The Editor Hears

That this week we are advertising the campaign of the local Y.W.C.A. Possibly many of our readers do not realize what a world-wide power for the advancement of women and girls the work for their living with hand and brain the "Y" is. This summer at Campertown, Ont., a group of nearly sixty women and girls, representing domestic workers, industrial workers, girls from offices and shops, secretaries and board officers of the Y.W.C.A. from Ontario, Quebec and the Maritime provinces, spent ten days camping together. The informal conferences held in the open did much to create a sympathy and understanding between the workers in different departments and the needs of each group were made known so that the research committee formed will know just what is required to better conditions. The Y.W.C.A. stands for what is best for the development of women mentally, morally, spiritually and physically. It stands behind the girl who wants a living wage, who wants an equal wage with a man when she does the same kind of job and does it as well. It cares for the lonely girl in a strange land, it provides a safe and inexpensive lodging for women travellers and many times at the Kingston "Y" have penniless strangers received kindly ministrations and free food and lodging. The "Y" never turns anyone away. The writer has first hand knowledge of the Kingston branch of this world-wide federation of women and speaks of what she knows. The Y.W.C.A. is doing an excellent work in Kingston. It would do still more if its board were free to launch out into new work, with the burden of debt lifted from their shoulders. The women who have worked hard to keep an efficient "Y" in our city have not done it for themselves but for the generation coming after them and to give all young girls coming to our city a safe and happy home.

That the football season has come. Kingston women are as keen as the men about the rugby games. Hundreds of them attend the games played at the Stadium and many of them travel by rail or motor to cheer their favorite team on to victory at the games played elsewhere.

That the wise people will fill their coal bins now and not wait until some one starts to talk of coal shortage. The furnace will soon have to be lighted for the winter.

Baking Cakes. The success of a cake usually lies in the accuracy in measuring, the quality of the materials used and the baking. Use the best ingredients, only, and learn your oven. Use standard measuring cups and spoons.

From The Spanish. A far wrap that seems to have received its inspiration from the Spanish shawl is made of a large square of moleskin outlined with heavy taupe colored fringe.

Gives Variety. You can vary the monotony of poached eggs by serving a mushroom sauce over them.

WEDDINGS

Fodey-Kennedy. A pretty wedding was solemnized in The Holy Martyr's church, Phillipville, on Sept. 22nd at 9.30 when Bella, R.N., daughter of Mrs. B. Kennedy and the late Michael Kennedy, was united in marriage to Nelson Fodey, son of Mrs. M. Fodey and the late Thomas Fodey, Lansdowne. The Rev. Father Carey officiated. The church was tastefully decorated with pink and white dahlias, asters, ferns and palms. The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Thomas Kennedy, entered the church to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march, played by Mrs. A. O'Brien, Jones Falls. She was daintily attired in a gown of Poudre blue georgette with gold trimming and wore a black velvet hat. She carried a bouquet of Opheelia roses. Miss Celia Kennedy in a gown of golden tan georgette and carrying a bouquet of asters and maiden-hair fern, attended the bride. The groom was assisted by his brother Andrew.

After the ceremony about thirty guests, who included only immediate relatives and friends, accompanied the bride party to her mother's home where a delicious four-course breakfast was served. The dining room was prettily decorated with pink and white. The bride's table was centered with a huge wedding cake over which hung a large white bell. Immediately after breakfast the bride slipped away to don her travelling costume. Amid showers of confetti and good wishes the bride couple left on a motor trip to Toronto, Niagara Falls and other western points. The groom's gift to the bride was a pearl necklace, to the bridesmaid a French tory clock, to the groomsmen a set of pearl cuff links.

The many beautiful and useful gifts including several substantial cheques, as well as silverware and linens, was a testimony of the popularity of the young couple.

McKee-Harris.

A pretty wedding was solemnized at St. Mary's Cathedral, Hamilton, on Monday, September 20th, by Rev. Dr. O'Reilly, when Anna Margaret, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Harris, Alton, became the bride of Ignatius Francis McKee, son of Mrs. M. McKee and the late John McKee, of Kingston. The bride, who was given away by her brother-in-law, Mr. J. Redmond, looked charming in a French beaded gown of apricot georgette and black velvet and apricot face picture hat. She carried a bouquet of Opheelia roses, babies breath and fern. She was attended by Miss Irene Mulvale who looked very pretty in a French dress of turquoise blue georgette with black picture hat and carrying a bouquet of Premier roses, babies breath and fern. The groom was assisted by his brother Mr. John McKee. A reception was held after the ceremony at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. J. Redmond, 48 Colborne street, after which Mr. and Mrs. McKee left for Niagara Falls, Buffalo and Cleveland. The bride travelled in a very becoming costume of navy taffeta pannelled in gold braid, navy potretwill coat, trimmed with silver and gold braid and silver gray velvet hat. The groom's gift to the bride was a platinum fox neckpiece, to the bridesmaid a silver mesh bag, to the best man white gold cuff links and to the soloist Mr. Frank Bingham, a silver cigarette case. The bride was the recipient of many pretty and useful gifts.

Michaelmas Daisies

To-day along the roadsides of Ontario, and Quebec the Michaelmas daisies are blooming. Drifts of mauve are at the edge of the woods, great clumps of the larger daisies in the fence corner, the small heart-leaved daisies with delicate mauve blossoms and the large deep purple daisy the books on wild flowers call the New England aster, have done their gayest, and most delicate this week for their name day, St. Michael and All Angel's Day, Sept. 29th. Asters, these flowers of late summer may be called in some of the states, but in New England where the great-grandfathers of the generation of today received grants of land from King George, and in Canada here be it five generations or one that have watched the summer die and the purple daisies bloom, the old name still persists and we deck our churches for the festival of the Prince of the Angelic band and all his winged armies with the modest purple blossoms that bloom by our roadsides. The rush and tumble of life, push the thoughts of the angels aside, the whirr of the motor and the aeroplanes drown the soft music of their wings. But in the days of stress our senses are attuned to less mundane sounds and while men and women, sitting at home at ease during the world's greatest conflict, smiled scornfully at the idea of the angelic host lending aid to the armies-in their direst need, grim generals who knew their regiments were outnumbered and war-worn soldiers, who stared death in the face, will tell you of aid that came from none of the allied armies, but yet turned the enemy aside when victory was within his reach. Michaelmas was the autumn festival in England for centuries. The Michaelmas goose is as famous there as our Thanksgiving turkey. At Michaelmas you renewed your lease of a rented property and all sorts of quaint customs grew up around this day set in the calendar in memory of Michael and his angels, who as we read in the Revelation of St. John, fought against the dragon and cast him and his angels out of heaven.

4 out of 5 start too late

Among the people you see today, four out of five past forty (and many younger) are victims of Fyrorhea—simply because they started too late to protect teeth and gums.

Fyrorhea starts with tender, bleeding gums. Unchecked, it undermines youth and health and often results in loss of teeth, neuritis, ulcers, rheumatism or other serious diseases.

Don't have no fear. If you start in time, you can prevent or check the march of Fyrorhea. See your dentist at least twice a year. And start using Forhan's for the Gums. This dentifrice prevents Fyrorhea or checks it. It is the formula of R. J. Forhan, D.D.S., a recognized specialist in Fyrorhea.

Forhan's firm the gums, keeps them healthy. It protects teeth from decay-bleeding acids and keeps them white.

Don't gamble with health! Start the Forhan morning-and-night habit, now. Teach your children to use it, too, as health-insurance. Play safe. Get a tube today. At all drug stores, 35c and 60c.
