

NATIONAL SERMONS IN THE CHURCHES

Dean Craig and Rev. G. A. Brown Deal With Timely Subjects on Sunday.

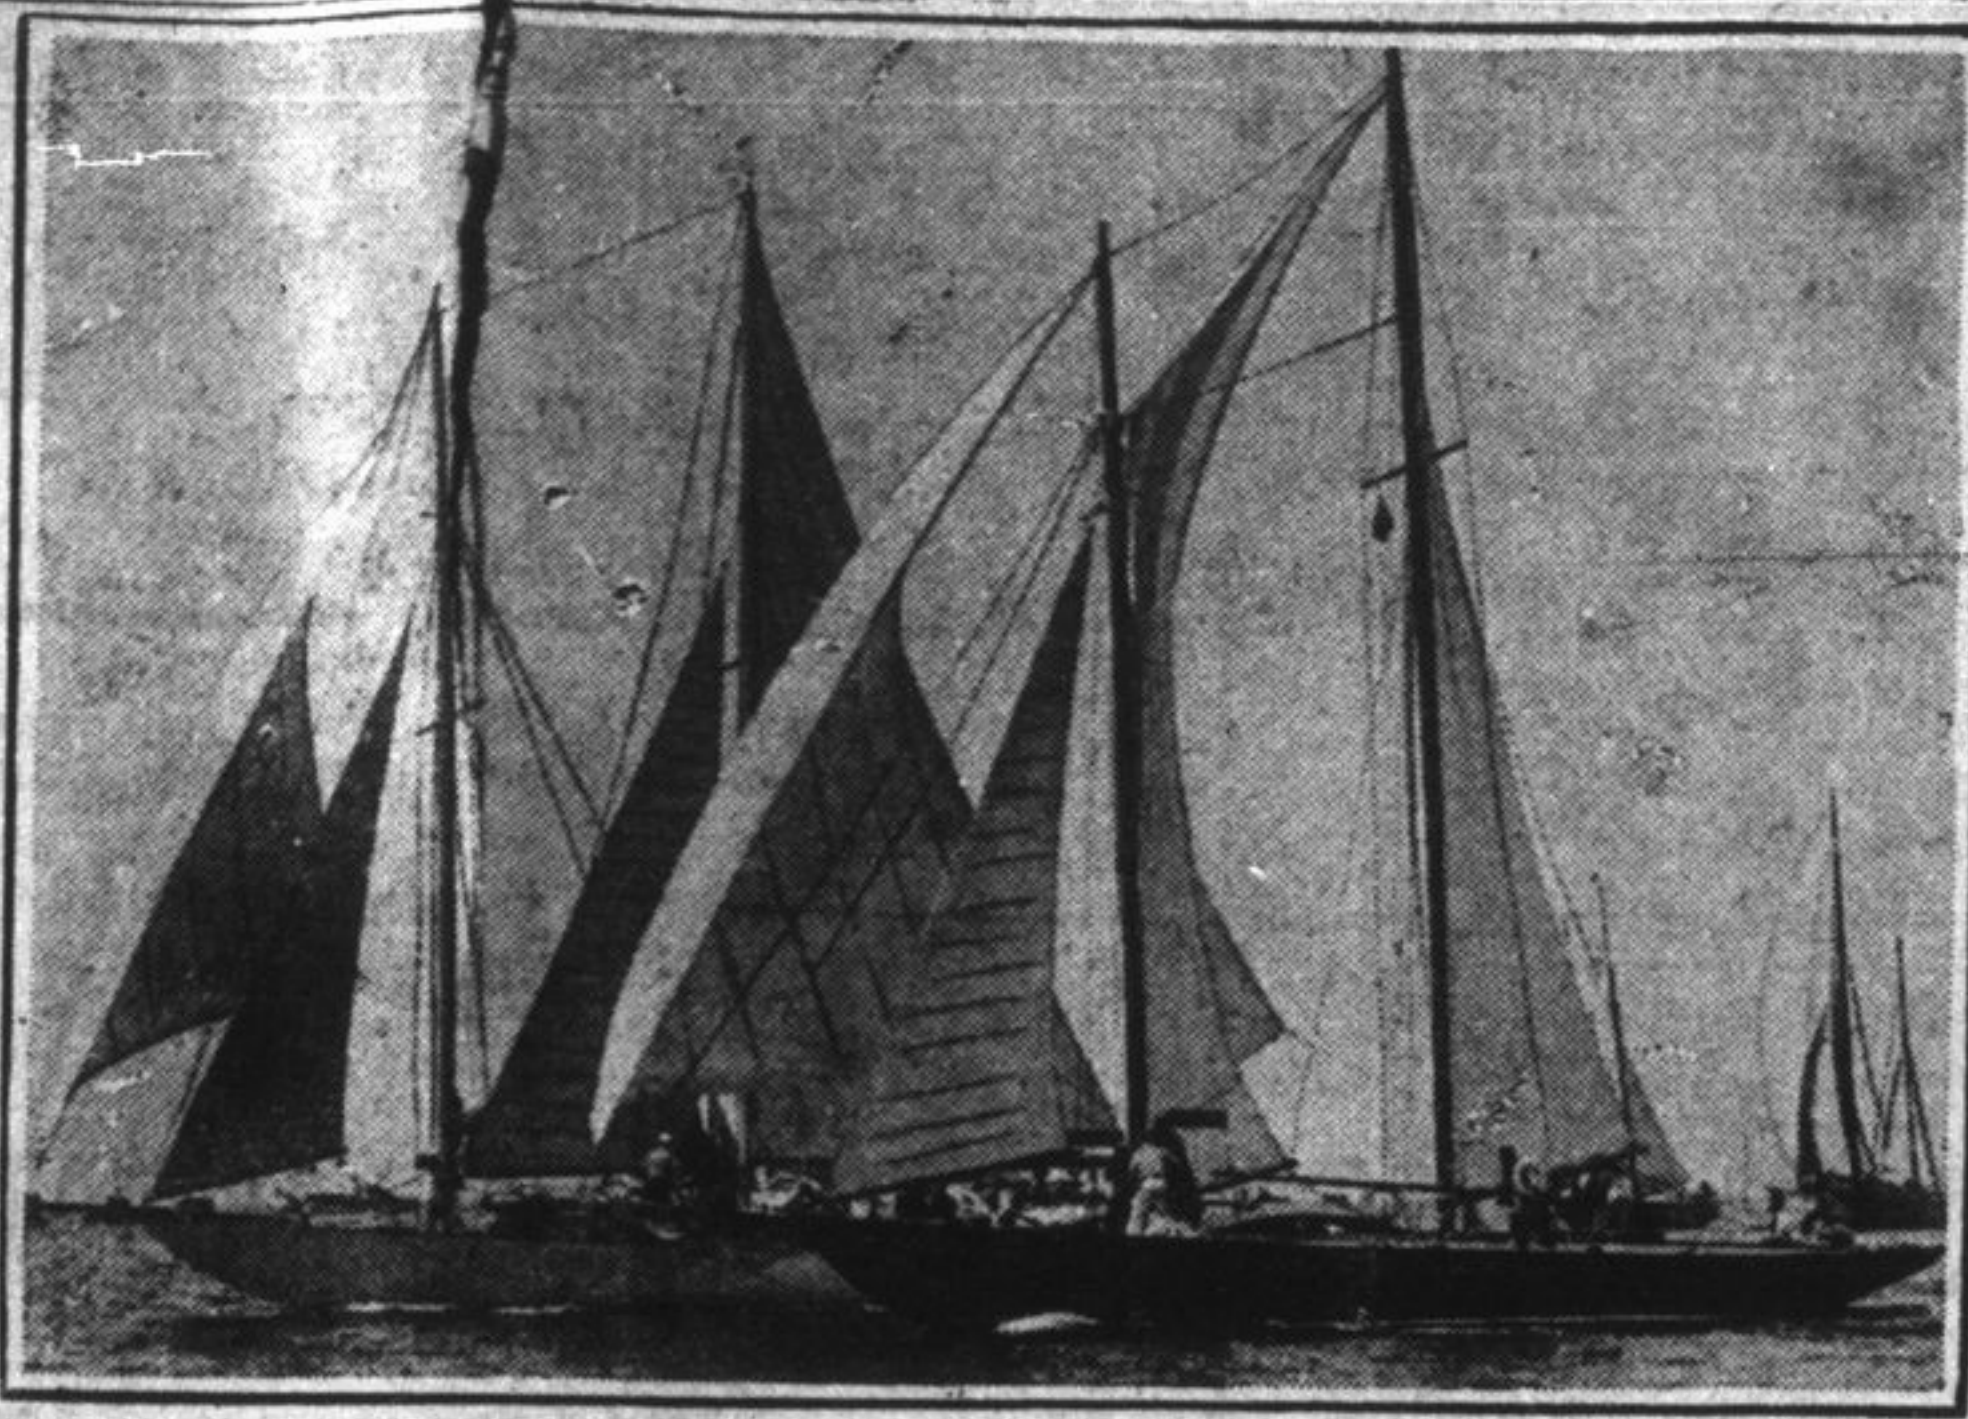

In speaking of Canada in St. George's Cathedral on Sunday morning the Dean of Ontario referred to the nearness of the diamond jubilee on the Dominion and of the love her people have for our great and beautiful country. Archdeacon Scott has voiced the feeling of Canadians in his poem "O Canada, my Country and my Love." Still from coast to coast there was a feeling that all was not well with the country. "We have passed through a great political crisis," said the dean. "I saw somewhere it was the greatest crisis in the history of the Dominion. However that may be and without taking either side of the question, it does seem to all of us that our need is a strong impartial leadership. The human race demands leaders and ambassadors. An ambassador is one who will express the will of the people, but a leader is one who will help to form that will. It had been said, the Dean continued, that democracy did not supply leaders. He referred to John Hampden, to Gladstone and to Abraham Lincoln, all outstanding leaders of democracy. But the people have to choose the leader and as the standards of the people are so will be the leader they choose. That is the hope of democracy.

"And what has the church to do with this?" he asked. "It is said the church is the school of the nation. The man who stands outside the church, who spends his Sundays on the golf links is ready to criticise the church for not setting higher ideals before the young people for country so that they will demand the best from their leaders. If we deserve that criticism we should profit by it. But if the cynic who is so ready to lay the blame on the church would come and take his coat off and work among the young people and help to set the higher standard he would be of more use. If the individual standard is high and demands honor and a vision of a greater Canada, we will have leaders with these qualities who will believe that God is strong and His purpose eternal.

