Sour Stomach Risings Subdued by "Nerviline"

A Few Drops Bring Relief

The wonderful relief you get from twenty drops of Nerviline will surprise you. Take it in sweetened water, and almost immediately you feel better. Nerviline brings up the gas caused by fermenting food, and relieves that distressed feeling in the stomach. When colic or cramps strike you at night, Nerviline is a sure relief. For general use in the family, for emergent ills, always keep trusty Nerviline on hand. 25c. at all dealers.

The Women's Institute Horticultural Exhibit at the Kingston Fair

MRS. A. W. SIRETT, Convener of Horticultural Committee of Frontenac W. I.

MRS. J. D. SHIBLEY, HARROWEMITH, President of Frontenac W. I.

MRS. G. W. McNAUGHTON, SYDENHAM, Secretary-Treasurer of Frontenac W. I.

"For Home and Country" is the motto of the Women's Institute and the enterprises undertaken by this, the largest international women's society known, have always the welfare of the homes of the country and therefore the country itself as a foundation.

The executive of the district of Frontenac set themselves to consider what they would bring before the thirteen branches of this county this year as an objective and, while the snow was covering the ground, conceived the idea of a special horticultural exhibit at the Kingston Industrial Exhibition to be held in September, to be put on by the Institutes of Frontenac. Mrs. A. W. Sirett, the wife of the district representative of the Provincial Department of Agriculture for Frontenac county; Mrs. J. D. Shibley, Harrowemith, president of the district of Frontenac and Mrs. G. W. McNaughton, Sydenham, secretary-treasurer for the district, were chosen as a committee, and owing to their executive ability and tact, things are well underway.

Mr. R. J. Bushell, the fair manager, and his directors, have in every way co-operated with the ladies and three spaces in the building have been allotted to them. Their fair has also set aside $100 in prize money, and this has been augmented by the city merchants, the daily papers and friends of the W.I. The Kingston Horticultural Society is taking a deep interest in this venture, and especially so as all the Frontenac Institutes have joined the society by the payment of the dollar fee and are taking advantage of the advice on the cultivation of plants given in literature and lectures.

The executive has bought $100 worth of bulbs and seeds which have been distributed in packages, carefully counted by an outsider, to the Institutes. Two thousand gladioli bulbs are included in this lot and in addition, Frederick Kent, Port Perry, has given some of his choicest dahlia roots to the Institutes, and a friend has given seeds of perennials and shrubs to be distributed among the Institutes of Frontenac. The special prizes will be paid from the district executive by the secretary-treasurer.

One of the most interesting features will be the championship table decoration competition. In August the thirteen Institutes will each hold a competition of their members to see who will decorate a table most artistically, and the ladies chosen from each branch will compete at the fair, when Miss Mildred Galbraith, Toronto, president of the Ontario Rose Society, will be the judge.

A great interest in this exhibition is being taken in the county and in every report received from the Institutes it is referred to. This effort for home and country will be fraught with great advantages. Not only will a love of beauty be increased but yards that have been unfenced, a gathering place for cattle, will be turned into lovely gardens and instead of being a breeding place for flies, will be filled with fragrant flowers. Then, too, the butter and egg money, usually the portion of the farmers' wife and daughters will be augmented for flowers, are the better for frequent gathering and the city folk who have no gardens of their own will be able to buy on the Kingston market fresh flowers grown in their own county. The property of the flower-growers will also increase in value, for a farm with a pretty farmhouse set in a well-cultivated garden will sell for more money than a farm with a neglected bare-looking house.

