HEAVY DEMAND FOR TICKETS

Indications Are That Record Crowd Will See Game Here Saturday.

With the defeat of last Saturday behind them, Queen's were slated to-day to start their grind for the McGill game at the George Richardson Stadium next Saturday. That the importance of the struggle is imminent is evidenced by the serious situation that exists in the intercollegiate Union at the present time. With McGill as the leader according to the rugby dope, Queen's indeed face a task that, according to what has already occurred, will be an even harder one than the one in Toronto.

However, strenuous processes are already under way and when Queen's step out next Saturday for their annual home tilt against Shaughnessy's red and white brigade, there may be a better balanced and more likely looking team in the fray. McGill has always put up great struggles in Kingston. The local field seems to hold some incentive for the McGill team and they play their smartest rugby right here.

Next Saturday's game will draw the largest crowd of the season, it is expected. Already the demand for tickets has been so great that it is very indicative that there will be a complete sell out, days before the game. Tickets will be at a premium and those who have been neglected of securing their tickets, will profit by making an early visit now to the board office to secure their tickets. There will be none to pick up by Friday night or Saturday morning if the rush keeps up and the wise thing to do is to secure the pasteboards at once.

Babe Dye Will Go to The Chicago Pro. Club

Toronto, Oct. 19.—Cecil ("Babe") Dye will play no more in a St. Patrick's uniform. The well-known sharpshooter's services were sold to the Chicago National League Club for a large price here on Saturday. Several clubs put in bids for the former goal-getting leader, but Chicago's offer was accepted.

Dye showed the way to National League scorers for several years, but illness and injuries wrecked his chances last season, and he bulged the net only 18 times. This record, however, was remarkable, considering that he was used as a relief man most of the time.

St. Patrick's will secure Corbett Dennesen, Laurie Scott and Le Bourgeault of the Saskatoon club, and in addition they have signed Bill Carson of Stratford, and Billy Brydge and Danny Cox of Port Arthur. Some trades are likely to be made, and another good defense man brought to Toronto.

Norman Shay, "Mike" Neville and "Dutch" Cain have been sold to Hamilton. All National League clubs waived on these players.

PERTH HOCKEY.

Organization for a Team for Coming Season Completed.

Perth, Oct. 19.—After a very successful meeting held in the Council Chamber here it was decided that Perth should organize at once for the coming hockey season. The following officers were elected: President, Allan Code; secretary, H. M. Shaw; treasurer, E. J. Roberts. Committee—Messrs. F. Z. Conway, J. M. Flett and Pat Rogers. Owing to the development of material from the Town League the team will be much stronger than in former years.

Outside Opinion

TORONTO GLOBE.
 After years of disappointments, the University of Toronto seniors have come back. Their victory over Queen's University machine here on Saturday afternoon was well earned. Even the Tricolor players admitted it. Coach Hughes was satisfied that his aggregation had bowed to a better team, but he believes, and others believe, that the race is far from over. In fact, Queen's are under the impression that they will defeat Warren Snyder and his men in the return engagement at Kingston, and that two victories over McGill will give them the championship for the fifth consecutive time. However, what may happen in the future had nothing to do with that great victory on Saturday afternoon. U. of T. outplayed the Tricolor in nearly every department, and they sent fifteen thousand fans into a wild demonstration of joy. Harry Batstone, the man who might have made Argonauts unbeatable in the Big Four race, went down battling to the end. This great backfielder never backed up an inch under heavy player and verbal fire, and the fans appreciated the fact that he is still one of the best of them all.

For years the old football fighting spirit of the University of Toronto has been practically dormant. First McGill, in the earlier stages of the Shaughnessy regime, rather monopolized the gridiron spotlight, after which the Tricolor jerseys of Queen's dominated the lime-rusted turf in Canada from goal to goal. The football teams which have represented the Blue and White have not lacked in courage, have not forgotten the gridiron traditions of the big Queen's Park school, but the old winning spirit has not extended to the extent that prevails since Saturday's momentous victory over Queen's. McGill downed Toronto at Montreal, but the Torontonians will be a different team to beat when McGill appears here two weeks hence. A change in custody of the Intercollegiate Union title will not hurt any of the teams or the game. The season is young, and still has possibilities.

TORONTO MAIL.