Dean Craig is holding what he calls "Under the Dome" services in the cathedral on Sunday evening during the summer. On Sunday he spoke of the influence of Christ. The anthem was "Kipling's Recessional" in which the bass solo was admirably taken by Mr. C. B. S. Harvey.

"National Greatness" was the title of the sermon of Rev. G. A. Brown, at the union service of Chalmers and Sydenham Street United Church congregations in Sydenham Street Church, Sunday morning. The text was taken from Psalm 144, 15. Rev. Mr. Brown emphasized the fact that to have God as the Lord of a nation necessitates loyalty to His character, not to seek material benefits but to express His nature to the world. There are two ideals—pagan and Christian. Paganism is a material ideal based on selfishness achieved through force and cunning. The Christian ideal is democracy in its real meaning. It recognizes the sacredness of the individual and claims his freedom to live his highest life. This freedom can only be gained by subjection of life to a higher authority, namely the sovereignty of truth, justice and love. Democracy is the disciplining of individual to cooperate in an effort of the highest kind. The common good requires the mutual sympathy and understanding of each by every other. This demands faith in men, the authority of truth and right, and the obligation of service. The preacher said that one must put emphasis on duties and not on rights.

At Newark, N.J., fighting to protect her two children, Mrs. Margaret Stanton, a widow, has been murdered by an intruder who had attacked the children as they lay in bed. John D. Rockefeller gave $155,000 to the U.S. Anti-Saloon League.

Mr. Brown showed that there could be a practical application of these ideals to Canadians. Canada in its variety of life, physically, climatically, nationally and all its interests, offers a challenge to the best that is in Canadians; a challenge to put the leaven of Christ's spirit into all phases of life, a task for the highest kind of statesmanship. Building a nation, like building a personality, is done through loyalty to universal ideals, expressed in the development of given resources.

