A SOUTH AMERICAN MISSIONARY SPEAKS
On the Trials Met With in the Amazon River Basin.

The trials which beset a missionary working in the Amazon River basin in South America from the attacks of all manner of insects to the savage habits of the red Indian tribes which inhabit the land formed the theme of an interesting lecture delivered by Mr. Kenneth Grubb in St. James' parish hall on Thursday evening. There was a good attendance and Mr. Grubb held the attention of his audience at all times. Rev. T. W. Savary, the rector, presided.
Mr. Grubb showed some very interesting lantern slides which depicted the character of the country, the different types of peoples met there, and the strange animals which on many occasions serve the missionaries for food. At times, he said, they become reduced to eating crocodiles and even ants. The Amazon basin supports a very dense vegetation and it is rare to find a cleared spot the size of a tennis court. The rivers form the chief routes of travel and floods and rapids make even these very difficult to navigate.
A reference was made by the speaker several times to the effect that companies exploiting the rubber resources of the country treated the Indian inhabitants very severely. In some cases ordering wholesale massacres. There are several main tribes of these Indians and they vary in character from very fierce to mild and hospitable people. As yet, Mr. Grubb said, the missionaries had not been able to spread Christianity to any great extent but they had hopes that they had broken down much of the resistance against themselves and that in time they would win the Indians over.

A quiet wedding was solemnized on Tuesday at Cardinal, when Rev. Canon French united in marriage Mrs. Nora Gill, Cardinal, formerly of Brockville and Mr. D. A. MacGillivray, Morrisburg.
West chairmen for the Liberals of the various wards in Kingston, and also for Portsmouth, will be elected in Garden Hall on Tuesday, Oct. 12th, at 8 p.m.
