THE FAIRBANKS FILM
A STREAM OF ACTION

The glory that was Spain's now belongs to Douglas Fairbanks, who has captured it and put it into his new photoplay, "Don Q. Son of Zorro," which is the featured attraction which opens at the Capital Theatre to-day.

The story is the graceful though swift unfolding of the adventures of a young Spaniard who is sent to his motherland from California, there to finish his education.

How he meets and woos a gorgeous beauty; how he captures a bull running rampant in the streets; how he fights a duel with the villain; how he performs astounding feats with a stock whip; how he becomes accused of the murder of a visiting archduke; how he then turns into the mysterious and much-hunted Don Q;—these and innumerable other angles furnish a plot of many complicated twists that keys audience interest to a high pitch.

The climax of "Don Q. Son of Zorro," Fairbanks' latest United Artists' Corporation feature, is one of the most thrilling, unique, and at the same time humorous, that has ever been presented. As a matter of fact, were it not for the comedy relief furnished in the star's laughable pranks, the tension of the picture would be too great a tax on any audience.

THE WOLFE ISLANDER
CROSSES THE HARBOR

Reaches Island Wharf on Thursday Morning—Ice
Is Breaking Up.

Capt. MacDonald, with the steamer Wolfe Islander, left the landing quarters here about eight o'clock Thursday morning, and about 10:30 succeeded in landing at the Wolfe Island wharf. The mild weather of Wednesday night weakened the ice considerably, and Capt. MacDonald experienced very little trouble in smashing through between Wolfe and Garden Islands.

The people residing on Wolfe Island were quite elated over the re-establishing of traffic communications with Kingston, as the Islander will start making the regular trips now. The steamer returned to the city after two o'clock and made another trip back to Wolfe Island at 4:30 o'clock.

As the result of the Wolfe Islander making a passage to the island, the ice is breaking up fast and is slowly drifting down the river. A strong wind will clear the ice away and open navigation.

SIR JOHN MARTIN HARVEY
IN "THE CORSICAN BROTHERS"

"The Corsican Brothers," to be played by Sir John Martin Harvey at the Grand Theatre, Wednesday evening, April 28th, is the story of twin brothers, alike in appearance and so closely knit spiritually and mentally that even when absent from each other, each one knew the other's doings and thoughts to a great extent, and suffered for each other when there was trouble. They loved or hated the same people, and each one knew that if the other died the departed one would at once appear to the other. This, with the mysterious and superstitions of Corsica, is the groundwork of the story, wherein they both loved the same woman—who married someone else.
