What the Press Agents Say About Coming Attractions

MARK TWAIN FILM FOR CAPITOL THEATRE MONDAY

As a re-issued attraction, the Capitol Theatre will show, for two days only, beginning Monday, the big William Fox film version of Mark Twain's funniest book, "A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court."

A readers of Mark Twain will realize, this book offers wonderful scope to a motion picture director, and it is surprising that no producer until now has undertaken to put it on the screen. The Fox production is on a huge scale, bringing out the full force of all the situations invented by Mark Twain's fertile imagination, and translating for the eye all the splendor of medieval court life that Twain had described in words. It aroused the greatest enthusiasm at a pre-release run in Los Angeles.

"A Connecticut Yankee" is more than funny; it conveys an argument of striking force. It sets out to prove the thesis that we are as good as our great-grandfathers. It is the fashion nowadays to talk of the "good old times"; Mark Twain shows us just what the "good old times" really were like.

HAROLD LLOYD COMING.

If you have tears, prepare to hide them; if you have cares, prepare to shed them; and if you have troubles, prepare to forget them, for Harold Lloyd is coming.

Harold—with his lenseless spectacles and ingratiating smile; his shy, appealing manner and wholesome, contagious humor—is coming to the Capitol for four days starting Wednesday next, in his latest feature, "For Heaven's Sake!" To make you laugh and chuckle and grin and guffaw and roar at his antics, adventures and thrilling experiences as a missionary in the slums of a big city.

Of course, there's a girl at the bottom of Harold's strenuous soul-saving efforts—a lovely and lovable girl, charmingly personified by Jobyna Ralston, who furnishes the love interest so necessary to every well-balanced photoplay.

MARINE

The steamer Yorkton of the Matthews line was expected to clear from her winter quarters today, for ports west.

The steamer Okaton cleared for ports west today.

The Keybell and the Keyport of the Key Steamship Line cleared west from their winter quarters today, leaving one Key boat, which is receiving repairs at the Collingwood shipyard, in the harbor.

The steamer City of Ottawa arrived here this morning from Montreal and after unloading a cargo of package freight at the C. S. L. office, cleared for Toronto and Hamilton.

The steamer Padron arrived here with a load of coal yesterday for the Sowards' Coal Company.

The Family Market Basket

The market Saturday morning was very large, and potatoes were again scarce, the few that were being sold at four dollars a bag, an increase from last week's quotations. Eggs were very plentiful, but also a jump in price, 37 to 28 cents a dozen being asked for them. Butter and meat prices remained the same and plenty of vegetables could be purchased at popular prices. Maple syrup was also very much in evidence, and was priced at $2 a gallon.

New Steamer For Gananoque Route

The Steamer Champion, a paddle-wheel boat 143 feet long and with a capacity for about 20 cars has been purchased by the Thousand Island Navigation Co., and will go on the Gananoque and Clayton route in conjunction with the Steamer Frontenac.

The Champion left Quebec on Friday evening under the command of Captain Roy Carnegie with Captain Ross Carnegie as mate, and it should reach Kingston on Monday.

The new steamer is a handsome boat and will no doubt add very considerably to the efficiency of the Thousand Island Navigation Company's service.

Shock Least Pious.

"Easter Sunday morning in the Holiest of Holies—the aim and end of many a perilous pilgrimage in the past, the cherished wish of Christians throughout the centuries. The cold light of early morning reveals a scene calculated to shock the sensibilities of the least pious. The body of the church, a rotunda giving entrance to small chapels, surrounds the mausoleum containing the Tomb of Christ. Two galleries run round the dome; the walls supported by pillars, between which temporary wooden boxes, after the manner of painters' cradles, have been erected in tiers, lending the sacred edifice the appearance of a circus.

"The boxes are filled to overflowing, so that the thin wood creaks and squeaks as their occupants endeavor to straighten out their cramped limbs after a night of confinement. Mattresses, blankets, pillows hung over the edges, in much the same way as bedding is aired out of the windows in a Continental town.

Unchristian Hatred.

"Below, standing room only. Weary mothers holding babies, old men, small children limited to the space of their two feet. Travellers from all quarters of the globe, of strange complexion and foreign tongue, curiously garbed, push, hustle each other angrily, filled with unchristian hatred. The outburst generally comes between the priests of different sects, and not until the peace breakers have been arrested is order restored.

