AUNT HET

"Pettin' all the time don't keep a husband happy. You've got to let him enjoy Jeelin' abused once in a while."

GRANDFATHER'S OLD BROWN PANTS.

My grandfather he, at the age of ninety-three, Got disgusted and made up his mind to die. He was very well to do, and the neighbors that he knew They all came in from round the town to cry. Of course he left a will, and he left to Brother Bill His advice to grab whenever he had a chance, A mortgage on the farm, and the hinges on the barn, And he left to me his old brown pants, How they tittered, how they'd yell, My brother Bill and sister Nell, Give the the laugh when they got the chance, 'Cause grandpa only left to me his old brown pants. One day my brother Bill went down to the flour mill, Took off his clothes, jumped in the race to swim, When a female Billy got chewed the buttons off his coat And ate his pants and chewed them up with vigor and with vim, That left Bill in an awful plight, he had to stay all night, I took his girl Maria to the dance, Poor Bill began to cry, then to sympathize, said I: "Wouldn't you like to have the old brown pants?" How they tittered, how they'd yell, Brother Bill and sister Nell, Give me the laugh when they got the chance, 'Cause grandpa only left to me his old brown pants. (From A. L. Kaser's vaudeville sketch, "Tim & Nat.")

PRINCE WOULD NOT SHORTEN HIS VISIT.

He Wanted to See Every Disabled Soldier's Home. The Prince of Wales kept fifty people in a flutter the other day. It was at the Enham Village Centre for Disabled Soldiers, where he was opening the new Landale Wilson Institute. After he had made a speech, which was broadcast, the Prince, accompanied by Major-General Seely, Lord Henry Cavendish-Bentley, and Mr. Garthwaite, the organizer of the Centre, went to look at some of the cottages in which the disabled soldiers and their families live. It was expected that he would go

WEDDINGS.

Fowler-Merritt. A pretty wedding was solemnized on Saturday morning, in St. James' Church, by Rev. T. W. Savary, when Alma, youngest daughter of Mrs. A. Merritt, was united in marriage to Mr. James A. Fowler, Mount Chesney. The bride looked very sweet in a simple frock of white georgette, and wearing a white hat and carried a bouquet of ophelia roses and baby's breath. The bride and groom were unattended. Immediately after the ceremony, they left on a motor trip to Toronto and other western points. The bride's going away gown was of green charmeuse satin with mink fur hat and coat to match.

GOOSEBERRY Dainties

The value of the gooseberry as an ingredient of cookery has been overlooked by many housewives, says a well-known domestic science expert in the following recent article: "When you want to vary an omelette make a puree from a pint of gooseberries, after removing the tops and tails, and half a cup of sugar. Beat the yolks of four eggs with a tablespoon of cream, then add the stiffly beaten whites and the puree. Cook in a hot pan with a tablespoon of butter and as it cooks prick and prick up with a fork until set. Then roll and sprinkle with sugar. "If you want to serve gooseberries for breakfast don't cook them so they will be pulpy, but so each berry remains whole. The best way to attain this result is to put the fruit in a stone jar with a little hot water and enough sugar to sweeten, cover the top of jar and stand in a saucepan of boiling water. Let boil for one hour."

Batter Pudding.

You will find gooseberries in batter delicious for a hot dessert. Butter six small cups of equal size and almost fill with green gooseberries. Make a batter of four ounces of flour, one egg and half a pint of milk and let stand an hour. Half an hour before time for serving fill each cup with batter, cover with greased paper and steam for twenty minutes. Turn out of the cups and garnish each with a spoonful of stiffly whipped and sweetened cream.

Gooseberry Fool.

Most housekeepers have made gooseberry "fool," but here is one a little different. Cook until soft a quart of ripe berries in just enough water to cover, press through a sieve to remove the skins and seeds and while still hot add a cup of sugar, a tablespoon of melted butter and the beaten yolks of three eggs, and whip the whole together until light. Pour into a serving dish and when cool set on the ice to chill thoroughly. Before serving spread on top of the liquid the egg whites, which have been stiffly beaten with three table-spoons of sugar. Serve in small glasses.

A Pudding.

A very attractive looking, as well as tasting, pudding is made as follows: Put one pound of gooseberries in a cup of boiling water and cook slowly until the skins are tender, add a cup of sugar and when well dissolved rub through a sieve. Dissolve a tablespoon of gelatin in a cupful of boiling water and add it to the mashed fruit and stir until it begins to set, then add as much juice of fresh spinach as will give the mixture a decided green color. Pour into a wet mould and set away to cool. Serve with sweetened whipped cream which has been flavored slightly with vanilla.

An English Chutney.

3 quarts of gooseberries, 3 pounds of onions, 2 pounds raisins, 1 pound currants, 1 pound sugar, 2 ounces green ginger, 1/4-ounce chillies, 1 tablespoon salt, 2 quarts vinegar. Pick the little stalks from the gooseberries and currants, wash and drain them. Skin and chop finely the onions, stone and chop the raisins, chop the ginger and chillies. Place all the ingredients in a pan, cover with a tightly-fitting lid, and simmer gently for six or seven hours, stirring occasionally. When the consistency of a thick jam, seal in sterilized bottles or small jars. This may be used at once, but it is better if kept a month or two before using.

Good with Everything

Whether it is bacon, hot or cold meat, fish, cheese or tomatoes, a little H.P. makes them more delicious. One tiny little maid looked at him solemnly with large brown eyes as she handed him a white carnation, which he promptly put into his buttonhole and wore for the rest of the afternoon.

It was not the first buttonhole he had been offered, for as he was coming out of the station on arriving a little bunch of sweet peas was dropped on him by a girl in an upper window of the station.

The Prince visited cottage after cottage, while the people in his suite, the officials and distinguished visitors grew more and more anxious.

Tea was waiting, cars were waiting, and a special train was waiting, but still the Prince was chatting with the war heroes.

He went into each department of the workshops and the treatment hostel and inspected the prize cattle.

In the workshop, where garden furniture is made, some one suggested giving him a garden seat, but he laughingly replied: "But I haven't a garden."

Indian seeds England 8,000,000 pounds of tobacco, and South Africa 7,000,000 pounds, out of a total of 190,000,000 pounds imported annually.

Still going strong after 368 years, an old Friesland clock bearing the date 1588 is to be seen in Wandsworth Town Hall, London.

Letter Tells of Wonderful Relief After Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Coniston, Ontario.—"After a severe operation and a three weeks' stay in a hospital I returned home so weak that I was unable to move a chair. For four months I was almost frantic with pains and suffering until I thought sure there could not be any help for me. I had very severe pains in my left side and suffered agony every month. One day when I was not able to get up my mother begged me to try your medicine. My husband got me a bottle of Vegetable Compound at once and I took it. I started a second bottle, and to my surprise and joy the pains in my side left me completely and I am able to do all my work without help. I am a farmer's wife, so you see I can't be idle long. In all, I have taken six bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, five boxes of the Compound Tablets, two bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine, and have also used the Sarsaparilla Wash."—Mrs. L. LAJUNESSER, Box 102, Coniston, Ontario.
