SOWING AND REAPING.

Just now many homes are aglow with the seductive seed catalogues. Orange and scarlet and green and blue they gleam and glow upon the living room table like unto all the jewels of Aladdin.

An enthusiastic lover of the growing plants bursts into this panegyric: "In the happy simplicity of the 'Memaris' ages the great heroes sought rest and peace in their garden plots, or over a mess of pulse or sorgho."

Legend tells us of the cooking skill of such heroes as the mighty Ulysses who kindled the fire and laid the cloth. Achilles turning the spit, Patroclus drawing the wine.

The pages of Ovid, Livy and Horace tell again and again of the delights of gardening, and what profit it is a man if he rule the whole world or write a mighty saga and cannot hoe his own?

HELP BUILD UP MANHOOD.

Premier King is a great believer in preparation being made to help the young people into a better state of manhood when they arrive at that crisis in life.

THE PRICE OF COLLEGES.

What price for a college education? It has been estimated in the United States that a bachelor's degree costs four years of time and constant application to school work and $4,500; the master's, five years and $6,000; and the doctorate, seven years and $8,500.

This does not include the millions of dollars spent annually by the state for maintaining institutions of higher learning. Students attending college and those who plan to enter will do well to consider the tremendous investment which they are making and strive to gain the utmost value from the time and money spent.

Students who take their college work seriously, as an important foundation for future life, will find em-players eager to give them a chance. But students who think that their life work is completed when they have been graduated will find that while a college diploma will get them their first job, it may never get them a second.

MAKE A FINE CLEAN-UP.

Collections of rubbish about the yards are responsible for much of the fly breeding and public dumps and may also constitute a public source of these insects. If accumulations of rubbish containing organic matter are permitted, fly breeding is inevitable.

If the energy displayed in late season fly campaigns could be directed into proper channels during April and May and people would realize that strict cleanliness and the immediate destruction of all filth and garbage are essential through the year the fly problem would be solved.

STANDARDIZE CANADIAN GOODS.

The Saskatchewan Star is hoping for standardization of Canadian dairy products. In Great Britain it is the standardized article that wins in competition. British consumers buy a commodity which they can rely on finding always the same, not only in quality but in appearance.

GOOD ADVICE.

Pay as you go! This is golden advice that will keep the business world moving, the wheels of industry from rusting out, and the money will surely come back to you. It should not be forgotten that the world is round.

VALUE OF LITTLE THINGS.

The value of little things is tremendously great in the aggregate, remarks the Schenectady, N.Y. Union Star, as is indicated in the recent statement by the express company that in five years its campaign to reduce loss from breakage has saved it nine million dollars.

It seems a little thing that one packing box should burst, or that one hamper of cucumbers should collapse, or one crate of eggs be dropped; but it is from just such little things that the great losses of previous years were made up. In the year 1921, the losses to the American Railway Express Company from claims of one sort or another growing out of carelessness aggregated more than thirteen million dollars.

SLAVERY STILL EXISTS.

The comfortable belief that slavery and the slave trade are things of a disreputable past has gained wide credence. It will come, therefore, as rather a shock to many to be told by such an eminent authority as Sir Frederick Lugard, a former Governor of Nigeria, that "the traffic in slaves from Africa to Arabia, chiefly from Abyssinia, is very considerable, and that there is also regular traffic in the sale of 'attendants' by pilgrims from Nigeria and other parts of Moslem Africa to Mecca and of girls from Java and Malaya, who had gone to Mecca for like purpose."

A BOY'S WISDOM.

Here are words out of the mouth of a boy of ten. They are written about his hero and in their simplicity lies the unadorned eloquence of sincerity. He writes: "He pitches his best all the time, whether he is winning or losing. He plays a clean, square game all the time. He is the same kind of a fellow off the field as when he is on the field. He lives a clean, healthy life, which helps him in anything he does. He does not take all of the glory, but gives others their share. That is why he is my favorite player and I will always try to be like him."

This Edwin Marshall, the boy, writes about Walter Johnson, the ball player. A credo, if you will, of the boys of all this continent. Something to be pondered and digested by all of us old heads who are worrying about the younger generation.

A FEW STILL TAKE DARES.

A boy crawls out to the perilous edge of the ice in Lake Michigan to rescue a comrade and holds his head above water until help comes.

A policeman hangs to the bridle of a runaway milk-wagon horse, is tramped upon, but halts the runaway. Another policeman leaps into the icy river to save a carpenter who fell from a bridge where he was at work. There are still a few who will take dares.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

William Wrigley says the sun never sets on Chicago chewing gum, but most everybody else does.

Kindness is the Golden Rule put into practice; therefore the eternal obligation is to be always kind.

Peggy Joyce, actress, is going to get married and a great many think it is news. It's merely repetition!

If you are knocking when Opportunity knocks, sagely remarks the Brandon Sun, you're liable not to hear her.

The Quebec system of liquor control is impossible in the United States, is the opinion of the Water-town, N.Y., Times.

If persons want to create trouble they talk loudly and seek disorder. In England peace in the coal areas cannot come while men talk strike.

"Stop, look and listen" is the appeal to all Canadians before making any wholesale denunciation of the tariff before it has been tested.

Ontario and Quebec are to confer with a view to eliminating double taxation of estates. When officials get together they can generally get somewhere.

The probability is that in the coming provincial elections the voters will be divided into two classes—those who vote as they pray and those who vote as they drink.

A Dominion Senator predicts that the King Government will be forced to appeal to the country in June, observes the Hamilton Herald. The Senator's name is L'Esperance, which means hope.

