DANDELION WINE.

As It Is Made by an Old Country Housewife.

An Old Land country housewife says: When the fields and hills are glorious with the golden blooms of dandelions is the time for the housewife to set about storing her pantry with one of the most delicious of country beverages, namely dandelion wine.

This delightful drink is not nearly so well known as it should be, as it is easily and cheaply made. For those who rather pride themselves on having things which are out of the ordinary, here is an old recipe, from which my family has made it for generations.

The best time to pick the flowers is on a sunny afternoon, as a sun bath enhances the distinctive dandelion flavor. Only the heads are required, and they should be snapped off as near the top as possible. A large enamel or earthenware crock is required. Measure the blossoms into it, pressing them well down in a quart measure and then pouring water over them in the proportion of four quarts of boiling water to two quarts of flowers.

After twenty-four hours the mixture should be boiled for about seven minutes. After boiling, strain and measure back into the crock. When it is cool, add four sliced lemons and four sliced oranges and four pounds of granulated sugar to every gallon of liquid. Buy two penny-worth of yeast from the baker, and spread it on a piece of toast and let it float on the liquid.

It must now stand in a cool place for two or three weeks until fermentation ceases. Then strain it through muslin into bottles, and cork them well. The wine should be stored away for about a year, though it is quite drinkable after six months.

Trousers Designs. London, May 20.—Modern Eve's wish to wear bifurcated garments is being fostered quietly but persistently by fashion designers. Many trouser designs are being shown in the dress saloons, principally for smoking suits, slumber suits, boudoir and rest attire. According to gossip they have a good sale among society dames.

PADLOCK HAT

The padlock craze is not confined to prohibited America. This French hat, created by Tournour of Paris, bears a rhinestone padlock on the crown.

The Editor Hears

That the dandelions are starting the grass and children are plucking them and fitting their long stems together for chains. But soon these gay yellow blossoms will be gathered to make the dandelion wine so popular of recent years. We have come across an excellent recipe and will print it on the Woman's Page for the benefit of our readers.

That blue in every shade is most popular this spring. Deep blue of the "blue-bag" hue, pale blue for evening and for those to whom it is becoming, the lovely turquoise blue that goes so splendidly with golden hair, is the vogue.

That just now the tulips in the C.P.R. gardens, the city park and Kingston gardens are at the height of their beauty and the rain of Wednesday gave the grass a deeper hue so the effect of gold, red and green is almost dazzling.

That a swallow of an inquiring mind flew into the Y.W.C.A. through its hospitable open door one day this week and found his way into the dining room. Here he was welcomed but his visit being unduly prolonged the windows and doors were again opened to let him out. But the poor little bird could not find an opening, and after flying around the room always returned to his perch on the curtain pole. Night fell and the swallow was still a captive. So one of the girl boarders who is devoted to wild things, mounted a step-ladder in the darkened room and caught the bird. She placed him in a box in which she had made holes and gave him water, which he eagerly drank. Early the next morning she released him, and after sitting for some time on a telephone wire he flew away, free once more, to catch insects for his breakfast.

That the Canadians who hope to be presented at court this season will be relieved to hear that the court functions that were postponed on account of the general strike will be held on June 9th and 10th and on July 7th and 8th. His Majesty, King George, will hold a levee in St. James' Palace on May 31st.

Hair Often Ruined by Careless Washing

If you want to keep your hair looking its best, be careful what you wash it with. Do not use prepared shampoos or anything else that contains too much free alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is Mulisified coconut oil shampoo, which is pure, and does not dry the scalp, and is better than anything else you can use.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulisified is sufficient to cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dirt, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluty, wavy, and easy to manage.

You can get Mulisified coconut oil shampoo at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months. Be sure your drugist gives you Mulisified. Beware of imitations. Look for the name Watkins on the package.

EXPECTANT MOTHERS

Read Mrs. Menard's Letter. Her Experience May Help

Chatham, Ontario.—"I want to tell you how much good your medicine has done me. Before my baby came I felt so weak and run-down that I could hardly do my work. My head ached continually and I was so discouraged that I could cry from morning till night. I had another baby just one year and a half old and it gave me a lot to do. So I thought I would try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as I had read so much about it in the little books. I found a difference right away as my head was relieved and my tired feelings gone. My sister had been doing my washing and she continued doing it, as she said it might set me back if I started to do it again. It sure did help me and I had taken just two bottles when my baby came. He is a fine big boy, now nearly five months old. I am taking your medicine again and I am able to do my work all by myself now. I always recommend the Vegetable Compound to women, and especially to expectant mothers, as I believe they need help at those times."—Mrs. OLIVER MENARD, 54 Center St., Chatham, Ontario.
