

PARIS REVIVES TAFFETA FROCK

Three models of the new taffeta frock as developed in Paris; at the left, one by Granet in green; by Cheriut in black, at the right; and Louise Boulanger's design in soft orchid in the centre.

KNOCK-'EM-DEADER FROM PARIS

Here is a 100 per cent French frock, the sort that has given Paris the sartorial leadership of the world. The ingredients are blue crepe, and a blue and white foulard, plain blue crepe, and a white silk vest but the result is perfection. The sleeves are the new exaggerated bell-shape that threatens the popularity of the long, close-fitting type. And notice how well the small velvet hat fits into the general architectural scheme.

LOOKS ON SETTLEMENT AS A LABOR DEFEAT

The View Expressed by Karl Radek, Leading Russian Journalist.

Moscow, May 13.—The news that the British trades union congress has ordered the end of the general strike will hit the international proletariat with the force of thunder," writes Karl Radek, leading Russian journalist in today's Pravda. Declaring the English proletariat's fight has been "our fight as well as that of the world's proletariat," Radek says, "Let us face the truth squarely. The English workmen's defeat is the result of the world's greatest treason." The Pravda says in an editorial, "Even the blind can now see that the refusal by the Trades Union Congress, to accept brotherly Russian aid, was a prelude to capitulation."
