

A MERRY TIME AT THE CITY BUILDINGS

Capacity Crowd Attended Police Constables' Concert and Dance Wednesday Night.

The concert in Memorial Hall and the dance in City Hall, on Wednesday evening, formed a most fitting climax to the day of days for the members of the Kingston Police Department, in connection with their field day sports. The concert was attended by a crowd that filled Memorial Hall to the doors, while the dance hall was also filled to overflowing. These two historic halls have been the scene of many brilliant functions, but not in years has there been an event that created so much general interest as these held by the members of "Kingston's Finest."

Chief Robinson and the members of his department gave their guests a right royal welcome, and looked after them in fine style.

Mayor Angrove acted as chairman at the concert, and gave an address, and Chief Robinson also spoke, welcoming the people of Kingston to the concert and the dance.

The programme for the concert was one of high merit and every number was greatly enjoyed. The programme included the following numbers:

Selection, Sid Fox's Serenades; violin solo, Mr. Raney; solo, Miss Marion Bruton; ventriloquist, Mr. Lodge; quartette, Messrs. W. Christias, J. Saunders, W. Eva and T. J. O'Connell; solo, Mrs. J. Evans; recitation, Sgt. T. Kelly; piano solo, Mrs. Nuen; comic song, Mr. Bobby Howarth; solo, Jack Elder; solo, J. Alexander; step dance, Provincial Officer Clubber; solo, Mr. Charles Gates; duet, Mr. and Mrs. P. Kettle; solo, Mrs. Ashton.

Sid Fox's Serenades provided the music for the dancing in City Hall, and it was all that could be desired, every number being warmly applauded, the members of the orchestra being very liberal in their encores. Miss Sands, Mayor Angrove and Sheriff R. F. Vair acted as judges for the waltzing, and awarded the following prizes: 1st, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hunter; 2nd, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Casterton; 3rd, Mr. and Mrs. James Fowler.

WEEKLY SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for Aug. 29: "Ideal Human Relationships."—Exod. 20:12-21.

By Wm. E. Gilroy, D.D., Editor of The Congregationalist.

The last six of the Ten Commandments, which form the subject matter of this lesson, are classed under the title "Duties to Man." As we suggested last week, however, they imply—quite as much as the preceding commandments—duties to God, for God is honored most when men express the spirit of His love and the spirit of true worship to Him in the daily relationships of life.

Here, however, in connection with these commandments we have special occasion to emphasize the place of the commandments at the very foundation of society. Can one doubt that the disregard of these commandments is the great secret of much of the unhappiness, discontent and wickedness in American life to-day? Where home has no meaning and father and mother are not honored, or possibly are not worthy of honor, how can one hope to see sound conditions outside of the homes of the nation?

On the other hand, a nation that has good homes, where father and mother are Godly, where they surround the home with the spirit of love and service, and where they are themselves honored, will be a nation exemplifying a great social and political life.

Life Cheap To-day.

Is there not need to-day of particular emphasis upon the Sixth Commandment? Not only in a widespread way but in very deep ways there is an essential disregard of the sacredness of human life. The life of the individual is held very cheaply in America at the present hour.

Think also of the need of a new emphasis upon the Seventh Commandment as the foundation of good relationships between men and women and happy married life. Can one believe that the thousands of people in America who have disregarded that commandment and who have sought to find happiness in what they called "self-expression" have found any real satisfaction? Do not the sordid details of marital unhappiness and of the divorce court scandals provide a striking commentary upon the meaning of this commandment and its inherent relationship to proper relations between the sexes?

There is need to-day of interpreting the commandment, "Thou shalt not steal," in broader and effective ways. Too long have we regarded stealing with the thought of the burglar who breaks into the home-at night or the pickpocket who fleches something from a fellow mortal.

THE LATE MRS. J. PORTER

Passed away on Friday at Her Elginburg Home.

Elginburg, Aug. 25.—The death occurred at her home on Friday evening, about six o'clock, of one of this community's most respected residents in the person of Emma Porter, widow of the late John Porter, who predeceased her nearly three years ago. The late Mrs. Porter has been in poor health for several months, but she was confined to her bed less than a week. Her only daughter, her granddaughter, three sons and their wives were at her bedside when death came. She bore her illness without a murmur, maintaining the true Christian faith which marked her among her friends.

The late Mrs. Porter was seventy-six years of age, a member of the Methodist church for many years. Her youngest son, Arthur, predeceased her only four months ago. She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. A. Cranston, Watertown, N.Y.; three sons, Fred, at home, John and Harry, Rochester, N.Y.; two granddaughters, four grandsons, two sisters, Mrs. Annings and Mrs. Clogg, and three brothers, Oscar, Homer and Norman Reid.

The funeral took place Monday morning from her home to Cataract cemetery, Rev. Mr. Fairburn officiating. The text was chosen by the late Mrs. Porter and is found in II Timothy iv, 8 and 9. Her choice of pall-bearers were her three sons, her grandson, George Porter, her brother, Homer Reid, and nephew, Walter Clogg. The many beautiful floral offerings bespoke the esteem in which the late Mrs. Porter was held.

A very quiet wedding was solemnized at the Princess Street United Church parsonage on Monday evening, when Miss Lorena Fraser, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fraser, was united in marriage to Melville King, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. King, by Rev. J. K. Curtis. The happy couple will reside in Elginburg, where Mr. King is a prosperous young farmer. The community wish them a very happy married life. Miss Ella Day, Sydenham, is visiting her aunt, Mrs. N. Graham. The little Misses Valera and Doreen Pearson visited their aunt, Mrs. Charles Fraser, last week. Miss Marjorie Silver is visiting her grandmother in Kingston. J. Stanley Toils, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Toils, is in the Kingston General Hospital, where he is being treated for a diseased hip joint.

On August 21st a marriage was solemnized at Peekskill, N.Y., when Miss Laura Mae Steacy, daughter of Mrs. Jennie Steacy, North Augusta, Ont., was united in marriage to Mr. Irving S. Fullen, Peekskill, N.Y.
