, were a great menace to the forests, the human pests were far more dangerous.

Heartily applause was accorded Professor MacClement at the close of his very interesting and instructive address and a vote of thanks to him was moved by Kiwanian R. H. Fair.

Club Business.

The matter of presenting a cup for competition to the Holstein Breeders' Association of the County of Frontenac was again brought up by Kiwanian Mills, seconded by Kiwanian Rowland, and it was decided to present the cup. The conditions attached were that at least three herds must compete for the cup and under the rules of the Kingston Fair. The competition is to be open not only to the Holstein Breeders' Association but to those outside of it as well. The cup must be won three times to become the permanent property of the winner.

The proposal brought forward two weeks ago by Kiwanian Fraser Armstrong to establish a Boys' Potato Club was again up for discussion. The object appealed to the members of the club and it was decided to try it out, but the executive will outline the rules for the Club to follow. It is expected that a large number of the Kiwanians will take part in this movement.

The booster for the day was Kiwanian John Donnelly, who was away in Toronto. He left the prize, however, which was a soft collar and handkerchief case. It was won by Kiwanian Robert Reid.

Sudden Death at Perth.

The large circle of friends and acquaintance in Perth and the surrounding country of Richard Nagle were shocked on Sunday, April 11th, to learn of his death. Mr. Nagle had been in his usual good health up to a day or two before and had only been slightly indisposed on Friday and Saturday, but died suddenly during the night from heart failure. He was born on the 5th concession of Bathurst seventy-four years ago, son of Joseph Nagle and Rose Ann Bennett and was continuously a resident of Bathurst until a few years ago when he sold his farm and moved to Perth.
