

FLOWER SERVICES HELD IN CHURCHES

Consecration of Girl Guide Colors Took Place at Queen Street Church.

Flower Service was held at Queen Street United Church Sunday. The pulpit and the choir loft were beautifully decorated with evergreens, peonies, daisies and ferns, and presented a wonderful sight.

An outstanding part of the programme, was the presentation of a beautiful bouquet of carnations to Dr. R. E. Sparks. Dr. Sparks is the oldest member of the church, having just passed his seventy-fifth birthday.

A recitation of welcome was splendidly given by little Myrtle McDonald. The primary department sang a "Cheer Up" song beautifully.

Rev. W. H. Raney in his sermon, told a story to the children of the school. The moral of his story was that "happiness does not depend on riches, but on the right spirit."

The main event of the programme was the consecration of the Colours of the Queen Street Company, Girl Guides. The beautiful silk colors were borne by Guide Lieutenant Gene Healey, and were guarded by Guides Violet Armstrong and Edith McRoy.

The announcement from the secretary showed that the collection was over $35, which is more than last year.

At First Baptist Church. Sunday was observed as "Flower Sunday" at the First Baptist Church, and the special programme provided was a most enjoyable one.

At Princess Street Church. A combined patriotic and flower service was held at Princess Street United Church on Sunday morning, at 11 o'clock, in the presence of a very large congregation.

Sunday's programme was well carried out, and much enjoyed by the congregation. The church was very beautifully decorated with flowers of all description, and presented a most pleasing appearance.

Mr. E. Parkhouse was chairman of the service and the address to the young people was delivered by Rev. J. K. Curtis, the pastor, Princess Street is one of Kingston's most active churches. It has a large Sunday School and does a most important work in the upper part of the city.

At Calvary Church. At Calvary United Church Sunday a combined flower and children's service was held. The interior of the church was very nicely decorated with flowers. The juvenile choir rendered some very fine selections.

WORK OF LIBRARY IN OUTLYING DISTRICTS Kingston Library is Carrying on a Splendid Service in This Connection.

A branch of work being carried on by the Kingston Public Library for the past three years, which has been practically unknown to the majority of citizens of Kingston, is that of conducting libraries in two of the schools of the city, that are situated in the outlying districts. Frontenac and Depot schools have been supplied with books from the Library for some time past, and that this service is appreciated by the students, teachers and parents is certain, as has been expressed by them many times.

With the erection of the new Rideau school, in the far end of the city, this service will be extended, and Mrs. Kennedy, librarian, is figuring out some means of supplying this school also. The work of supplying these schools in this way entails considerable work and expense. The books are very often returned in somewhat deplorable condition. The Library staff have to repair them all and put them in first-class condition again.

Mrs. Kennedy, who is forever thinking out some new scheme for the advancement of the Library, would like to see two branches of the library in Kingston, one in the east end, and one in the north end of the city. Of course, this would mean considerable expense, and could not possibly be carried out at the present time.

A few weeks ago Dr. J. J. Farley, Hastings, for many years physician at the county jail, tendered his resignation. Dr. F. Proctor, Belleville, succeeds him. Roy Helm and Gordon Scott, of Cashel township, are charged with breaking and entering cottages in Cashel township.

BIG EVENT IS ON FOR DOMINION DAY

Fourth Annual Picnic and Field Day of Kingston Oddfellows at Brophy's Point.

One of the big events of the season will take place on Thursday of this week (Dominion Day), when the fourth annual picnic and field day of the Kingston Oddfellows will be held at Brophy's Point. The various committees have been hard at work on the arrangements, and now the stage has all been set for "one of the best ever."

A large number of special features have been arranged for, including baseball, both hard and soft, with children's races and a quoit tournament. The steamer Brockville will leave the ferry wharf at the foot of Brock street at 9.30 and 11 a.m., 12.30, 2.43 and 7 p.m.

