From the Ryerson Press, Toronto, we have received four of their attractive "Chap Books," priced at 50c. and 60c. each.

"The Captive Gypsy." By Constance Davis-Dawson. This collection of verses has a foreword by Charles G. D. Roberts commending its sincerity, content and conscientious workmanship.

"The Ear Trumpet." By Annie C. Daunt. A strong appeal for consideration of the deaf and those losing their hearing. The verses are cleverly written and the writer, with her rather caustic pen, has brought home to us some truths that should make us more sympathetic and understanding of those who are deprived of the sense of hearing.

"A Vale in Lazon." By W. V. Newson. Nellie McClung has written the foreword of this small collection of verses by the Deputy Treasurer of Alberta, and in it speaks of the way in which, like a true poet, the author has shown us the beauty of common things.