There are three simple things that all can do; Face the result of following our present political condition; think, talk, act, in faith in the highest principles and finest conduct; do not grow weary in believing in and working for what should be.

SALE DEPENDS UPON
CITY COUNCIL ACTION

But McKelvey & Birch, Ltd., Expect to Secure the Litton Building.

The statement that McKelvey & Birch Ltd., had bought what is known as the John Litton property on Rideau street was a little premature, for as yet no actual deal has been consummated.

It is true that the Kingston firm has an option on the building but it depends to a considerable extent on the action of the city council as to whether it will be purchased. Mr. C. A. Macpherson, president of McKelvey & Birch, says however, that he does not anticipate any great obstacles in this direction for so far the city has shown itself very favorably disposed toward the sale.

The building if purchased will need alterations before it can be used as a factory for tank construction and until an actual sale is made no definite date can be set when it will be occupied.

The McKelvey & Birch firm started in the tank making business about two years ago in the back of their premises on Brock street. The business soon outgrew these quarters and was removed to a building next to Vanliven's Garage. It has continued to expand and the firm is again faced with the problem of finding adequate quarters. At one time it was proposed that an addition should be built to the Brock street property but this idea has been abandoned. If suitable quarters cannot be secured in the city, it will be necessary for the firm to move this part of their business to another city.

In any event, whether the factory on Rideau street is purchased or whether the tank business is moved to another city the business on Brock street will remain in its present quarters.
