It is with very deep regret that the Kingstonians who knew the late Col. Georges Roy, when he was stationed here with the R.C.H.A., heard the sad news of his sudden death at Quebec. About a month ago his widow, Madame Roy, was a visitor in town for several weeks with Col. and Mrs. C. F. Constantine, the Commandant's Quarters, Royal Military College.

The Kingston ladies who were entertained by the Watertown ladies at their Golf Club on Wednesday speak in highest terms of the hospitality extended to them and of the beauty of Watertown and the charming clubhouses where they were given the delectable of luncheons. The Kingstonians won 7 to 14 and Miss Carolina Mitchell, the captain of the team, made a 90, quite a record score. Mrs. Halloway Waddell and Mrs. Bartlett Dalton accompanied the team on their trip, which was a most enjoyable one.

The presence of the party of Kiwanians from Syracuse, N.Y., who had come across the lake in the beautiful motor boats anchored at the Yacht Club and are going up the Rideau to fish, gave a seat to the Wednesday evening dance at the club. Two of the Kiwanians sang delightfully and they were all excellent partners, the Kingston ladies say. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Hansford Hora, Capt. and Mrs. S. A. Lee, Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Kirkpatrick, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Waddell, Major and Mrs. Horace Lawson, Mrs. Varham Davoud and her sons, New York; Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Lee, Mr. and Mrs. Bartlett Dalton, Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Steacy, Mrs. Philip Du Moulin, General and Mrs. F. W. Cunningham, Cadet Ted Du Moulin, Mr. Whalley, Mr. Steven, Mr. W. Macdonald, Mr. A. Glover, Mr. W. Rigney, Mr. Charles Parker, Mr. Gordon Macpherson, Mr. Kenneth Bibby, Mr. Bert Winnett.

White caps were on the blue waves of Lake Ontario on Wednesday afternoon, so only a few people enjoyed the fresh breeze on the verandah of the Yacht Club at the weekly tea. In the clubhouses tables were arranged in every available corner for bridge and mah jongg. Mrs. Norman Fraser and Mrs. James Haydon made tea and among those present were Mrs. J. C. Postel, Mrs. F. W. Hill, Mrs. W. Berningham, Mrs. Malcolmson, Mrs. R. S. Waldron, Mrs. W. Rupert Davies, Mrs. John Carson, Mrs. Thomas Sheron (Philadelphia, Pa.), Mrs. Manley Baker, Mrs. W. P. That Kingston is a sleepy old place. Well what of it? If we like to sleep surely it is our own business. But sleep is good. It gives health and vigor and men have gone out into the world from sleepy Kingston who have made names for themselves and Kingston that are to be found on Canada roll of honor. In politics, in statecraft, in the army, in educational institutions, in the church and in the world of business, Kingstonians have brought honor to their grey old city. But when it comes to touching the things Kingstonians hold dear they say "Hands Off" to strangers. We can remember energetic visitors who said, "Clear out your gardens and square in the heart of your city. Build a big hotel on Clarence street, never mind whether the members of St. George's Cathedral like it or not. They will soon get used to it." But roses and peonies still bloom in the gardens and St. George's still stands where it has stood for a century. We will have a good hotel in a better place. We don't want to stand still but we want to know that every change is for the better and above all we want to make out own changes. Not to have them made for us.

That amazingly pretty summer frocks can be bought in the Kingston for a low price. It is easy to have a change when for a comparatively few dollars you can buy a dress for morning or afternoon wear and for a very few dollars more one for the evening. If you happen to be a stock size you can have it sent home in a few hours and save all the trouble of visits to the dressmaker. But if you are very short and stout or very tall then you will have to try the old way of the measurements, the matching ribbon and buttons and the standing to be fitted. Perhaps in the end the result is worth it but those of us who can buy a frock "from the peg" should be thankful if we are busy and like to see just what we are going to wear.

That two Kingston ladies, who have just returned from abroad, said recently to a stay-at-home: "We never tell anyone about our travels for we find they don't like it and say we are trying to let everyone know we have been overseas. What a pity that anyone should be made to feel they must keep the conversation at the low, sometimes very low ebb, of afternoon tea gossip. Surely an intelligent person who has not been able to travel would be interested in hearing at first hand from friends who have been on the spot, of the lands and scenes they hope to see one day. Perhaps there is a certain jealousy at the bottom of the mind of the person who is uninterested. But there must be many people who would enjoy hearing a detailed account of a trip taken by the acquaintances and friends.

That an innovation in railroad travel is a recreation car designed and built by the Pullman Company, and among the car's features is a gymnasium, twelve feet long and equipped with a mechanical riding horse, medicine ball, punching bag, chest weight and rings.

