DOMINION EXPRESS NAME TO BE CHANGED

To Canadian Pacific Company - Established in Kingston in 1882.

After forty-four years of operation during which it has grown up with the country and contributed in no small way to Canadian development, the Dominion Express Company will no longer be known by that name. After September first next that great transportation agency will be known as the Canadian Pacific Express Company.

To mark the change of name the Company has issued an attractive little booklet giving a short history of its career and a synopsis of its present wide-spread activities.

The Dominion Express Company opened an office in Kingston in 1884 in a building at the corner of King and Clarence streets which was later a news stand and a few years ago was torn down to make place for the present Bank of Montreal Building.

Wolf Lake, Bedford township.

Further along the road from the top of a hill, a splendid view of Devil's Lake with its many wooded islands, some of them occupied by pretty cottages, can be obtained.

After leaving Bedford Mills the motorist desirous of seeing the county within a radius of fifty miles from Kingston, enters Leeds to avoid the many lakes hidden among the granite rocks and then turns westward and enters Bedford township in Frontenac.

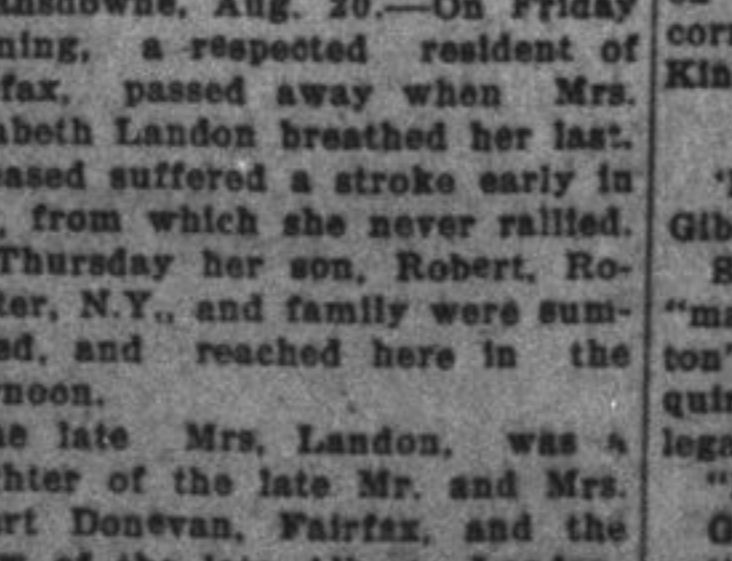

Wolf Lake, one of Frontenac's beauty spots, and Thirteen Island and Thirty Island lakes near the feldspar mines are passed, good roads leading into these beautiful lakes with high wooded shores dotted with islands.

Rich relatives are of little use to a poor man except to pose as something to which he can point with pride.

"Hand's Pink Pills," Gibson's. We probably wouldn't feel flattered if we knew that the people whom we think are fools think of us.

"Coty Compacts," Gibson's. Smacks are dangerous. One sank near Portugal, drowning 20. And a Seattle girl wants $10,000 for a smack.
