Funerals of Oso Victims

Took Place at Sharbot Lake—Inquest Held on Saturday Night.

Thomas Charlton and his wife Letta Charlton, the victims of the tragic shooting and suicide which occurred at Zealand, in Oso Township, on Friday morning last, were both buried from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hawley, the parents of Mrs. Charlton, in the village of Sharbot Lake. The funeral of the husband was held on Saturday afternoon and of the wife on Sunday morning.

Both funerals were conducted by Rev. R. S. Eagleson, and both were very largely attended. Interment of the body of Thomas Charlton was made at the Charlton family plot in the cemetery at Zealand while Letta Charlton was buried at Oconto.

The service held on Saturday afternoon was a very brief one, as the relatives and immediate friends of the deceased man were so bowed down with sorrow by the tragic affair that Rev. R. S. Eagleson of the Sharbot Lake United Church did not think it was to dwell unduly on what had happened. A hymn or two were sung, and the minister read portions from Scripture and closed with a few words of comfort to the friends and relatives. Mrs. Butterill of Smith's Falls, a sister of the deceased, was the chief mourner.

"God is our refuge and strength," was the text chosen by Rev. Mr. Eagleson for his remarks at the funeral of Mrs. Charlton. His entire discourse was directed toward trying to alleviate the suffering of the parents, brothers and sisters and particularly of the orphaned children.

"The tragic circumstances which have called us together to-day have shaken the whole community and awakened in all our hearts feelings of sorrow and deepest sympathy for the families and friends who have been so sorely and suddenly bereaved," said the minister speaking on Saturday afternoon at Thomas Charlton's funeral. "Mere human words are empty and entirely inadequate therefore in speaking words of comfort to the sorrowing. I point you to One who is above us who alone can comfort and sustain."

Speaking on Sunday at Mrs. Charlton's funeral Rev. Mr. Eagleson said it was hard to concentrate the mind on any other subject than the one which for the past two days had filled the hearts of everyone present. For the comfort of the bereaved he referred to that portion of the scripture found in Psalm 46, verse 1: "God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble."

Inquest Is Held.

At the request of Crown-Attorney Rigney an inquest into the shooting of Mrs. Letta Charlton and the poisoning of Thomas Charlton, her husband, which occurred at their home at Zealand in Oso Township, was held in Sharbot Lake on Saturday night. A considerable number of witnesses were heard and after deliberation the jury brought in two verdicts.

In the case of Letta Charlton, the verdict was death from gunshot wounds inflicted by a gun in the hands of Thomas Charlton. The verdict in the case of Thomas Charlton was suicide from strychnine poisoning. A large crowd attended the inquest and listened with close attention to the evidence as related by Maude, the little-ten-year-old daughter, who witnessed the shooting, and the others who testified.

The witnesses called at the inquest into the death of Mr. Charlton were Mr. Draw, Officer Tomlinson, Dr. Suddaby and Little Maude. The evidence of Dr. Suddaby and Maude was all that was taken on the enquiry into how Letta Hawley Charlton came to her death. The evidence was practically the story which appeared in Saturday's Whig.

Slipped A Child.

Regarding the assault made by Charlton on his wife on Sunday, the 26th, it seems that Charlton told one of the children to take some food to the pigs and that if any was spilled he would slap the child. The child did spill some and came crying to the mother who berated the father for striking the child.

The husband and wife quarrelled bitterly over this episode and finally he struck her several times and seized her and tried to throw her down the stairs into the cellar. He did not succeed in this and Mrs. Charlton made her escape to neighbors who took her to Sharbot Lake. A police court case was instigated and Charlton was bound over to keep the peace.

DECORATE GRAVES IN CATARAQUI CEMETERY

Kingston Oddfellows Hold an Impressive Ceremony on Sunday Morning.

"The purpose of this service is not that we can do any good to the dead but to stimulate the living," said Mr. R. J. Diack, P.G., speaking at the memorial service held by the subordinate lodges of Kingston of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, at Catarauqui cemetery on Sunday morning. Potted plants were placed on the graves of nearly 300 Odd Fellows and Rebekahs.

Delegations from each of the Kingston lodges and the general public attended the service which was carried out with reverence and simplicity, the Canton parading in full regalia. Brig.-Gen. A. E. Ross, Provincial Grand Master of the order, addressed the assembly and spoke of man's position in the universe; the order of Odd Fellows to both his position and function.

The invocation was pronounced by Mr. William Harkness, P.G., and the service concluded with a prayer by the chaplain, Mr. W. Harkness, P.G. A quartette composed of Messrs. W. Eva, T. Donnelly, J. Saunders and W. J. Christmas sang a couple of selections and led in the hymns. Mr. R. J. Diack, P.G., acted as chairman.

The chairman in his remarks at the opening of the service, spoke particularly of the aims and aspirations of men in this life. Some were merely working for wages and existing while others had a higher purpose and labored for the love of their work. Young people had high ambitions but all were not permitted to attain to greatness and eminence. Those who did reach the high places in life however were only enabled to do so through the combined efforts of many other people in humble circumstances.

With these thoughts in mind the speaker's message was that each one should live with friendship toward their fellowman, and he adjured his listeners not to put off doing a good deed, for the opportunity might never be theirs again. In speaking later at the Odd Fellow's plot Mr. Diack referred to the project to build a monument there at some future date, in memory of all buried there, and also of the Odd Fellows buried in other parts of the cemetery and of the members of the Kingston lodges who died overseas. About twenty per cent. of the cost of the monument had already been raised.

Grand Master Dr. Ross referred to the fact that members of the Odd Fellows Order all over Ontario were at the same hour carrying out the decoration ceremony. He then dealt with his subject under the three headings mentioned in a previous paragraph.

Man, the highest type of life in the world, only had to examine his own hand with its intricate system of muscles, nerves and blood vessels to conceive that there must be a Divine and Intelligent Creator, said the speaker. No man could be an agnostic or an atheist and still subscribe to the beliefs of Odd Fellows' Order.

As to the function of man, he is not an individual but his whole life is bound up with the lives of his fellowmen. That was the teaching of the order, said Dr. Ross. The order was teaching men these truths in its own way. It might be a sentimental way but it has produced great results. The people who were being honored by the memorial service had all been citizens of the highest respectability. The Odd Fellows' Order had no first claim to the principles which had contributed to the kind of lives these people had led but the same principles of love toward one's neighbor were the principles of the order.

The speaker compared life to a roadway and said that some of the travellers sometimes needed help on the journey. It was the duty of Odd
