ATTORNEY-GENERAL ON GORDON SIMPSON CASE

Says He Has No Information as to the Next Step to Be Taken.

Attorney-General Nickle, when asked by The Whig, stated that he had no information as to what the next step would be in the Gordon Simpson case.

Simpson, it will be remembered, was charged with breaking into the St. Clair and Oakwood branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia in Toronto soon after the made his sensational escape from Portsmouth penitentiary with Red Ryan and others. Simpson declared he did not participate in the hold-up and produced some evidence to show that he was elsewhere on the day it happened. The jury on the case disagreed as to a verdict and up to date no announcement has been made as to whether Simpson will be given another trial or not. Officials at the penitentiary have received no word as to when they can expect Simpson's return.