Several things stood out in Varsity's victory, apart from the fact that the team remained true to their coaching and refused to be drawn away from their positions. Their deadly tackling kept Queen's from returning the ball. This has always been a great ground-gainer for the champions, just like it was for the Varsity teams of champion days. On Saturday it was the Blue and White who did the returning, and when you get the backs returning punts and the wings getting the man, there can only be the one result. The tackling of Queen's was erratic and did not compare with the locals. The champions have a number of men missing from last year, but none do they miss more than Bud Thomas.

There have been few better rugby games played here, and despite the cry about the rules it was a very open contest. It was open because the teams found early that the aerial attack was the best, although they did not hesitate to try end runs and inside kicks. The latter were tried by Queen's several times in the last quarter, but they went astray because they were not properly placed. Varsity with the McGill game under their belts had the better condition.

Queen's are not as strong this year as last, while Varsity and McGill are stronger. Therefore, the Intercollegiate are in for their best rugby season, and when McGill plays here the attendance of Saturday will likely be surpassed. No doubt the threatening weather kept many away, for the crowd was 454 short of the game here a year ago between the two teams, when it numbered 17,034.

Harry Batstone is still the same old general. He may be slowing up a little in speed, but what he lacks in this respect is more than made up in grey matter. Some may say that he misses Leadley, but he misses more than anything the deadly tackling of the Queen's team the past four years. This was what got results for him on his well placed kicks, some long and some short.

General W. Bramwell Booth, of London, head of the Salvation Army, who is visiting in Japan, was tendered a public reception in Tokyo last evening. It is estimated 10,000 persons attended the reception.

COLD NERVE!

Air Mail Pilot Charles A. Lindbergh is alive to-day after making the longest night parachute jump on record. He came down safely from a 4,000-foot altitude when his gasoline ran out on a fog-beet night flight from St. Louis to Chicago. Last year he figured in another spectacular leap, when his ship collided with another plane high above Kelly Field, Texas. Both he and the other pilot escaped with their parachutes.

Port Arthur Team Is To Remain the Same

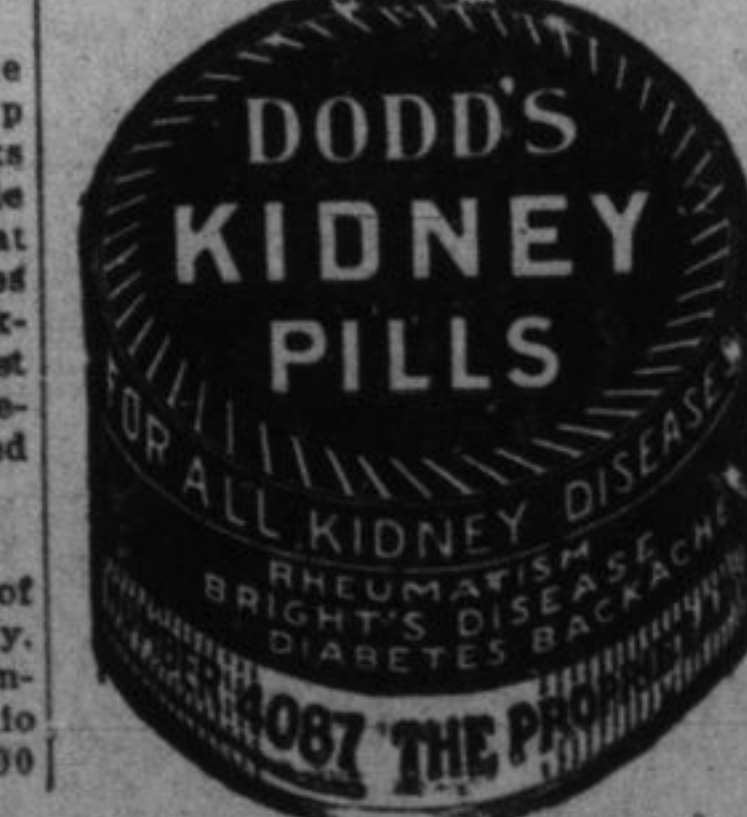

Port Arthur, Oct. 19.—Lorne Chabot, goal tender, will not be lost to the Port Arthur Allan Cup hockey team as feared when he left last week to confer with the manager of the New York Rangers at Toronto. Chabot has sent word that he is coming back to stay. His decision means the other players for whom the pros. have been angling will also remain. Port Arthur's team next year, therefore, looks as good as ever with Chabot, Wilson and Burke, the latter of Stratford, for defense, and a forward division composed of such men as Gray, Pudas, Chapman, L'Heureux, Connors and McLeod. All these were regulars last year except Connors. A Port Arthur boy, who starred with Niagara Falls, and McLeod, who was the big man on the ice in the Fort William-Kingston games of the Memorial Cup semi-finals.