Paris shows a decline of 25,000 in population in five years. There, as in London and New York, the drift is to the suburbs. London's population is declining; so is that of Manhattan and part of Brooklyn.

On Ottawa centennial gives as a secret of longevity: "Take care of yourself and mind your own business." The latter part of the advice, suggests the Peterboro Examiner, will lead to a pleasant life anyway, if not to a long one.

The Toronto Mail and Empire says the government brought down its perverse, wrong and unpopular budget so that it could go to the country in a general election. This is a new method of operation, probably designed by that "committee of strategy." Sounds like it! However the popular budget may work to governmental advantage.

An Ontario high school principal suggests that if the high schools and colleges teach the first year university work, then the public schools should take the first year of high school. Thousands of students, either from economic necessity or inclination, have no idea of completing their high school course. Why not let graduation from public school mean a little more than it does at present?

The world makes progress toward the ending of pain. A new anaesthetic, called propylene, produced from artificial gas, is said to possess decided advantage over previous preparations of this kind. It is declared to be twice as powerful as ethylene, and swift in permitting recovery, as full consciousness returns within a minute after the flow of gas is stopped. It is said by Popular Mechanics Magazine that in fifteen major operations only one patient was rendered sick by the gas.

Nova Scotia youth who ate 84 eggs to win a bet says he wants to go to college. That shows that in addition to the 84 eggs in his stomach he's got one good idea in his head.—Ottawa Journal.

But he doesn't know what college life is like. Why, every time he came on the campus all the other students would crow and cackle and roost on the fences.—Toronto Star.

That's just Varsity style! Queen's would have him on the football team, for the rail birds to crow about.

News and Views.

Dunning Wakes Them Up. Winchester Press: It may be that Hon. Charles Dunning, the new Minister in the King Government, is a little "fresh" and "breezy," but it is the fresh, breezy and, we might add, bright men who come from the West. Notwithstanding the criticism of B. L. Baker, M.P. for Toronto, Hon. Mr. Dunning will make his presence felt at Ottawa and in the Dominion. Mr. Baker's criticism was out of place, and is evidence that already some of the "old ginks" at Ottawa realize that they have to sit up and take notice.

What Partisanship Does. Brockville Recorder and Times: The joke of it all is that had Mr. Dunning seen fit to become a Conservative instead of a Liberal and had he risen from the status of a poor British immigrant to the Conservative Premiership of a Province and then membership in a Conservative Federal Cabinet, the "Hymn of Hate" which members of that party are now chanting would have given way to a modern version of "Love's Sweet Song." How strange it is that a party label should make so much difference!

The National Trade Board. Toronto Globe: The opening of quarters at Ottawa by the recently organized Dominion Board of Trade should mark the beginning of a new spirit in Canadian development. If the advance notices as recorded at the national conference in Winnipeg may be taken at their face value. The proposal to found an institution which would correlate the activities of the various trade bodies of the country and at the same time provide the most advanced suggestions arising from that gathering. It was the logical outcome of a convention devoted to a discussion of practical national problems. Such an organization conducted upon constructive lines can be of inestimable service if it remains truly national in its range of thought and activity, and does not become the adjunct of a group of Trade Boards or the servant of any dominating section.

Our Great Waterway. Montreal Star: An intensive study of the whole problem of the water levels of the St. Lawrence is to be made by a representative committee of all interests connected with the navigation of this highway. This was the decision reached at a meeting convened by the board of trade and it is to be hoped that out of its sessions will emerge an end to the dangerous lowering of the water at Canadian ports. What harm this is doing to our trade was revealed by some of the speakers at its meeting. Mr. Wainwright of the Canadian Pacific Steamships, estimated that the company with which he is associated lost not less than 44,000 tons of cargo during last season, owing to the lowness of the levels, and Mr. R. W. Reford said that it was no uncommon thing for a vessel to sail with from 1,500 to 2,000 tons below capacity owing to the same cause. Even in the smallest vessel, he said, the lowering of the water level by a single inch meant a loss of fifty tons of cargo.

Quebec Viewpoint

Le Soleil's eulogizes the latest Robb budget and shows an unbounded optimism.

"What we wish to bring out is the democratic side of the measures proposed by Hon. Mr. Robb after his mastery summing up of the financial situation of our country. We have often said, in fact, that the Liberal Party which was born of the people and has remained with the people, governed for each and all, before seeking to govern for castes, classes or groups. The prisoner of no one and servant of all, insensible to the demands of monied appetites which impose taxes on the tomes, it knows how to bridle the oppressive instincts of certain groups to distribute its solicitude equally between each category of citizens and each branch of national activity."

"All sources of revenue have been weighed at their proper worth and each one put in its place. It is well that the man of modest salary or persons living on fixed incomes, who have thus far paid their tribute to Caesar the most faithfully, shall see the task of repairing the damage done by the old regime shared by those who are more fortunate. "Moreover, the day is coming when the burden of the people will be lightened by the general prosperity itself which is approaching rapidly. With a little good will on the part of a few people who are obstinate in their political pessimism, Canada will soon see the golden age."

La Patrie makes no bones about its opinion that the morals of the United States are in a bad way.

"There is in the United States today an association which is working very actively for the advancement of atheism. Some time ago there was established amongst the students at the University of Rochester an athletic society under the name of 'Socis Damned.' Other organizations of the same kind are to be formed in other United States colleges including Yale University. These societies will have their own autonomy, but will be affiliated with the national organization. What kind of a directing is being prepared for tomorrow? On what kind of a volcano will our powerful neighbors be dancing in the near future?"
