

Eczema Was So Bad Could Hardly Sleep

Mrs. G. Jones, Kitscoty, Alta., writes:—I had eczema on my left hand, and my first finger was so swollen, sore and itchy I could hardly sleep at night.

Burdock BLOOD BITTERS

After I had taken three bottles I was completely relieved of my eczema, and would advise any one suffering from any disease of the blood to use B.B.B., as it's worth its price many times over.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS by Olive Roberts Bartor

The Money in the Bread. "We'll go and call on Mrs. Woodchuck next," said Mister Tingaling to the Twins. "I saw her husband go away this morning, but I suppose he has left the money with her. He knows that I always come around to collect my rents on the thirty-second day of the month."

WILD GEESE

By Martha Ostenson. He put his arms about her and she leaned down and kissed him. "Now, are you sure?" she whispered.

"Perhaps that was it—but I hope he doesn't do anything to upset poor Anton." "I'll not let him. By the way, Anton has sent in his report to the government. Inspectors will be out soon. I suppose, our devil, he certainly deserves that homestead."

It in the kitchen, and she ran toward the house. Judith was inside washing the parts of the separator when she entered. She spoke to her quietly. "Judie, don't say anything to the others, because I may be mistaken, but I thought I heard something in the hedge near the road. Is everybody in?"

Chapter XVIII

It rained steadily for two days. Ellen, Judith and Charlie took care of the animals, milked and churned, and prepared the cream and butter for shipment. Skull Erickson came twice a week to take their produce to the siding, in rain or shine, and Caleb would learn of it were they not ready for him. Martin still lay on the couch, asking no attention, no sympathy. Amelia began knitting heavy woolen stockings for the girls in preparation for the winter. And Caleb puttered about all day between the house and the barn and the tool shed, unhooking drawers and reading old, yellowed letters, examining bottles of medicine and mending the parts of broken tools and implements, deeply concerned with things of which no one knew the significance.

But Judith knew that under his preoccupation he was watching every step she took, hovering over her like a hawk. Until something happened to take him away from the farm there would not be a moment's respite for her. He still kept the door of that part of the barn where the ax was, locked, and went past it every hour or so to see that it was secure. Once or twice she had seen

Asthma and Hay Fever QUICKLY RELIEVED BY THE OLD RELIABLE REMEDY DR. J. K. KELLOGG'S ASTHMA REMEDY. him unlock the door and go in, closing it fast behind him. She fancied him standing before the ax, stooping over it as a symbol of his control over her. Judith felt circumstances closing over her head like rushing water. She went about her work on the farm all day as helpless as when she had been tied hand and foot on the floor of the stall in the barn. There would be no escape. Amelia was already knitting woolen stockings for the coming winter. This year there would be more calves than last, more manure to walk through, and more freezing water to carry from the pump to the barn. And Caleb's doubled hatred and his doubled power, and another thing now. . . She had destroyed the letter Sven had sent her through Lind, after carrying it about inside her blouse all day. During the night after she had received it, she lay beside Ellen and said over and over to herself: "The ax must go—after the hay was smothered. But in the morning when she had seen Caleb's face at the head of the breakfast table, and had heard him single her out with instructions for the day's work, her courage failed her again. He had not for a moment forgotten the ax. He would not for a moment let her forget it. In the only secret place on the whole farm she composed a letter to Sven. The words came laboriously, without much meaning. But when she finally signed her name she thought he would understand. She carried it about with her all day, to give it to Lind when she came from school. Judith avoided Ellen lest her pent-up emotion should take form in

FOR Acid Stomach PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia. Instead of soda hereafter take a little "Phillips' Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly. Better Than Soda. For fifty years genuine "Phillips' Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. Besides, it neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges this souring waste from the system without purging. It is far more pleasant to take than soda. Insist Upon "Phillips". Each bottle contains full directions. Any drug store.