"No words can describe the scenes of disorder and savagery which take place around Christ's sepulchre for three and a half hours. Once in the boxes there is no descending. One ladder serves the lot. Four thousand people at least packed in the rotunda, where the air becomes more putrid every minute. The only big door has been shut since nine in the morning, to prevent a rush into the already overcrowded church. About 12.30 the actual ceremony begins. The Greek Patriarch, with full complement of priests, headed by twelve banners, make three tours of the sepulchre. The dense crowd is with difficulty kept back by soldiers and police to make way for the procession.

Frantic Crowds.

"Suddenly the bells begin to ring—a signal that the Holy Fire is descending. As one man, the crowd expectantly gazes upwards, while during their pre-occupation a small, round trap-door in the sepulchre is opened—a long tongue of flame shoots forth.

"Each one of the four thousand people is furnished with a bunch of candles in the form of a torch, and the scene which follows is almost indescribable in its awfulness. Some ten men, carrying large blazing torches, precipitate themselves into the screaming, frantic, maddened crowd, who have no room to move. All the four thousand holding unlighted torches, fighting, trampling each other down in their efforts to reach the Holy Fire. After a scene best described as infernal, every one succeeds in lighting his bundle of candles.

"The church is a sheet of flame. Hungry tongues of fire penetrating the dense black smoke of cheap tallow. The strange wooden structures ablaze; regardless of the children or the women's veils, they wave these fearful fires around, so convinced of the holiness of flame that they let it play on their bare heads, faces, hands, and naked chests.

"The church is aflame from floor to dome, the mob, frenzied, distorted, jumping and yelling like demons. Various sects fighting and trying to extinguish each other's torches. A classical conception of the lower regions, until more religious processions calm thing down a little."

A STRANGE SERVICE IN HOLY SEPULCHRE

Crowds Turn the Holiest of Holies Into a Circus of Hatred.

London, May 1.—(By Mail)—Description of the Holy City's celebration of the death of Christ have just reached here from Lady Drummond Hay, who says that the ancient Via Dolorosa (Way of Sorrow) traversed by Our Lord on His way from Pilate to the cross—"tortuous, narrow and steeply ascending"—provoked easy tears to the eyes of pious pilgrims as they followed, step by step, the painful passage of the Cross.

Lady Drummond Hay describes a strange service in the Holy Sepulchre itself: "Out of the darkness of the night into the dim glow of a myriad peeping lights—ruby, sapphire, emerald, will o' the wisps burning suddenly under a haze of incense smoke—appears a train of priests in jewelled, embroidered vestments, carrying a huge Cross bearing a life-size figure of the Christ in agony. The main part of the church below, is a seething, struggling mass of humanity, with but one idea—to settle themselves and children comfortably for the night. Bedding, blankets, food, wrenched from their owners, strew the ground, trodden underfoot by others of the frenzied army anxious to effect their departure before the one great door is locked on them for the night until the morrow.

UNITED STATES LABOR TO AID THE STRIKERS

Will Send Money to England If the Great Tie-up Continues.

Washington, May 8.—It is definitely stated in high labor circles here that financial support will be sent to the British strikers. President Green of the American Federation of Labor will take up the matter with the executive council, but this will relate to procedure in raising money. The sending of funds in some fashion is regarded as a foregone conclusion. It was learned yesterday that the railway organizations of the United States at an early meeting of their leaders will consider the raising fund, and it is predicted that various local organizations will act on their own responsibility if the strike continues.

No liquor of any kind to be sold in Edinburgh after 3 p.m. today.

Fights and Scuffles.

A screaming, swaying mob of several thousands, hurling themselves against a mammoth door opening inwards—pandemonium, inferno. A mighty onrush strains it on its hinges as an hysterical, almost maddened mob in the large square courtyard outside pours into the interior, sweeping all before them. Fights and scuffles follow, individual and collective. Women scream and faint. Men lay about them.

"Police do their best, but it is a case of dealing with thousands, not hundreds, and there is only one outcome—one door—one scene of

WEST TO BACK ONTARIO.

Premier Brownlee Expects Large Coal Delegation.

Toronto, May 8.—Premier W. E. Brownlee, of Alberta, announced yesterday that when Ontario's delegation goes to Ottawa to seek a solution of the provincial coal problem and asks for aid in bringing a supply of coal here, the party will probably be backed by a joint deputation representing all the Western Provinces. Such a deputation was being formed in the west, he said, and it would probably start for Ottawa within a week or so. Mayor Foster, of Toronto, promised that an Ontario deputation would be ready to join the westerners.

Pleasure with the personnel of the committee appointed by Mayor Foster to deal with the problem from Ontario's standpoint, was expressed by the Alberta Premier. He leaves to-night for Sarnia, where his mother is, before returning to the west.