THE REFEREE.

Who's the present Canadian professional golf champion?—S.D.G. Percy Barrett.

What was Sialer's offensive record last season?—F.G.J. Played 150 games; at bat 636 times; scored 100 runs; made 224 hits; stole 11 bases and had a batting average of .345.

SPORTING NOTES AND COMMENT

And now the question is, can Queen's defeat McGill here on Saturday and put all three intercollegiate teams on an equal footing. Opinion, as in the case of Varsity game, is once more divided but not quite so much against the Tricolor this time. Confidence in Queen's ability to come through against the Red and White here Saturday seems to predominate over those who would opt otherwise.

Providing that Queen's present injured men are in good physical shape on Saturday, that is, recovered of their injuries, and that Queen's do not suffer severe injuries this week in practice, there is every reason to believe that the Red and White will have stronger opposition than did the U. of T. at Toronto last Saturday. Mention of injuries sometimes sounds like alibis, but in the case of Queen's, there is no reason to brand reports of these handicaps as alibis. The players who were reported injured, were on the hospital list and no mistake.

"Irish" Monohan is proving that his place in the Queen's line is one of great strength. Monohan's ability as a defensive and offensive player last Saturday classed him as comparable with the best middle wings in the game. His worth is recognized and Toronto writers were not slow to praise his fine work.

Why all the consternation because Queen's have lost one game? The way some people are stamping around, passing on their "expert" opinion, one would think that Queen's had lost the championship on Saturday instead of one game. Queen's are not beaten yet, so why let the spirits droop to the lowest ebb? With the injured in shape again and barring further accidents, Queen's will be in to fight their way to the top.

The McGill attraction next Saturday may have much to do with deciding the issue for the Intercollegiate season. If Queen's win, their new lease of life will give them the confidence that perhaps is needed at this time. To tie up the College series would justify the prediction made all along that the race in the Intercollegiate series would be a toss up as to the ultimate winner. True it is that it's a hard thing right now to pick a winner, so apt is anything to happen. Needless to say, of course, Queen's will be in better position on their own field next Saturday to meet the Red and White.

Rugby is a funny game and perhaps in no other sport is it harder to pick winners. Here we have Camp Borden beating Queen's while McGill is defeating the U. of T. Then along comes the Toronto University to trim Queen's and while Camp Borden were expected to win, on their showing against Queen's, they fell by the wayside to Balmy Beach.

The University of Toronto have no reason to feel anything but proud of the team that defeated Queen's on Saturday. Unless a team of brilliant stars opposed Varsity last Saturday, it was no disgrace for to be beaten by the U. of T. The fact that Queen's were trimmed does not altogether mean that Queen's were weakened by injuries etc. Varsity team is a real one, one to be reckoned with and good enough to make things decidedly interesting for Queen's and McGill. Coach Ronald McPherson, while he has had splendid material to work with, has shown results and he has a team that can claim the unstinted support of the Varsity students and followers.

Ottawa Journal: The scouting trouble in the Intercollegiate has been settled. Bill Hughes attended the Varsity-McGill game with the consent of the Varsity and McGill coaches. And that's that.

Ottawa Journal: Queen's Board of Control officials are busy these days issuing statements. They are putting the college right with the public and not giving their rivals any chance to squeal without a sharp reply.

So long as Queen's lose, kicks from other centres will likely die but wait and see what happens if Queen's are on the threshold of the Intercollegiate title again this season.

Warren Snyder is a great football player and is one of the outstanding players, not only of the Varsity team but of Canadian football. But watch and see Sinclair star. From all appearances, Sinclair, though a young chap yet, will prove to be one of the greatest stars of the game. He has all the ear-marks of becoming an outstanding player and Varsity are all off with him on their backfield.