THE TENNIS QUEEN AT COURT.

London, July 8.—Miss Suzanne Lenglen is to be presented at court this week at Buckingham. The Marquesa Merry del Val, the wife of the Spanish Ambassador, will present her.

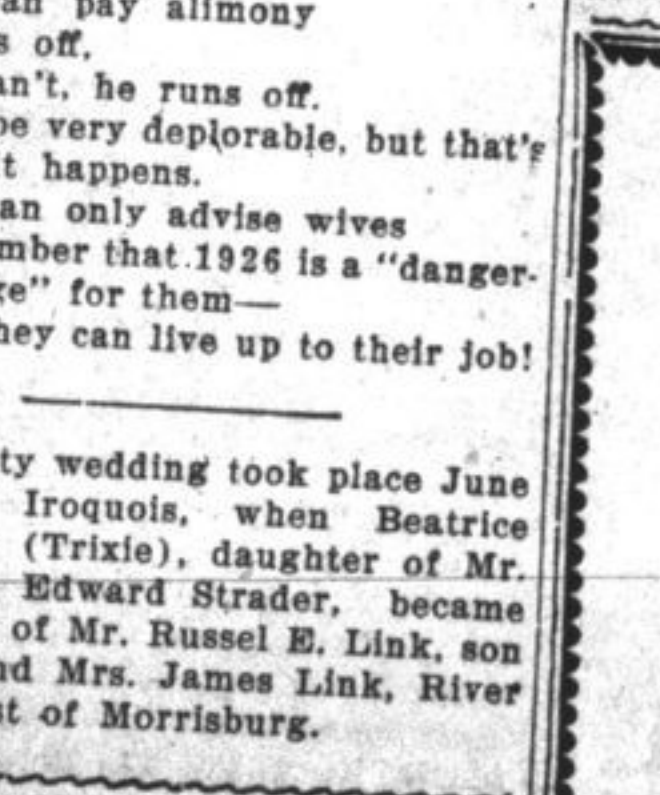

Suzanne's dress is a white crepe georgette with diamond beads. It is very simply made. The skirt is long, "much longer," says Miss Lenglen, "than I am used to wearing." The neck is boat-shaped at the front, with a long V at the back. A band of diamond embroidery is brought from the right side of the waist to the shoulder. Her jewels will be pearls and diamonds. "I am hoping that the diamond circlet that holds the three tethers in position will feel like my tennis bandeau," she said to a newspaper representative, "and then I shall feel quite comfortable. "I am awfully thrilled and delighted, but I am not in the least nervous. I never have stage fright." Miss Lenglen was very amused when asked if she was taking lessons in curtaining, and said that she was not.

What is Dangerous Age For Husbands?

Margaret Mooers Marshall in the New York World has been disagreeing with N. J. Judge, who declares the dangerous age for husbands is between 50 and 60. She says: What, then, is the dangerous age for husbands? It comes, we believe, between thirty-five and forty-five. And not then for ALL husbands! The one who finds that decade dangerous—And whose wife may find it fatal for HER—Is the advancing husband who is married to a stationary spouse. We've seen it so often: The keen, intelligent, ambitious man, with a brain still developing, and a business or professional or political future beckoning. We've seen this man tied tragically to the girl he married in his twenties. The girl who hasn't grown up with him. Who has lost her youthful prettiness and found no attraction to take its place. Sometimes it's hard to blame her. When little children have worn her out. When, to be their mother, she has sacrificed her growth as her husband's comrade. And yet—the woman who puts even her children before her husband. Forever risk-taking. That HE doesn't put HER before all else! As for the childless woman who is too lazy or selfish or sure of her "rights" To keep step with the man she marries—One can hardly even pity her. When, in his early maturity, he looks at her stolid smugness, and looks into his own heart, and thinks: "Is this all I am ever going to get out of life?" Nowadays of course, he doesn't stop with thinking. If he can pay alimony He buys off. If he can't, he runs off. It may be very deplorable, but that's how it happens. So we can only advise wives. To remember that 1926 is a "dangerous age" for them—Unless they can live up to their job!

A pretty wedding took place June 30th, in Iroquois, when Beatrice Madeline (Trixie), daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Strader, became the bride of Mr. Russel E. Link, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Link, River Road, east of Morrisburg.

"I read some nonsense in the paper about prize fighters sweating off weight. If they was anything in that, I'd look like a bean pole." On June 26th, Ralph Dyer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eastcourt Dyer, township of Ameliasburg, and Miss Luella Ferguson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ferguson of the same place, were united in marriage. At Toronto, Miss Dorothy Drew, daughter of Mrs. Grace Ferras, was married to Thomas Lanfear McCullough, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred McCullough, Deseronto.