The fair will have an added attraction this year, for most people love flowers and much interest is sure to be aroused by this forward movement of the women of Frontenac.

well-known medical men of a past generation, Dr. Sampson. Since the removal of the ward patients to the new clinic building, these old wards that have housed patients for such a long time have been put to other uses. Yates ward, named for another Kingston doctor, Dr. Horatio Yates, has been made into a nurses' lecture room, and other rooms are used for the probation nurses. Early in the new year the Hospital Aid enlisted the interest of the women's societies of the city churches and with their aid have made 87 maids' aprons and 40 dresses. The sewing meetings are held every second Monday in hospital and tea is served during the afternoon to the busy needlewomen. The work of the sewing woman of the hospital is greatly assisted in this way, and when the maids are completely outfitted, Mr. Fraser Armstrong has other work for this useful auxiliary.

The churches whose women workers have assisted in this good work are St. James', Chalmers, Sydenham street, Queen street, the Baptist, Cooke's and St. George's Cathedral.

That every day some one tells us of the birds that are coming back to us. This week two golden orioles came back to a house in Portsmouth where all the birds are made welcome and the mistress of this charming home tells us that the pheobes are nesting in the veranda rafters. The song sparrows, who came very early this year, were overtaken by the great snow storm of Easter Eve, and took refuge in a corner of the garden where some tall sweet clover still has seeds for the hungry visitors. A few warm days would bring us the first of the warblers, that large family of useful birds who gather insects from the trees before they have time to do much damage.

That this is the time to make preparation against flies. The spring has been so unusually cold that we have almost forgotten there are such things, but the spring is the time to guard against these dangerous visitors. Let us "swat the fly" with persistence and vigor.

THIS WOMAN MAY BE OLDEST IN THE WORLD.

Oldham, England, may be soot-ridden, but it boasts of being the home of the oldest woman in the World. She is "Granny" Turner who is credited with 103 years, and is still adding to her account with Time.

Mrs. Mary Ann Turner became an inmate of the workhouse in 1917. There is no actual record of her birth, but she was born in Oldham before Queen Victoria saw the light of day. She broke her thigh in 1922, but being then only 105 years old she made a rapid recovery. It is hard to understand what Mrs. Turner says. This is unfortunate, since she might otherwise be able to throw some light on Napoleonic times, the industrial revolutions, Chartist movement, Crimean war, Indian mutiny and the cotton famine. She has, however, been known to speak of the day when England ruled Hanover and the traction engine was one of the wonders of the age. Mrs. Turner takes a lively interest in all that goes on around her, and is occasionally visited by grandchildren, who themselves have reached a ripe old age.

Home Thoughts, From Abroad.

Oh, to be in England Now that April's there, And whoever wakes in England Sees, some morning, unaware, That the lowest boughs and the brushwood sheaf Round the elm-tree hole are in tiny leaf, While the chaffinch sings on the orchard bough in England—now!

And after April, when May follows, And the whitethroat builds, and all the swallows! Hark, where my blossomed pear-tree in the hedge Leans to the field and scatters on the clover Blossoms and dewdrops—at the bent spray's edge— That's the wise thrush; he sings each song twice over, Lest you think he never could recapture The first fine careless rapture! And though the fields look rough with hoary dew, All will be gay when noontide wakes anew The buttercups, the little children's dower Far brighter than this gaudy melon-flower.

A failing appetite often means that your system is not clearing itself of impurities. ENO helps Nature to maintain the proper functions of the eliminative organs which purify the blood and restore those conditions of digestion which bring back a normal eagerness for food.

"I was just worryin' about the things left over from dinner, an' us havin' no dog, an' Cousin Edgar come in."

MENUS

- Breakfast—Stewed figs, cereal, thin cream, waffles, syrup, milk, coffee. Luncheon—Scalloped cheese, hearts of lettuce with French dressing, rye bread, canned pears, sponge drops, milk, tea. Dinner—Shoulder of lamb, buttered rice, parsnip patties, grape fruit salad, whole wheat bread, banana snow, milk, coffee. The shoulder of lamb should be boned by the butcher. Roll and tie firmly when ready to roast. A dressing made of bread can be used before rolling the meat and if a little meat is wanted to go a long way the dressing or stuffing helps out materially.
