

Dyspepsia Caused Her Agony After Every Meal

Mrs. M. Caldwell, 2335 Hemlock St., Vancouver, B.C., writes: "After suffering for years with agony, from dyspepsia and indigestion, after every meal, I started taking and got such relief I kept right on until I had used three bottles and was completely relieved of my trouble. Now, I can eat anything I wish without having any bad after effects." Put up only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

THE TOWN WATCHMAN

It is announced that, according to recent experiments, typhoid germs are not killed by freezing. Probably not, but other experiments have shown that typhoid germs will not long survive in a cake of ice. This information was once given to the Kingston Board of Health when the question of germ water was being discussed.

This talk of reducing the number of Kingston aldermen and of civic government by commission is only the revival of a campaign carried on here several times, from 1905 to 1915. The late Robert Meek, then chief editorial writer of The British Whig, was a great admirer of commission government in a city. A reduction in the number of aldermen was strongly advocated by him in this newspaper, and much discussion resulted. But the ratepayers, preferring to stick to the old system of delegating to a mayor and twenty-one aldermen the directing of the city's affairs, The Watchman recalls the strong advocacy by The Whig of a change in our municipal system of government. It would be very easy now to get the voice of the people on the matter. Perhaps they would vote for a council of eight—a mayor and seven aldermen. Who knows?

The well-versed old military officer will always say "uniform" when referring to military clothing, whether it be for one man or a whole regiment. He will not say "uniforms."

Two little fellows were caught helping themselves to flowers in a city garden the other day. When asked why they were robbing the garden they replied: "We want flowers to take to school for our teacher." The owner gave them some, and a little advice not to steal, for teacher would not like to have her flower supply by that method.

Talking about teachers—this is a very trying time for those who instruct the young in the schools, for the kids are feeling very frisky as the last week of schooling arrives. It is difficult to keep the young mind interested when the call from the open is persistent. The little ones want to run wild after their long season of reading, writing and "rhythmic"—and the teachers are not sorry that vacation time is at hand.

The next big passenger steamboat that the Canadian Steamship Lines build should be called the "Coverdale," after the president of the company, Mr. W. H. Coverdale, the eminent Canadian financial world man, who was born in Kingston and whose forebears lived here long ago. Mr. Coverdale is one of Canada's most brilliant sons, who has large interests in New York, but who loves his native land and lives in it most of his time. Let us have a steamer Coverdale, and when Kingston has a new street worthy of the name, let it also be called "Coverdale."

The surviving members of the original graduating class of the Royal Military College, who will be present at the jubilee celebration of Monday, will recall pleasant memories. The surroundings at Point Frederick will seem much the same to them, for the old fortifications still stand as they did fifty years ago. They will miss the old wooden bridge that connected the Pittsburgh and Kingston shores, over which they walked to come to town. Coal oil lamps lighted the way at night, while Kingston's streets were lighted by gas in their time. The city buildings are practically the same.

and the lines of the business streets are unchanged, and they will recognize many of the old buildings. It is a long way back to 1876, but there are quite a number of Kingston folk who will recall the gentlemen cadets of the military college as they appeared at that time. Those graduates of 1880 who survive are all past sixty-five, and some of them have reached three score and ten years. Kingston welcomes back these military college veterans, and wishes them a pleasant visit to the old scenes.

BOOKS

THE MISSIONARY IDEA IN LIFE AND RELIGION.

By J. F. McFadyen, M.A., D.D., Professor of New Testament Literature and Criticism at Queen's University. Charles Scribner's Sons. Price $1.50.

Prof. McFadyen's latest book is published in a pocket edition. It is one of the Life and Religion series and undertakes to discuss in a non-technical way the questions that arise in the minds of every man and woman in regard to the missionary enterprise. Dr. McFadyen's new book is written in an interesting style and should be read by everyone who is interested in the missionary enterprise. The doctor writes not merely as a student of missions, but from practical experience gained during twenty years residence in India as a missionary of the United Free Church of Scotland.

THE BEST LOVE STORIES OF 1925.

Edited by Mariel Miller Humphrey. Small Maynard & Co. Price $2.00.

In reading the latest collection of love stories gathered together from many magazines, one is tempted to compare it with the 1924 edition, and the comparison is bound to be favorable. There do not appear to be quite as many love stories, in the general acceptance of the term, but love in its broader, grander sense permeates many of them. Two stories stand out, namely "The Minister," and "A Fiery Sweetness in the Air." The former deals with a minister who has grown old in the service of a little church in a rural section and who feels that he has come to the end of the way. The love that is latent in many hearts for those who have served them was aroused by a hard-working farm woman and the preacher's heart filled with gladness. "A Fiery Sweetness" deals with a young girl who had come out from England through some matrimonial agency to marry a farmer in the backwoods of Louisiana. It is different from most love stories and makes perhaps a little too much of a hero out of the farmer, but on the whole it is quite human. For those who enjoy a real love story, of the triangular variety "The Bridegroom" offers a real thrill. The ending is rather unsatisfactory as it leaves one rather in the dark, as to what really happened, but we imagine most people will cheer for Marcia. There is something heroic about a woman who enters a man's room at 1 o'clock on the morning of her wedding, and finding him packing, sits down and reminds him of "days and nights of long ago." She deserves to win out. Everyone who enjoys good short stories should get this latest volume. There are twenty rattling good stories, every one of which is intensely interesting.

A MEDICINE THAT ALL MOTHERS PRAISE

Baby's Own Tablets Banish Babyhood and Childhood Ailments.

Mrs. H. Oakes, Sarnia, Ont., says: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets in my home for the past fifteen years and I believe the good health my children enjoy is due entirely to this medicine. The Tablets are helpful at teething time; relieve colds and are always beneficial in the minor ailments of little ones. I have recommended Baby's Own Tablets to other mothers whose experience with them has been as satisfactory as my own."

Baby's Own Tablets do one thing only, but they do it well. They act as a gentle laxative which thoroughly regulates the bowels and sweetens the stomach, thus banishing constipation and indigestion; colds and simple fevers and turn the cross, sickly baby into a well, happy, laughing child. Baby's Own Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or direct by mail at 35 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Herriot Tries to Solve France's Financial Problems

Paris, June 19—Edouard Herriot charged by President Doumergue with the task of forming a cabinet, spent the entire morning discussing measures to save the franc and finally settle the country's pressing financial problems. Unless he reaches a conclusion on these questions, it is said, the constitution of the new ministry will be held in abeyance.