One of the big attractions during the afternoon will be a softball game between the Treasures and the Y.M.C.A. Supremes, the two leading teams of the Girls' Softball League in the city. These two teams are very evenly matched and a great deal of friendly rivalry exists between them, and this match, for a trophy presented by the picnic committee, is bound to be keenly contested and well worth witnessing.

The picnic and field day is being put on under the auspices of the local lodges. The committee is composed of the following: K. N. H. McCullagh (chairman), W. P. Burns (secretary-treasurer), P. A. Timlin (assistant secretary), B. J. Gilbert, Phil Allen, W. J. Ferguson, P. R. Barrett, John Crawford, John Allmark, R. Caughey, William Hipson, F. T. Paynter, W. Kershaw, F. J. Todd, and Mesdames Hall, McAdoo and Cruise.

CHICKENPOX LIABLE TO APPEAR IN FLOCK

During Any of the Warm Months—Keep Your Eyes Open for It.

Chickenpox is a disease that is most liable to appear in the flock during any of the summer months. The disease may be introduced into the flock by new birds being brought in or by sparrows or other birds that fly from yard to yard. At first it attacks those parts of the head that are not covered with feathers, such as the root of the beak, angles of the mouth, lobes of the ears, wattles and the surface of the face generally. It may even extend to the skin of the eyelids. Sometimes it will spread over the feathered parts of the head and downwards to the throat and neck and to other parts of the body.

Earliest stages of the disease may easily pass unnoticed unless the eye is kept enough to detect a slightly unnatural appearance of the unfeathered parts—a kind of greasy look, and if examined, the skin will appear rather firm to the touch. A dirty, grey, yellowish-brown or reddish-brown crust, which makes the parts look as if coarsely granulated, will follow. These granulations vary in size and lie close together. Sometimes a number of them will lie so close together as to give the appearance of a wart with divisions between them. Some of the nodules will, if neglected, grow as large as peas or even larger.

The Dangerous Stage

If the edges of the eyelids are affected by these tumors the lids may become swollen and closed and inflammation may spread to the eye-ball itself. It is when this happens that the life of the bird is in danger. For as long as the disease is confined to the skin of the head only and the eyes are not involved the general health of the bird may not be affected. It is due to this fact that the disease may enter and progress to almost an advanced stage in the flock before discovery if the attendant is one of those careless individuals who does not scrutinize the fowl closely unless it is forced on his notice that something is seriously wrong with some of the birds.

It is when the eyes are affected and become closed so that the bird cannot eat that you have a really serious case on your hands, for the poor birds will then literally starve and die from exhaustion. When, as sometimes happens, the mucous membrane of the mouth develops diphtheritic membranes, death may occur quickly.

Keep Your Eyes Open

Because of the many ways that this disease may be introduced into the flock, no matter how careful one may be, a watchful eye should be kept on the fowl so that the slightest symptom will be observed. For early treatment will generally stamp it out before any real damage is done. Simply painting with iodine may remove the trouble if this is done before it becomes firmly established: If the crusty stage has been reached before discovery, the crust and nodules must be removed. This is not difficult to do, though it is not the most pleasant of jobs. With a basin of warm water, into which the head may be dipped, a little none too gentle rubbing may clear the skin of the crust. It doesn't it will be necessary to pick off those "scabs" that have resisted the milder treatment. Then the places may be treated with creol (2 per cent. solution) and used with iodoforn or touched with nitrate of silver (20 grains to the half ounce of solution) or ordinary tincture of iodine applied with a soft brush may serve. None of these, except the iodoforn must reach the eyes, however. When the disease is not far advanced, one such treatment as suggested may serve but the treatment should be followed by daily greasing with vasoline until all symptoms have disappeared. In advanced stages several first treatments may be necessary.

'Tis Dangerous Stuff

Bichloride solution, made by dissolving one bichloride tablet in a pint of water, is recommended for first treatment after the crust has been removed by some authorities. But as bichloride tablets are a most dangerous thing to have about the premises because of their extreme deadliness, if swallowed, this treatment need not be resorted to unless the milder treatments fail.
